HYLAN PLEADS FOR BUSES

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Sept. 23.—Mayor Hylan's housing program is doomed, so far as the extraordinary session of the Legislature is concerned. His proposal for bus lines owned and operated by New York City is also slated for defeat. This became evident after a legislative hearing which ended early this evening on a number of housing bills and related measures.

The President pro tem. of the Senate, J. Henry Walters, clearly indicated that the bill which has been introduced to compel savings banks and trust and insurance companies to invest a certain proportion of their funds in building mortgages has not found favor with the legislators. Spokesmen for savings banks and Jesse S. Phillips, Superintendent of Insurance, were among those who were prepared to oppose such legislation. Some speakers declared that the banks, without statutory compulsion, were doing now their share toward the stimulation of building.

Acrimony entered into exchanges between representatives of the tenants and the landlords, but there was an absence of the stormy scenes, verging at times on physical violence, which marked the hearing at the regular session on the rent relief measures.

Attacks on the Municipal Court were a feature of speeches made on behalf of the tenants at today's hearing. These came as the result of a provision, included in a bill sponsored by the Joint Legislative Committee on Housing, under which it was left within the discretion of the Muncipal Court Justces to fix the amount a holdover tenant should be required to deposit with the court to insure payment of rent while litigating the reasonableness of a rent increase demand by his landlord. A storm of opposition greeted the suggestion by Senator Walters that it should be left to the Judges to determine what the amount of the deposit should be.

Woman Attacks Justices.

Mary Coleman, a lawyer representing tenants on Washington Heights, declared that no discretion should be left to the Justices but that the amount should be fixed in the statute so that the tenant should be required to deposit not in excess of one month's rent before it was raised.

"I trust I have proper respect for the courts," said Mrs. Coleman, "but during the last months of confusion I have lost a great deal of the respect I had for the Municipal Court Justices and if I may venture a word of warning to you legislators, with the election coming on, it would be this: 'Watch your step.'"

At this point Mrs. Coleman was silenced by the gavel wielded by Assemblyman George R. Fearon of Syracuse, who presided at the hearing, held before the Cities Committees of the Senate and Assembly.

A tempest of dissent swept the crowded Assembly chamber a little later when Arthur J. Hilly, Chairman of Mayor Hylan's Rent Committee, asserted that he had no fault to find with the Municipal Court Justices and that they were "humane."

Sophie Irene Loeb carried the attack on the Municipal Courts further than did Mrs. Coleman.

"The poor man is not getting the justice he should get in what has been termed the 'poor man's court,'" she said. "Some of the decisions rendered by Municipal Court Justices in rent cases, as I happen to know, have been atrocious. The Judges do not understand, nor do they enter into the spirit of, these laws at all, so I should advise you to make your intent very plain. I feel that the time will soon come when you will have to look into the conduct of these courts and restrict their powers. They claim that there is such a thing as "landlord Justices." I regret to say it. I am sure that you will be here next January stating more definitely what you meant in making these laws because of the conduct of the Municipal Courts."

The charge was also made at the hearing by Mrs. J. Hammond, representing the Yonkers Rent Payers' League, that justice was not to be had in the courts in that city presided over by Justices of the Peace. Her contention was supported by statements by other persons from Yonkers. Mrs. Hammond said that the Justices of the City Court in Yonkers dealt fairly with tenants, but the Justices of the Peace did not.

"The courts presided over by the Justices of the Peace in Yonkers are a stench in the nostrils of decent people," she said. She recited her own experience when the rent was jumped from

Philadelphia Court Refuses To Let Women Qualify to Vote

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 23.—Petitions of 4,500 women to be placed on assessors' list so that they might qualify to vote in November were rejected today by the Court of Common Pleas, sitting as an election court. The court held that all such petitions must be filed at least two months before the election or before Sept. 20, as the State Constitution provides that one qualification for a voter is the payment of a State or county tax, assessed at least two months before election.

Counsel for the women are preparing to appeal from the decision and will present argument tomorrow for reversal of the court's decision.

FIVE HOUSING BILLS ARE PUT THROUGH

CALL FOR CONGRESS INQUIRY

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Sept. 23.—The Legislature showed its determination today to have the alleged building materials combination investigated when the Senate and the Assembly concurred in the adoption of a resolution asking Congress to begin such an inquiry, and, in addition, acted favorably on another resolution calling on the Federal Trade Commission to investigate excessive building material costs and any combination formed to maintain high costs.

The resolution was introduced in the Senate by J. Henry Walters, President pro tem, who declared that with all the facilities for inquiry at the disposal of the State "we are getting nowhere." Charges that a building material trust existed, he said, had been called to the attention of local and Federal District Attorneys and Congress and legislative committees without results.

Minority Leader Walker objected to the resolution, holding that the request for the inquiry might more properly be addressed to the United States Senate Housing Committee.

"I want to know if this matter has ever been called to the attention of the New York District Attorney," said Senator Bernard Downing, Tammany Democrat. "I am not concerned with the politics of the question. It is too vitally important. I don't care who such an investigation might hurt. I have been told that the reason for lack of housing construction in New York City is because blackmail in building material circles is going on and if that is so then it is a matter for criminal prosecution."

The Walters resolution, as adopted, read:

"Be it resolved, if the Assembly concurs, That the Federal Trade Commission be and hereby is respectfully and earnestly requested to conduct an immediate investigation of the costs of building materials and all things entering into the construction of dwelling apartments and all kinds of buildings devoted to housing and business with a view to disclosing the normal cost thereof, and that in the event such investigation discloses illegal practices, that it transmit the evidence adduced to the proper authorities for action.

"Be it further resolved, That the Congress of the United States be and hereby is respectfully and urgently requested to provide with all convenient speed such appropriate legislation as will effectually deal with the conditions disclosed by such investigations and provide for the punishment of the offenders against the peace, health and prosperity of the people of the United States."

A conference late last night among Governor Smith, legislative leaders and members of the Legislative Housing Committee agreed to several bills of a non-controversial nature and under suspended rules and with emergency messages from the Executive, these measures were passed in both houses today

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Auditing officials of the Department of Justice and the Department of Agriculture, testifying today before the Senate committee investigating campaign funds, offered in evidence vouchers which, on their face, seemed to show that at least four officials of the Department of Justice and one of the Department of Agriculture visited San Francisco during the Democratic National Convention at Government expense.

Senator Kenyon, Chairman of the committee, remarked that it was an "interesting coincidence" that so many officials had been called to San Francisco on Government business during the period when the Democrats were selecting their Presidential candidate.

While at no time during the examination of the witnesses was it placed in evidence that both Attorney General Palmer and Secretary Meredith had been active candidates for the Democratic Presidential nomination, it was made plain on more than one occasion at the afternoon session that the committee, or at least the Republican members of it, were trying to prove that Government officials and employes went to San Francisco at Federal expense to work for the nomination of certain candidates.

The officials who filed expense vouchers for the San Francisco trips were Assistant Attorney Generals Frank K. Nebecker and R. P. Stewart, special Assistant Attorney General J. Edgar Hoover, and George M. Montrose, assistant examiner of titles in the department. The vouchers called for reimbursement for expenses incurred in the lines of official duty, one of them, that of Mr. Montrose, stating that the cost was incurred while traveling with the Attorney General. Mr. Montrose accompanied Mr. Palmer in a secretarial capacity to San Francisco.

Tells of Meredith Aid's Trip.

The Department of Agriculture employe mentioned in the course of the hearing was Floyd R. Harrison, assistant to Secretary Edwin T. Meredith. Mr. Harrison, accompanied Secretary Meredith to San Francisco. He remained in the convention city from June 25 to July 9, and put in an expense bill for transportation and board. The charge was $4 a day for his board, according to testimony of Almerico Zappone, disbursing clerk of the department.

Secretary Meredith did not put in an expense account. Mr. Zappone said that the Harrison voucher plainly proved that Mr. Harrison had gone to San Francisco on official business and not as a worker for Meredith, who was the choice of the Iowa delegation for the Presidential nomination.

The calling of the departmental auditors and disbursing clerks marked an unexpected turn in the investigation. The decision was reached at an executive meeting of the committee this morning and it was said this afternoon that auditing and disbursing officials of other departments would be called tomorrow.

Don C. Fees, auditor of the Department of Justice, who submitted the Stewart, Montrose, Hoover and Nebecker vouchers, was not certain that he had brought all vouchers filed for transcontinental expenses since last June. He was ordered to search his files and produce on Saturday any additional expense vouchers he may find.

Other witnesses who testified at the hearing were William Barnes, who said

G. A. R. Adds 'One Language' To 'One Country, One Flag'

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 23.—The ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic, which now reads "One country and one flag," was changed to read "One country, one language and one flag," as a result of action taken today at the first business session of the fifty-fourth annual encampment of the war veterans.

This addition to the ritual followed numerous speeches in behalf of its adoption as a step toward Americanization.

ELLIS ISLAND JAM HALTS IMMIGRATION

THOUSANDS IN NEAR RIOT

Relatives Break Iron Gate in Rush to Get to Arrivals—Move to Stop Passports.

So many immigrants have reached Ellis Island that Frederick A. Wallis, Commissioner of Immigration at this port, notified the steamship companies yesterday that no more aliens would be received until the present congestion was cleared up. To relieve and to prevent this congestion, due to the exodus from war-torn Europe, Hugh Reid, representative of the Secretary of Labor, arrived at Ellis Island to confer with Commissioner Wallis.

Ellis Island on Wednesday night, according to the official report, was so crowded as to make sleep virtually impossible; 3,319 immigrants were detained in quarters with sleeping accommodations for 1,500 persons. The result was a tempestuous night. Those who could lie down were fortunate. A majority passed the night sitting on benches. Many literally slept on their feet.

Commissioner Wallis remained on the island until early yesterday trying to make the immigrants comfortable and to reduce trouble to a minimum. Mrs. Wallis remained with him, easing the discomfort of fatigued and footweary women and children.

Situation Becomes Complicated.

Immigrants have been arriving faster than they can be handled by the staff, and to this stream that has been slowly "backing up" at the station were added thousands who got here in five steamships at about the same time. These immigrants had to be taken to the island on short notice so the vessels which brought them could make their return sailing schedules. This situation was further complicated by the pressure brought to effect the admission to the country of thousands of Jews before the feast of Yom Kippur. This necessitated the sending of hundreds of arriving aliens to an already overcrowded Ellis Island.

The resultant congestion and confusion led to an unpleasant situation. So slow was the progress of examining and of discharging the new arrivals that their friends and relatives had to wait hours in the narrow enclosure set apart for them. This number grew larger with the arrival of every ferryboat. At nightfall it was figured 2,000 persons were in the waiting rooms with little chance of seeing their relatives that day.

When it became apparent that these relatives would be disappointed, the crowd became restless, then clamorous and then unruly. It broke down the iron gate and stormed into the information room at a time when the guards and attendants had gone and the night force was just coming on. With no serious opposition the crowd charged through this room and started up the stairs for the detention rooms.

Wallis Checks Disturbers.

Commissioner Wallis had been hurriedly notified of what had happened. He met the rush as it surged up the stairs. While the attendants checked the disturbers, he pleaded for order. He told the crowd that any attempt to take relatives from the island before they had been examined was a violation of the law. His counsel prevailed. The crowd backed downstairs and made its way, in groups, to the ferryboat.

The congestion on the island has directed attention of the authorities to the large proportion of undesirables who seek admission to the United States. Most of them should have been turned back at the port of embarkation for physical disabilities. With a capacity of 650 beds in the Ellis Island hospital there are now 570 patients. The doctors report many cases of favus, a contagious scalp disease, and trachoma, a contagious eye disease. They also have had to make many certifications of senility and physical defects.

Comparative statistics of the Public Health Service show that the percentage of certifications of ailments is higher than it was in the crowded times before the war. During the month of June 49,706 passengers were inspected and 1,783 were found to have ailments which might either debar them or make their detention for treatment necessary. During June, 1914, when 55,931 aliens arrived, 1,476 were certified as physically unfit.

1,000 Arrive Destitute.

This question of bringing so many ineligibles has already been the subject of correspondence between Commissioner Wallis and the steamship lines. In one letter to Sidney E. Morse, Secretary of the Transatlantic Passenger Association, the Commissioner pointed out that on three vessels which lately arrived more than 1,000 persons did not have money enough to pay their way to

"Match-the-President" Fund Is Started To Spread Truth About League of Nations

A new method of raising campaign funds will be tried by the Democrats. Contributions are reaching the National Committee so slowly that the leaders decided yesterday that collecting would have to be speeded up, so Chairman George White announced he had formed a "Match-the-President" fund whereby he hoped friends of the League of Nations as well as Democrats generally would duplicate the gift of President Wilson and subscribe $500 each to the campaign fund. Chairman White said he hoped to raise a fund of $500,000 by this means, as he felt sure there were 1,000 persons in the United States who would emulate the President.

"Less than $130,000 collected by us provided a contrast before the Senate committee yesterday with millions in the hands of the Republicans," said Chairman White. "Since the fate of the League and the peace of the world depends on the success of Cox and Roosevelt, I intend to call for a thousand friends of the League all over the country to match the President's subscription of $500 made recently in the same cause.

"This will provide a special fund of $500,000 to put the truth about the League before every voter. State and County Chairmen will be asked to assist, and we feel hopeful there are at least 1,000 men in the United States who will give us $500 each for the League. Newspapers which favor the League will be asked to help us form the 'League Thousand Club.' This plan will provide the means for a heavy assault against misrepresentation in the interest of mere partisanship."

Commenting on the testimony of James W. Gerard, ex-Ambassador to Germany and Treasurer of the campaign committee, before the Senate committee at Washington on Wednesday that Secretary of War Newton D. Baker had given $50 to the Democratic national campaign fund, Senator Pat Harrison, head of the Speakers' Bureau, said:

"Secretary of War Baker has rendered great service in this campaign at his own expense. He has already made many trips to distant cities from Washington speaking for the party. He went as far West as Waterloo, Iowa, on one occasion."

WORKERS IN TURIN BATTLE IN STREETS WITH ROYAL GUARD

Strikers Use Hand Grenades and Are Routed Only After Two Hours' Fighting.

NINE KILLED, SIX WOUNDED

Employes Throughout Italy Are Protesting Against Solution and Refusing to Quit Plants.

Moscow Soviet Chides Italian Workers with Not Overthrowing the Bourgeoisie.

LONDON, Sept. 23.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph from Turin says that following an attack on the Royal Guards, troops were ordered out and firing immediately began. The workers chiefly used hand grenades. The coolness of the troops prevented an absolute massacre.

The strikers turned out in force, and for two hours the industrial districts were the scenes of sanguinary encounters. Motor lorries transporting troops were fired on incessantly. The fighting centred around the Corso Reina Margherita, where one Royal Guard was killed and another guard fatally injured. Further troops arrived and eventually cleared the streets.

Later fighting occurred in the populous quarters near Ports Palazzo and Via Chicla. Here machine guns kept up a lively fire for another two hours. Late in the evening order was restored, but the theatres, shops and hotels were closed.

Seven deaths were reported as a result of the fighting in this vicinity, one being a striker. Six strikers were seriously wounded.

Machine guns have been posted at all strategic points and both sides are preparing for further trouble.

The Executive Committee of the Third Internationale, says a wireless dispatch received here from Moscow, has sent a message to the Italian workers concerning the recent strikes among the metal workers and the seizure of factories.

"You cannot," says the dispatch, "conquer by the mere seizure of works and factories. The bourgeoisie will leave you without raw materials and without markets. It is essential to develop your movement into a general rising, with the object of overthrowing the bourgeoisie—a movement of the workers seizing the Government and of the organization of a dictatorship of the proletariat.

"Only in this lies salvation. Otherwise the destruction and ruin of this excellently begun movement is inevitable."

Turin Workers Vote to Hold Mills.

TURIN, Sept. 23.—All the men occupying the metallurgical establishments met today to discuss the agreement reached in Rome between the Government and the metal workers. Out of fifty-one works the men in thirty-four have declared themselves, for various reasons, against the agreement. The other seventeen announce themselves as ready to accept it.

The belief is expressed in some quarters that the delay of the men in evacuating the works is due to their desire to transport their arms and munitions to some safe place in order to have them for a future occasion should necessity arise.

During the funeral of two workmen today an anarchist group attacked the armory here. The police were called and shots were exchanged, resulting in the death of two persons and the wounding of eight others.

GENOA, Sept. 22.—The metal workers of Savona held a stormy meeting today and after violent speeches passed a resolution rejecting the agreement concluded in Rome between the Government and the Metal Workers' Union. The resolution was passed by a large majority and declared that it had been decided to maintain occupation of the works.

The workmen of the Gampi electrotechnical establishment adopted a resolution today providing for evacuation of the works by the workmen. The plant will be returned to its owners immediately. The vote was 184 for evacuation and 30 against.

The resolution was strongly opposed by the Genoa Chamber of Labor.

The most original of the numerous seizures of plants by workmen occurred today when the printers of the important conservative newspaper Nazione occupied the premises and declared that they would manage the newspaper themselves. They declared that as they needed funds to carry out their intentions a person had been found who had deposited in a bank 3,000,000 lire for this purpose.

The Catholic newspaper Cattadino asserts that the person who deposited the sum is presumed to be Deputy Gialietti, President of the Federation of Seamen. The newspaper hints that the money originally came from Nikolai Lenin, the Premier of Soviet Russia.

WAVE OF LOWER PRICES SWEEPS COUNTRY; COST PEAK PASSED, BUSINESS MEN SAY; CUTS IN TEXTILES AND OTHER COMMODITIES

General Reduction Coming but Stable Prices Not Expected for Several Years, Says Secretary Houston

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—A period of stable costs is not expected for several years, Secretary of the Treasury Houston said this afternoon. The Secretary also said he would not predict that the pre-war level of prices would be repeated.

"Such cuts in prices as have been made in two or three quarters are significant of the tendency of the present time," he said. "I believe there will be a gradual recession in prices, but that a stable condition will not be reached for several years.

"There are apt to be considerable fluctuations up and down. I would not venture to say that the pre-war level will ever be reached."

Although there should be decided reductions in several Governmental departments, the Secretary believes that high taxation will continue for a considerable period. He said that estimates for the Government appropriations were now being prepared, but he could not forecast whether he would be able to recommend any drastic reduction in taxation.

"It is my theory," he asserted, "that the revenue of the Government should be sufficient to care for ordinary disbursements, including the interest on indebtedness, a sinking fund, and enough to provide for the retirement of the floating indebtedness by the end of another fiscal year.

"I cannot say whether there will be any reduction in taxation next year. The expenses of the Government are decreasing and there should be considerable saving in appropriations for the War Department and the railroad administration."

The suggestion was made to the Secretary that an increase in customs duties might aid very much in producing more revenue and also in protecting American industry.

"If Europe is to pay her debts she must be able to ship her products to the United States," he replied. "It will not do to put the tariff up too high. We must continue to receive imports from the European nations if our exports are to be paid for."

FINDS LIGHTED BOMB IN B. R. T. STATION

HUNT BEGUN FOR TWO MEN

No Fulminating Cap Found—Without It No Explosion Could Have Occurred, Experts Say.

One of the many bomb threats became a reality yesterday when a nine-inch stick of dynamite, with fuses alight, was discovered in a public washroom in the Reid Avenue station of the B. R. T. Fulton Street elevated line.

Last night detectives under Deputy Police Commissioner John A. Leach were searching for two men on a description furnished by a woman ticket agent stationed at the Reid Avenue junction of the line. They were also investigating the story of another woman ticket seller that she had been "warned" that something was scheduled to happen at a station where she formerly worked.

The dynamite was found by Policeman Michael Santinello of the Mercer Street Station, a Manhattan policeman assigned to B. R. T. lines since the strike of the company's employes. He was on duty at the station shortly after 11 o'clock yesterday morning when, according to his story, he saw smoke issuing from the window of the washroom. He walked down to the room, situated midway the length of the platform, and investigated.

Santinello said that he traced the smoke to back of a small box in the washroom. Back of the box, he said, he found a small parcel done up in newspaper and as he picked it up he saw two fuses burning steadily.

Snuffs Out the Fuse.

Santinello snuffed them out with his fingers, badly burning them. Then he unwrapped his find and disclosed the nine inches of dynamite covered with the usual paraffine paper. Santinello dropped the explosive into a pail of water.

The package was taken to the Atlantic Avenue Station and then sent to the Bureau of Combustibles. After a preliminary examination by Inspector Dixon the explosive was sent to the Central Testing Laboratory, 125 Worth Street. Dr. Gotch made an analysis and found that it contained nitroglycerine and ammonia nitrate mixed with "wood flour" or sawdust. These are the ingredients of low grade or contractors' dynamite. The "fuses" were ordinary pipe cleaners impregnated with nitrate.

According to the authorities no fulminating or detonating cap was found with the stick of explosive, so that an explosion would not have followed had the fuses burned down to the dynamite.

Says She Saw a White Cap.

Mrs. Elizabeth Granate of 958 Atlantic Avenue, another ticket agent at the station, said she had seen a small white cap in the pail of water in which Santinello had dropped the package. The police found no white cap in the pail.

According to the police, Miss Rose Ehrman of 41 Hunter Street, another B. R. T. ticket agent, was visited at her home about a week ago by a stranger, who warned her to keep away from her work at the Ralph Avenue station, as "something is going to happen." Miss Ehrman later was transferred to the Reid Avenue post.

Mrs. Granate, the agent who was on duty nearest to the room where the dynamite was found, remembered seeing two men get off a train coming from New York. After a few minutes' conversation they went into the washroom. She did not remember seeing them come out, but a few minutes afterward Santinello found the stick of dynamite.

One of the men was about six feet in height, wore a gray suit and a light soft hat. His companion was about the same height, broader and was dressed in a suit of dark texture.

BENTON TELLS OF BRIBE OFFER TO LOSE GAME

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 23.—Jacob C. (Rube) Benton of the New York Giants was the star witness today before the Grand Jury upon the resumption of its investigation of the alleged baseball scandal. Benton in a circumstantial way told of the manner in which he was offered a bribe to lose a game that he was to pitch. In connection with the offer he accused Buck Herzog, Hal Chase and Heinie Zimmerman.

In a statement made before being heard by the jury Benton denied that he had won $3,800 on the last world's series on the advice of Hal Chase, who, according to Herzog's statement, had sent Benton a telegram advising him to wager on the Cincinnati Reds to beat the White Sox.

Other witnesses heard by the investigating body were William L. Veeck, President of the Chicago Cubs, who was recalled to shed light on the Herzog statement on Tuesday, and Samuel W. Pass, a manufacturer, friend of White Sox players and an ardent rooter for the Chicago American League club. Pass's testimony was desired by the jury because he had bet and lost $3,200 on the world's series and had later made statements that the series was off color.

Herzog Not Yet Heard.

As Herzog has not yet been heard by the Grand Jury, no conclusion was arrived at as to whether he or Benton is telling the truth. Their statements made to newspaper men are flatly contradictory and each accuses the other of shady deals.

The Herzog-Benton controversy arose when it was learned that Benton had reported to his club that he was invited to a saloon in Chicago and was there asked if he wanted to make some "easy money." He inquired how, and was told that if he would throw the game next day there would be plenty in it for him. He refused and pitched and won the next day's game by making an extra effort. He later made an affidavit, which is said to be in the possession of President Heydler.

On hearing that he was named in the Benton affidavit, Herzog produced two sworn statements by Arthur E. Wilson and Norman Borekle, in which they depose that they were present when Benton told of being assured by Hal Chase that the world's series was fixed and that as a result of that assurance he placed his money on the Reds, thereby winning $3,800.

In answer to the latter affidavit Benton replied that the only money he won on the series was $20, which he had agreed to spend for drinks, and that it was so spent. He had never received any telegram from Chase, he said, and Chase was in New York at the time of the series.

Mentions a Syndicate.

That he knew of no actual case of crookedness in baseball except the alleged transaction, was the reply of Benton to the question of what he had to tell the jury of anything of his own knowledge. He mentioned being introduced to an agent for a Pittsburgh gambling syndicate which operated in both leagues.

The agent, he said, is known to players of major league teams as one who

COTTON PRODUCTS DROP

Two of the Largest Mail Order Houses Reduce Merchandise Cost.

AUTO MAKER FOLLOWS FORD

Franklin Company Cuts Prices of Its Cars 17 to 21 Per Cent.

FOOD NEXT, IS THE BELIEF

Refusal of Public to Buy Forces Action by Retailer, Wholesaler and Manufacturer.

General belief that the peak of high prices has been passed and that the direction of the curve is now downward was expressed yesterday by business men in many cities of the country following further announcements of price reductions after the original announcement by Henry Ford and the cut in prices of its cotton products by the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company.

The H. H. Franklin Manufacturing Company, manufacturers of the Franklin automobile, was the first of Mr. Ford's competitors to follow his lead, and announced cuts in the price of its cars of from 17 to 21 per cent.

Two of the largest mail-order houses in the world, Sears, Roebuck & Co. and Montgomery Ward & Co., both of Chicago, announced substantial reductions in many lines of merchandise. The list included men's and women's clothing, shoes, furniture and a few staple foodstuffs.

How soon the consumer might expect to benefit directly and the high cost of living be cut to the average citizen was a matter of speculation. There was a general agreement that the consumer would benefit eventually, but could not expect to get the full advantage of the wholesale reductions at once.

The consumer was expected to benefit first in lower prices for clothing and other manufactures of textiles, as the reductions in the textile trade have been more marked than in any other. Lower clothing prices are not looked for until next Spring. In other manufactured textile goods further retail reductions may be looked for earlier.

Reductions in Larger Cities.

Dispatches to THE NEW YORK TIMES from the larger cities of the country showed that substantial retail price reductions had taken place or were expected, the tendency toward lower prices having been in effect in some cities for several months because of an increasing tendency on the part of the public to refuse to buy anything but necessities.

The general view of business men was that this was the basic reason for the recent wholesale price reductions, and that the old law of supply and demand was operating to produce lower prices by a decrease in the demand for nearly every kind of manufactured goods. In this particular situation the decreased demand seems to have been caused by the refusal of the retailers to buy from the wholesalers or manufacturers, which was due in turn to the slowness with which the public bought from the retailers.

The result has been that large unsold stocks of goods remain with the manufacturers, necessitating either the stoppage of the factories or sale at a lower figure. One more cotton mill in New England was reported to have decided to go on a three days' a week schedule because of lack of orders.

Although few business men could be found to say that the "wear your old clothes" and "overalls" campaigns had had anything to do with the reduction in textile prices, it was admitted that the wariness of the public in purchasing had made retailers cautious about buying replacements for their stocks and that the result had been in many instances the accumulation of large amounts of manufactured goods in the hands of the manufacturers.

Expects Bottom to be Reached.

Lew Hahn, Managing Director of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, said retail merchants had been delaying purchases recently in the hope of a shakedown which would result in lower prices and expressed belief that the present price reduction movement would go on until prices reached bottom. Mr. Hahn said it had been a "battle of strategy" between the manufacturer, wholesaler, retailer and consumer, and that it now looked as though the retailer and the consumer would have the better of it. Mr. Hahn said the consumer would profit ultimately by the reduction of wholesale prices, although not immediately, as the retail prices would have to be changed slowly.

Although the recent important announcements of price reductions have not specifically affected foodstuffs, Commissioner of Public Markets Edwin J. O'Malley said that there was every indication that food prices would be reduced also. Commissioner O'Malley said that present prices for many kinds of food were practically identical with the prices at which his department sold army food a year ago. He said there had been substantial reductions in the prices of sugar, potatoes and fruits, and that shipments from abroad, where food prices are lower, would reduce prices here still further if there were more adequate storage facilities in New York.

MAIL ORDER HOUSES MAKE 10 TO 20% CUTS

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 23.—Discussing the slashing of prices, amounting to from 10 to 20 per cent. on several lines of merchandise by the mail-order houses of Sears, Roebuck & Co. and Montgomery Ward & Co., C. W. Guess of the sales department of Montgomery Ward & Co. said:

"There is a present reduction of 10 to 20 per cent. on men's heavy wool garments, the cut being in proportion to the amount of shoddy used. No wool yardage is being produced. When the American Woolen Mills, now closed, resume it will be with 70 patterns in place of the 400 to 500 patterns they formerly made. It is a good time for the man of moderate means to buy clothing.

"Present stocks of men's ready-made clothing are being offered at retail to the public at very sharp reductions from previous prices.

"Underwear is higher and will be so. None of the mills are making any. There are scarcely any stocks on hand.

"Standard dress goods—percales, ginghams, &c.—are reduced and will not go back to the previous high level. They are being offered everywhere.

"Silks are lower and will stay lower. Foulards, taffetas and all silk linings which were offered a few months ago at from $3.50 to $4 a yard are now selling at $2.50 a yard.

"Women's madeup dresses which sold at $75 to $80 three months ago may now be had for $50 to $60.

"Furniture prices are down 25 per cent. from what they were a few months ago. Furniture was profiteered to death.

"Shoes formerly selling at from $5 to $12 are now offered at $4 to $9. Blankets and all textiles are coming down.

"Canned goods, both fruits and vegetables, will be higher in price this season than last, due to the high price of sugar during the canning season."

"We have reduced many of our prices in accord with the shrinkage of current merchandise values," an official of Sears-Roebuck stated. "The chief price cuts are in those commodities which have dropped most sharply in the wholesale markets, and our reductions in retail prices follow closely those made in wholesale prices. In some lines of cotton goods we have made cuts of 25 to 30 per cent. We have issued pamphlets to our customers showing the reductions made from July catalogue prices and we have refunded money sent in for goods based on the old catalogue prices. These refunds we estimate at about $5,000,000 since July 1."

Reductions in prices of certain textile lines have been made also by Butler Brothers, another large mail order house.

Apart from the mail order houses leading clothing merchants of the country in attendance at the seventh annual convention of the National Association of Retail Clothiers expressed the opinion that the action of Henry Ford in returning to a pre-war basis on prices for the products of his factories will be reflected in clothing prices.

Prices of men's clothing cannot go down more rapidly than the cost of materials and labor, and, therefore, no violent changes may be expected, Eli Strouss, President of the National Association of Clothing Manufacturers, said at its convention in the Hotel Sherman tonight. Mr. Strouss promised that the 20 or 25 per cent. price cut promised by the textile manufacturers would be reflected in the prices of Spring clothing, but said it must be remembered that the cost of the cloth is only one factor in the cost of producing clothes.

FRANKLIN AUTO PRICES CUT 17½ TO 21½%

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 23.—Price reductions ranging from 17½ to 21½ per cent. on all models of Franklin automobiles were announced here today by H. H. Franklin, President of the H. H. Franklin Manufacturing Company. The move is part of a plan to cut automobile prices throughout the nation and follows closely the reductions announced by the Ford Motor Car Company of Detroit.

Despite the reduction in prices there will be no change in the wage scale paid to employes of the Franklin Company here. The new price schedule is: Sedan $3,600, formerly $4,350; brougham $3,500, formerly $4,300; touring $2,600, formerly $3,100; four-passenger $2,500, formerly $3,050; two-passenger roadster $2,400, formerly $3,050; enclosed $2,750, formerly $3,300.

Mr. Franklin in announcing the reduction said:

"Lower prices have got to come, and the way to get them is to inaugurate them at once. We shall suffer a loss on large stocks of materials purchased at prevailing high prices, but we shall endeavor to obtain readjustments of existing contracts to meet the new conditions and to place new contracts at figures below what we have been paying. Our unfilled orders amount to about one month's production.

"There is more unemployment in this country than is generally known, and the way to continue success is to keep all labor constantly at work. We will make no change in our wage scales. We have laid off about 2,400 men since early July and reduced our output from fifty-five cars a day, the maximum reached in June, to sixteen cars a day for five days a week. We hope under this new arrangement to restore conditions gradually to normal until the force of 5,000 persons employed in the early Summer is again attained."

DROP ALL ALONG LINE BY NOV. 1 IS PREDICTED

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Sept. 23.—The retail merchants here are anxious to know just when the reported drop in prices of clothing and foodstuffs is going to come. They say that the wholesalers and manufacturers are still holding up prices and in several instances are attempting to put them up still higher, notably in the case of rugs, carpets, &c., according to interviews obtained here tonight with sales managers of several of the larger stores.

It was the general opinion that in cotton and woolen goods there is a tendency to reduce prices; in fact it was stated that along several special lines this reduction had taken place and had already reached the consumer. During the last three months the price of men's clothing has dropped at least 10 per cent, but very little reductions are noted in women's wear. O. M. Billings, sales manager of one of the largest stores in Pittsburgh, summed up the opinion expressed by several of the men seen, when he said:

"I believe that by Nov. 1 there will be a drop in prices all along the line, but I do not believe it is here as yet. At least we have failed to see any apparent willingness on the part of the manufacturers to reduce their rates, except in a certain grade of men's and women's clothing. We feel that a readjustment of prices is bound to come, for our customers are becoming wary of spending their money on anything but what they actually need at the time."

BALTIMORE FIGURES DROP.

Bankers Say Business Is Returning to Normal Basis.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 23.—In further reduction in prices looked for in various lines of trade, Eugene Levering, President of the National Bank of Commerce, and other Baltimore bankers, believe that a big step forward will have been taken in placing business back on a normal basis.

Mr. Levering stated today that he thoroughly agreed with statements made in New York financial circles that further price cutting would come, and in discussing the situation he declared that the industrial concerns which were established long before the war would be able to meet this further liquidation in prices without serious dificulty.

ALL ST. LOUIS PRICES CUT.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 23.—Commodities of all kinds, necessities and luxuries, are being sold in St. Louis at prices greatly reduced from those of a few weeks ago. Clothing, shoes, produce, groceries, meat, furniture, tires and candy are being advertised at the reduced prices. Special sales for the disposition of stocks are being arranged, and the general trend is toward lower prices in an effort to unload stocks.

Clothing which has been offered at cut prices during the last few weeks has been reduced still further. Men's $55 suits are selling at $38.75, and boys' suits from $12.95 to $8.95. Women's wear, dresses, shoes, suits and hats have all been reduced in price.

Automobile tires are being sold for less than half the former price and many places are offering two tires for the list price of one.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 23.—Aside from "seasonal sales" conducted by various department stores, there has been a slight reduction in the prices of staples. The big stores have cut freely on many lines of goods, usually through advantageous buying from manufacturers, but, generally speaking, other retailers have given little encouragement to the idea that the high cost of living is coming down.

Gordon H. Cilly, advertising manager for Wanamaker's, and managers of other department stores, while pointing to certain reductions prevailing in their stores, would hazard no specific prediction concerning the trend of the market.

FALL IN SAN FRANCISCO.

Food and Clothing Dealers Predict Decrease for Months.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Sept. 23.—A representative of The Chronicle who has just completed a thorough survey of the food and clothing situation in San Francisco and Central California finds prices reached their peak about May 1, and that since that date the trend has been decidedly downward. Prices of some commodities began to drop as far back as last March.

The wholesale quotation on shoes has fallen 20 per cent. since March, while at retail footwear is selling at prices 25 per cent. less than six months ago. The wholesale grocers' quotations on flour, sugar and coffee have dropped materially since May 1. Meat prices have reached the low level of October, 1918.

Women's suits have dropped 15 per cent., and a steady fall in the prices of silks, cottons and woolens has been noticeable.

Men's clothing, both custom and tailor made, has dropped from 15 to 25 per cent., and is maintaining a decidedly downward tendency.

Food and clothing dealers declare the low level has not been reached yet and that there will be a gradual fall in all commodities for many months.

NEW ORLEANS PRICES LOWER.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 23.—A moderate decrease in the price of women's clothing, a slight decrease in men's apparel and a still slighter change in the cost of staple foods sums up the status of the New Orleans retail market Thursday.

Merchants agreed in forecasting a continued lowering of prices during the coming year, but all expressed the opinion that there would be no sudden or radical changes. The possibility of a return to pre-war prices seemed faint, they said, because of the labor situation and the greatly increased cost of production.

"There is a marked change in silks and cottons," said a Canal Street merchant. "Probably the most deciding falling off in any of our lines of merchandise."

TEXTILES PRICE CUT CALLED WORLDWIDE

Reductions by Manufacturers Coming for Some Time, Says Dry Goods Economist Editor.

A reduction in the prices of textiles on the part of the manufacturers has been coming for some time, S. H. Ditchett, editor of the Dry Goods Economist, 239 West Thirty-ninth Street, said yesterday. Mr. Ditchett, who has been making a study of the situation, said that the jobbers had to reduce their prices to move their stocks several weeks ago, because the retailers would not buy at the prices demanded. This week's issue of the Dry Goods Economist, he said, would urge retailers to reduce prices wherever possible, because the consumers are objecting to the present high prices all over the country.

Mr. Ditchett said that the 33 1-3 reduction in cotton goods announced by the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company was probably caused by the fact that the refusal of purchasers to buy at the old prices had left it with a large stock. The Amoskeag Company is one of the largest manufacturers in the country of ginghams, seersuckers, chambray and ticking.

Mr. Ditchett said that the American Woolen Company had already made reductions ranging from 5 to 20 per cent. and that the bottom fell out of the silk goods market when the price of raw silk dropped from $17 to $5.50 a pound last June.

"The decline in the prices of textiles is not confined to this country, but is worldwide," said Mr. Ditchett. "The same conditions as in this country prevail in the cotton mills of Lancashire, England, and in the Yorkshire woolen trade. Their foreign markets, India for instance, have not been buying English cotton goods, because of the high prices. Many of the English cotton and woolen mills are running on part time."

Law of Supply and Demand.

Mr. Ditchett said that the cost of production of textiles had not changed and that the price reductions seemed to have been caused by the working of a reduction of the demand, under the law of supply and demand, because of failure to purchase by the retailers and the consumers: "The retailers haven't been buying since last June," he said.

Retailers all over the country had not been making anything like their normal stock replacements, Mr. Ditchett said. He expressed belief that the consuming public would benefit gradually by the decrease in wholesale prices as fast as the retailers could adjust themselves to a new price scale. He said he believed the "wear your old clothes campaign" had had some effect in checking buying.

Dry Goods Cut Had Been Expected.

Lew Hahn, Managing Director of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, said the cut in the wholesale prices of dry goods had been expected for some time by the retailers. "The retailers have been holding off for lower prices," he said. "There has been easy buying in the expectation that there would be a shakedown and that prices would strike the bottom.

"After Henry Ford's announcement I sent out a bulletin to members of the association suggesting that the break had come and that the result was bound to be a tendency toward lower prices.

"The main factor in the recent situation has been a battle of strategy between the manufacturer, wholesaler, retailer and consumer, to see which could hold out the longest, and it begins to look as though the retailer and the consumer would have the best of it."

Prices of foodstuffs will fall in company with the prices of other commodities, in the opinion of Commissioner of Public Markets Edwin J. O'Malley, who said yesterday that the price of certain foodstuffs, such as sugar, potatoes and fruit, had already fallen and that a decrease in other lines might be expected.

Bumper Crops of Staples.

"There is a general price reduction coming, in my opinion. This in part is due to bumper crops of staples like apples, potatoes, peas, corn and other fruits and vegetables. A few days ago the Danish Consul called on me and offered a large quantity of Danish dairy products at prices that were ridiculously low, even without considering the depreciation of the Danish currency, which would make them still cheaper. If we only had the storage facilities such as could be provided by terminal markets, New York City could stock up with foodstuffs which could be sold at the prevailing prices all Winter and even until the new crops come in."

Commissioner O'Malley said he expected large quantities of Danish eggs and butter to be placed upon the market soon and said this should have the effect of preventing increased prices.

FAIL TO FOLLOW FORD LEAD.

Other Detroit Automobile Manufacturers Refuse to Cut Prices.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 23.—If the automobile manufacturers and merchants of Detroit contemplate following the lead of Henry Ford in the reduction of prices, they have so far given no inkling of their attitude. The Cadillac Motor Car Company is on record as declaring there will positively be no reduction in the prices of its cars. Persistent rumors are in force that the next few days would be productive of developments in the affairs of at least three or four large automobile companies, but attempts to trace these reports to an authoritative source have been futile.

About the only indication of a drop in prices in Detroit was offered today when several restaurants announced that hereafter a cup of coffee would cost 5 cents instead of a dime. Evidently the auto makers and the merchants of Detroit have adopted a "watchful waiting" policy.

PREDICTS LOWER PRICES.

Cincinnati Manufacturer Says Reduction Will Be Gradual.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Sept. 23.—George A. Brooks, President of the Pettibone Manufacturing Company, which handles cottons, woolens, silks, plushes, velvets, metals and leather, said today: "In my opinion lower prices are sure to come. I believe it will be a gradual reduction, although there may be a sudden drop because so many merchants who have overloaded will sell at the market now and take a small loss rather than hold on to merchandise when they feel that prices are going lower.

"Buying from hand to mouth is the chief trouble. The consumer is buying just the barest necessities and the merchant is doing the same, hoping that the stock he bought when prices were high will be sold out before the reduction comes."

MANY SHOE FACTORIES FACING A SHUTDOWN

End of Material or of Orders Near, Lynn Employers Say.

LYNN, Mass., Sept. 23.—The situation in the shoe industry here, which threatens to cause a stoppage of work in many factories within a day or two, was discussed today at separate meetings of the Manufacturers' Association and of the executive boards of the workers' unions.

There are eighty shoe factories in this city, employing about 22,000 persons under normal conditions.

Demands for increased wages lay behind the situation. All but three of the shoe workers' unions have signed agreements with the manufacturers as to the working conditions for the next eighteen months with the provision that present wages are to continue. The lasters, McKay sewers and packing room employes have refused to sign unless their demands for wage advances are considered, and last night the first two unions reaffirmed their action. Manufacturers have announced that under present business conditions they cannot add to present wages. The advances asked, they announced, amount to 40 per cent.

HAVERHILL, Mass., Sept. 23.—The local shoe manufacturers' association met today to consider the action of seven local unions in refusing to enter an agreement proposed as a working basis for the next year, and adjourned without making any statement.

The Building Trades Council announced that in the event of a general shutdown in the industry their members would refuse to work on factory buildings.

The employes of the Hervey E. Guptill factory, numbering 300, voted to quit work for an indefinite period as a protest against what they claim is a plan by the company to divert manufacture to its plant at Seabrook, N. H.

FEW CUTS IN STEEL.

U. S. Corporation Maintains Level Set by Industrial Board.

The steel market has thus far shown little in the way of price reductions. Early last year the Industrial Board of the Department of Commerce approved a price level for steel products which was materially below that which ruled under wartime conditions. This was generally adopted by all of the steel companies, although the stamp of Government approval was finally withdrawn. From the level then established prices gradually advanced, except in the case of the largest producer, the United States Steel Corporation, which rigidly adhered to the Industrial Board level. The steel corporation price level was therefore considered as the real price level, and the advances elsewhere were looked upon somewhat in the nature of premiums. The spread between steel corporation and independent prices has in some instances amounted to $40 a ton. In some cases there has been a reported lessening of the spread, but the cutting from the high levels has not been pronounced.

BLAME TAX SYSTEM FOR SOARING PRICES

Has Created an "Intolerable Situation," Say Cotton Men at New Hampshire Meeting.

CHARGE IT HAS CLASS BASIS

Tax on Gross Sales and Labor Cost of Goods Advocated by Theodore Price.

MAPLEWOOD, N. H., Sept. 23.—The present system of Federal taxation was declared to have created "an intolerable situation" and to be responsible for the continued high prices of many articles by speakers at the opening session of the semi-annual meeting of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers. Suggested substitutes included an employers' privilege tax, outlined by Theodore H. Price, editor of Commerce and Finance of New York, and a gross sale tax, explained by William E. Cornwell of New York.

"The people of the country," Mr. Cornwell said, "are becoming educated to the fact that the whole system of taxation in the United States is wrong," adding that the system "was founded on class and sectional bias."

"The present method of taxation is wastefully destructive," Mr. Cornwell continued, "but it is only during the past year or so that the public has become alive to the fact. Today a vast number of people of all classes, not only bankers and business heads, but those in the rank and file of all occupations, are impressed. This widespread knowledge is mainly due to the fact that the public is beginning to see that prices are being kept high in many articles because of the present excessive taxes."

Two important sources of the country's progress are being dried up by operation of the excess profits tax and heavy surtaxes on incomes, the speaker said. These sources were surplus capital and intelligent enterprise.

"As to the first," he continued, "the high taxes are driving people with large incomes to invest as much as possible in tax-exempt securities instead of furnishing capital for new business and general commercial and financial development.

"And as to the second, extra profits in business are being appropriated by the Government instead of being used to strengthen business concerns and to provide against losses in lean periods which are bound to come."

The requirements of a good tax system, Mr. Cornwell said, were: That it be fair to all; that the burden be universally distributed, and that the collection be simple and easy instead of being complicated and irritating.

"A tax on gross sales is an ideal development of these requirements," he added. "It is passed along in very small fractions and added through the various processes from the producer of raw material to stage after stage during manufacture, the tax almost collecting itself, accumulating automatically as it proceeds, and is finally paid by the consumer practically without his knowledge, and the additions are so trifling as not materially to affect prices."

Mr. Price in his address declared the present surtaxes penalize success and compel an enterprising man to pay the Government an immoderate share of his gains in a profitable year, leaving him to bear the losses of an unprofitable year alone.

Explaining the employers' privilege tax, which he proposed as a substitute for the present system, Mr. Price said, in part:

"By and large, the great mass of things that mankind consumes are the product of work on the farm and in the mines, factories and offices. Therefore, if the labor cost of these things were taxed, we should approximate an equitably distributed consumption tax, and if it were supplemented by a reasonable income tax plus moderate surtaxes, we would, it seems to me, be coming about as near as we can get to a painless and fairly apportioned tax.

"A manufacturer or merchant whose monthly disbursements for wages, salaries or piece work totalled $100,000 would at the end of the month send a statement to Washington with a check for the amount of his tax. If the tax were 5 per cent., his check would be $5,000, which he would include in his overhead charges and add to the selling price of his product.

"The price paid by the manufacturer of an entirely finished or marketable product for the raw or partially finished material that he used would have been correspondingly increased by the employers' privilege tax paid upon the wages paid to those employed in its production, and thus the price at which the article was sold for consumption would include all the employers' privilege taxes that it had to bear in its progress from the first producer to the ultimate buyer."

SAY FREIGHT ADVANCE WILL NOT RAISE PRICES

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—The Association of Railway Executives tonight issued a statement dealing with the effect of increased freight rates on typical things which people eat, wear or use, to sustain its contention that such increases would not justify large price advances. The figures made public tonight were prepared by the Bureau of Railway Economics, and show how the old and new rates should affect the ordinary retail sales of typical shipments. Some of the figures were:

Clothing—The freight rate on a suit of men's clothing (which with its share of packing weighs about four pounds) from New York to Birmingham, Ala. (990 miles), has been increased 2 and 18-100 cents. From Chicago, Ill., to Cleveland, Ohio (339 miles), the increase is 1 and 8-100 cents. From Chicago, Ill. to New Orleans, La. (912 miles), the rate has been increased 1 and 84-100 cents.

Shoes—On a pair of shoes (shipping weight 3.75 pounds) from Boston, Mass. to Baltimore, Md. (413 miles), the rate has been increased 93-100 cents. From St. Louis, Mo. to Cleveland, Ohio (537 miles), the rate has been increased 1 and 24-100 cents.

Beef—On a pound of beef from Baltimore to Norfolk, Va. (2?3 miles), the increase in freight rate is one-tenth of one cent. From Chicago to Washington, D. C. (888 miles), the increase is 27-100 cent.

Flour—On a 10-pound sack of flour from Minneapolis, Minn. to Boston, Mass. (1,502 miles), the rate increase is 1 and 2-10 cents.

Sugar—On a pound of sugar from New York to Norfolk, Va. (344 miles), the rate has been increased 6-100 of 1 cent.

Potatoes—On a peck of potatoes, shipping weight 15 pounds, from Stevens Point, Wis., to New Orleans, La. (1,161 miles), the freight rate has been increased 2¾ cents.

Tea—On a pound of tea from San Francisco, Cal., to Birmingham (2,520 miles), the increase in the rate is one-half of 1 cent. From New York to Baltimore (209 miles), the increase is 17-100 of a cent.

Oranges—On a dozen oranges, shipping weight 6 pounds, from San Francisco, Cal., to Boston, Mass. (3,584 miles), the increase in the rate is 2 88-100 cents. From Lakeland, Fla., to Baltimore (544 miles), the increase is 1½ cents.

Pianos—On a piano which, with its packing would weigh 825 pounds, shipped from Chicago to Birmingham (652 miles), the increase in the rate is $4.33. From Cincinnati the rate has been increased $2.76.

Tires—The rate on an automobile tire from Akron, Ohio, to New Orleans (1,087 miles), has been increased 10 67-100 cents.

Ford Cars—On a Ford car, shipping weight 1,580 pounds, the increase in the rate from Detroit to Washington, D. C. ([illegible] miles), is $6.08. From Detroit to Norfolk (945 miles), the increase is $5.92. To Birmingham the increase is $9.72.

Plows—On a plow weighing with its packing 69 pounds from Syracuse, N. Y., to Cleveland, Ohio (331 miles), the increase is 5 86-100 cents.

Newsprint—On a pound of newsprint paper from Bellows Falls, Vt., to Birmingham (1,208 miles) the increase is 17-100 of a cent.

Furniture—On a chair weighing with its packing 50 pounds, from High Point, N. C., to Birmingham, Ala. (512 miles), the rate has been increased 10 cents.

"The above figures," the association's statement read, "do not represent all the transportation costs. In shoes, for example, there is the cost of carrying the hide from the slaughter house to the tannery, from the tannery to the shoe factory, from the factory to the shoe store, as well as the freight on linings, thread, &c., but all these charges are in small fractions of a cent and the sum of all of them is very small in proportion to the final value of the finished product.

"The increased freight rate on a trainload of wool, for example, becomes very trifling when divided among thousands of suits of clothes. In the case of heavy commodities such as coal and steel, where labor and transportation are the most important items in the cost of production, the increase would naturally be larger."

DEPEW SEES PROSPERITY.

Says Country Is on Too Sound a Money Basis for a Panic.

Special to The New York Times.

BRIARCLIFF, Sept. 23.—Chauncey M. Depew, former United States Senator, today expressed his belief that "there will not be any panic" and that "the cost of living is coming down." He prophesied good times, less unrest and the settlement of differences between capital and labor. Mr. Depew is passing the Fall at Briarcliff Lodge.

"The country is on too sound a money basis for a panic," said the former Senator. "The cost of living will come down gradually. It will take time. I remember when the civil war closed. That was in 1865. But the cost of living did not get down to where it belonged until 1878. Yes, after the panic of 1873."

TELLS OF BRIBE OFFER TO LOSE GAME

loaned money to ball players to bet on games in which they were to participate. He would not name the agent, but said the introduction was made by a member of the Cincinnati team.

As a reply to the Wilson and Boeckel statements Benton made this statement to newspaper men:

"It is asserted in the newspapers that I was offered a bribe of $800 to throw the last Cubs-Giants game in Chicago in 1919.

"It is also said Buck Herzog was directly concerned in the offer, which I promptly refused.

"I wish to give the straight facts of that case. I believe this is due to the public, for upon the outcome of this investigation rests the future and honor of our national sport—organized baseball. The honor of the game is more important than any single player or club.

"Here are the facts:

"On the evening before the game in question Buck Herzog, H— Chase and myself stopped in a café near La Salle and Madison Streets.

"Buck and Hal asked me if I wanted to make 'some easy money,' no amount was mentioned by any of us.

"I asked them what they meant. They said that they wanted to see the Cubs win the game scheduled with the Giants for the following day, and that it rested entirely with me.

"They said I could throw the game if they could meet my price. Of course, I refused even to consider the proposition.

"Then Buck Herz— left us and Hal and I went to a hotel.

"Everybody remembers the Giants won that game by a score of 6 to 5. The night of the day the game was played Heinie Zimmerman met me in the Auditorium Hotel and said:

"'You poor fish, don't you know there was $400 waiting for you to lose that game today?' He passed on by and I didn't reply. He had been suspended the night before we played.

"I made no written memorandum of the incident, either at time or later. I spoke of it to Fletcher (Captain of the Giants) last Fall and to no one else until this Spring, when I told Manager McGraw.

"I suppose that since I told Fletcher and McGraw it has gotten around, and that is how the intended deal has become public in connection with this investigation.

"I am sure that no one knew much about it until I talked of it to Fletcher and McGraw, unless Buck or Hal or Heinie talked about it, which is not likely.

"No one ever approached me with an offer of bribery either before or since. I don't know anything about the rumor of crookedness among other clubs, and I don't know if they are true or not.

"That is all I have to tell the Grand Jury. That is the end of my story."

After hearing of the remarks by Benton to reporters, Herzog said:

"It's all lies."

In discussing Hal Chase, Benton termed him a wise bettor. Chase has made $40,000 by shrewd gambling, Benton said, and as far as he knew Chase was a square ball player.

His testimony before the Grand Jury was brief and he was told to report back next Tuesday.

Although in the jury room for over an hour and a half, Samuel Pass said he had given no direct testimony. He had no facts, only hearsay, he said, and he had entertained the jurors by telling funny stories about the players.

He said he made several suggestions which would help the Grand Jury in getting at the bottom of the rumors and the hints that the world's title was tossed away by the White Sox club for the benefit of a gambling syndicate and the resultant split that would be theirs when the gamblers "cleaned up."

Considerable dissatisfaction was expressed at the manner in which the investigation is being conducted. That Acting State's Attorney O. P. Lightfoot will replace the assistant now conducting the examination of witnesses was predicted. Charges are being made that a "whitewashing" is contemplated and that baseball officials are not sincere in their expressed wish for a public hearing and that testimony is being suppressed.

REPORT COHAN LOST $30,000.

Chicago State's Attorney Says World Series Bets Will Be Investigated.

Maclay Hoyne, State's Attorney of Chicago, who was at the Waldorf here last night, pledged a full, fair and complete investigation by his office of the baseball betting scandal.

"I am astounded by The Chicago Tribune reports that George M. Cohan lost $30,000 and Mont Tennes $80,000 on the world's series of 1919, and as a result have charged that the series was fixed," Hoyne said. "This report will be thoroughly investigated by my office, and if the inquiry warrants it and it is necessary to do so, subpoenas will be issued for Cohan and Tennes.

"Personally, and judging from a preliminary investigation, I have no doubt the 1919 world series was crooked and that at least one Chicago player was crooked.

"Judge McDonald, who is the judicial head of the Grand Jury's investigation, is 100 per cent. square, and the public may be assured everything will be done to get to the bottom of the thing in order that justice may be done to baseball and that gambling be eradicated."

WHITE SOX WOULD NOT DARE WIN, RUMOR SAYS

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 23.—Byron Bancroft Johnson, President of the American League, admitted tonight that he had "heard statements that the White Sox would not dare to win the 1920 pennant because the managers of a gambling syndicate, alleged to have certain players in their power, had forbidden it."

Coming at a time when Chicago and Cleveland are locked in a struggle for the flag, the statement caused a sensation.

The gamblers are said to have backed Cleveland heavily. The Sox, by winning today, are within half a game of the lead, and if they win out the gamblers will lose large sums. Certain members of the Sox, who have heard this report, are said to be anxious to win, more as a vindication for themselves than for any additional honors or money.

Announcement was made at the State's Attorney's office, following adjournment for the day of the Grand Jury investigation into the baseball "scandal," that Mr. Johnson will be recalled to the jury room to tell what he knows of such a plot, if one exists.

Mr. Johnson charged that either powerful official or political circles are protecting baseball gambling pools. He said he hoped all lovers of baseball would help wipe out this alleged condition by reporting all evidence of crookedness to the Grand Jury. He said he was anxious to find some method to get at the gamblers who are threatening to ruin the national game.

Some Quotations

"Of late years savings banks which awoke some years ago to the fact that mortgages as an asset had many advantages over bonds have had good reason for congratulation."

"At the Auburn Savings Bank we have succeeded after some years of arduous labor in transferring our investments so that from 65% of our deposits invested in bonds some years ago, we now have nearly that percentage invested in mortgages."

"This result could hardly have been attained without the assistance of guaranteed mortgages in New York City and its vicinity."

"I feel that we cannot too highly commend these mortgages as an investment."

NEW WHITE SELECTED RAGS

The rags from which Crane's papers are made come from mills engaged in cutting up white goods for shirts, collars, underwear, etc. Such rags are white, clean, crisp, and have been carefully sorted over.

Old rags have their use in making paper, but they do not make the best bond paper. They are too soft for such a crisp, crackly paper. Crane's papers are not only made from new white rags, but they are made entirely of rags.

New rags give durability and a fine crisp feel so desirable for securities of all kinds. This is one reason why Crane's paper is more widely used for bonds and other valuable documents than any other paper in the world.

HARDING DECLARES WE CAN'T HELP IRISH

LIMITED TO SYMPATHY

Special to The New York Times.

MARION, Ohio, Sept. 23.—The interest aroused in Great Britain by A. Maurice Low's dispatch to The Morning Post has prompted Senator Harding to dictate to newspaper correspondents a statement this morning amplifying his views on the Irish question.

The Senator believes that expression of sympathy with Irish aspirations is as far as this country can go. Official consideration of the matter and taking it up with the British Government he regards as meddling in internal affairs that are of no concern to the American Government. As for Governor Cox's promise to bring the Irish question before the League of Nations, Senator Harding contends that under the provisions of the League the Irish question would be construed as a domestic problem. He regards the Irish cause as hopeless of achieving anything through the League, in that members of the League are bound to "maintain existing territorial integrity."

"There are two phases of the so-called Irish question in America," Senator Harding said. "Individual sentiment is one thing, and it is recognized that there is widespread sympathy here for the cause of Irish autonomy. We voted an expression of that sympathy in the Senate at the time the Peace Delegates were conferring in Paris.

"Official consideration is quite another thing. It is not a question for official America. America has already meddled abroad excessively without invitation. I have said, as I truly believe, that under the provisions of the League of Nations the Irish question is internal or domestic, and I recall distinctly that at the hearings before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee the American advocates of Irish independence bitterly opposed the League as proposed because it not only closed the door to Ireland but committed us to the use of force to maintain territorial integrity as it exists today."

A delegation of men and women from Crawford County, next to Marion and contiguous to Morrow County, Senator Harding's birthplace, marched to the front porch this afternoon to assure the Senator that their county, hitherto overwhelmingly Democratic, would vote the Republican national ticket this Fall.

"I do not know whether the enthusiastic people of Crawford County are right in saying we are going to carry the county this year for Harding," State Senator James R. Hopeley of Bucyrus told the Senator, "but as a birthday present on Nov. 2 you watch for the present we give you from Crawford County."

"I have been your neighbor for thirty-eight years, and I was born on the edge of Morrow, adjoining Crawford County, and it is sweet for one to know he has the confidence of those who know him best," Senator Harding replied. "I want Senator Hopelay to go back home and tell the folks up there that there is no reason in the world why Crawford County shouldn't be a Republican county. And if you want to make it personal, you ought to vote for me, because your county is named for a distant kinsman of mine. Those of my particular branch of the Hardings are of kin to Colonel Crawford, who was burned at the stake when fighting in behalf of advancing the cause of American civilization."

A delegation of Ohio dentists and employes of the Mutual Plate Glass Insurance Company of Shelby joined the Crawford County pilgrimage at the front porch.

"I like this blend of citizenship here today," Senator Harding said, "and I do not know that it could happen anywhere else. I rejoice, my countrymen, that I speak for a party and my own convictions when I tell you that there isn't anything I would say to one that I would not say to all. I am preaching the gospel of one for all and all for one in the United States.

"I never before felt quite so moved by the singing of the last verse of the National Anthem. I wonder how many Americans could catch the soul and spirit of the song and prefer a conglomerate flag of the League of Nations to the Stars and Stripes.

"Oh, my friends, I know what is in your hearts. You are thinking just as I do, of America first."

Senator Harding traced the development and interdependence of agriculture and industry.

"Our greatest problem in America today in the great economic reorganization," he said, "is to bring the American farm to its deserved place in our American activities. We cannot go on confidently and assuredly as a people unless we continue our agricultural development.

"I want our people to go on, my countrymen. I believe that in America somehow the foundation is laid for the finest institution known to mankind. And I do not want ever to acclaim the time in the United States when we are going to adjust our activities to those of mediocrity. If I were a dentist, I would like to be the best dentist in the world. If I were a farmer—and some time I hope to be——" Applause interrupted the Senator.

"Well, now," he went on, "I can stop here and say this to you. I would not say it at some other place because it might be misconstrued as a bid for the support of the farmer. I would rather be a farmer than anything else in the world. It is the only occupation I know of where you can sit on your own fence and figuratively tell everybody to go and jump in the river.

Recalls the Old Days.

"Let's be neighborly for a moment. Oh, you men, you older men at least, do you remember the good old days when the country or village blacksmith not only shod the horse or mule, but was, probably, the wagon or carriage builder as well, working alongside the woodworker, and their combined efforts turned out the vehicles that we used? That was when men were taught to develop their skill, and they had pride in their work. They had glory in that which they wrought, and that was the inspiration that riveted them to their tasks. And I do not want to find a situation in America where men cannot have some soul in their work. I have said it a good many times, but it might be repeated here: I rejoice in an America that produces the most of anything in the world, but I would much rather rejoice in an America that produces the best in the world. I would like somehow to put into the hearts of American workmen a satisfaction in that which they are doing the satisfaction of doing the best of all the world.

"Aye, my countrymen, I want ours to be the best Government in the world. I know ours is the best foundation. I believe it was divinely inspired, and I want to go on an American to the great supreme fulfillment, not under the direction of a council of envious or rival powers, but in the freedom of American conscience to work out our own destiny ourselves.

"I know there is a new situation throughout the world. I know that the old aloofness between continents is gone forever. I know that there is a new stage upon which to play the great drama of human life. I know that new standards have come out of the World War which burned away much of the dross of human selfishness in life. I know what nations are thinking and I know your thought. You expect America to play her rightous part. We do not mean to hold aloof, and there isn't the semblance of hate in the American heart. We want to make our contribution to the continued advancement of human kind and the maintenance of peace throughout the world. And we mean to do it; but we are going to do it with all of America behind the program to which we subscribe.

Would Need God's Approval of Treaty.

"I do not know about the perfect character of the treaty of peace. May be it is perfect. I did not help make it, and the constitutional body of which I am a member authorized to help make it, was never consulted. If the treaty of peace and League covenant were perfect and had the stamp of God's infinite approval I would be willing for America to say their provisions might well be guaranteed by it. But until we know that, I do not believe in an internationality of force to suppress the freedom of the world. I would rather have an association of nations to give utterance to the conscience of the world. I think America is ready for that.

"Oh, my country, as I spoke in the beginning, I do not pretend to say just what our future course in internationalism is to be: I only know that America does not mean to surrender its freedom. I only know that we for ourselves intend to work out our own destiny, and so righteously impelled we will play our part in contributing to the good fortune and advancement of the world. I cannot hope to satisfy those who think of a league of nations first and the United States second. I want you to know that when I am elected President we are always going to think of America first, and on that basis, fix a righteous relationship with the rest of the world.

"I am glad that you have come to see me with the presentation of the facts about your field of service to America. That must be the spirit of all our citizenship—service, a willingness to serve intelligently, to train for humane service, to cleave to an idealism of deeds and honest toil and scientific accomplishments rather than to serve by mere words. I believe this spirit can be fostered best by uniting America. I believe it is best served by wiping away distinctions of class, creed, race or occupation which separate Americans from Americans.

"And so today I would like to reach all Americans with this message I am speaking to you.

"I say let us awake the conscience and intelligence of the social reformer and even of the discontents, and the agitators who, sometimes, with fine zeal for the good of mankind, nevertheless go too far and do gross harm to mankind by spreading the idea that productivity, a day's honest work, American business and commerce are somehow the symbols of evil oppression or selfishness. These are no symbols of evil nor are business and industry expressing the toil of head and hand the enemies of men's welfare. They are the sources of men's welfare.

"We must awaken the conscience of the ignorant and the misguided to the fact that the best social welfare worker in the world is the man or woman who does an honest day's work. We must awaken their conscience to recognize that American business is not a monster, but an expression of God given impute to create, and the savior and the guardian of our happiness, our homes and of equal opportunity for all in America. Whatever we do for honest, humane American business, we do in the name of social welfare."

Otto H. Kahn Praises Harding.

Standing on the front porch while Senator Harding delivered his speech were Otto H. Kahn and James M. Beck who had separate conferences with the Senator this morning. After his interview with the candidate, Mr. Kahn said:

"What impressed me most in the talk which I had the honor of having with Senator Harding is the fine dignity of the man, his manifest sincerity, his clear and calm judgment, his high conception of public service and his determination to do or say nothing but what is sanctioned by his conscience and his convictions.

"I was a follower of Colonel Roosevelt, and I believe I had the honor of his confidence. I would not and could not follow reactionary leadership. Senator Harding seeks progress. The greatest attainable wellbeing for all, not for any particular class under our national rooftree, is his aim. But he knows that rash and reckless promises or phrases accomplish nothing and lead only to disappointments and to that increased discontent which follows disillusionment. He knows that the structure of wellbeing for all which he means to lead in re-erecting can only stand if built upon the solid foundation of truthfulness and sound, sane and tested doctrine; of social justice and not upon socialistic or semi-sicialistic class appeal.

"It is evident that Senator Harding is a man who not only will not resent but who diligently seeks, correct information and sound, disinterested advice. It is equally evident that, having gathered such advice, his mental processes are his own and his decisions are clear-cut and firm. Any one who thinks that in Senator Harding he will find a 'standpatter,' a man in sympathy with reactionary views, a man that can be swayed or controlled by any clique or combination, will make a great mistake."

Mr. Beck had this to say:

"I was much impressed with his vigorous health and the fine equipose of his nature, which will mean so much to the nation when the new Administration grapples with the weighty problems, foreign and domestic, which eight years of Democratic maladministration will leave behind. I was glad to note that in the matter of our international relations Harding's broad position was that our true policy should be one of independence, but not of isolation. The next President can be, and probably will be, the most potential statesman of the world."

COX CHARGES HAYS IS CURBING PRESS

"TRAIL" IN ALBUQUERQUE

He Answers Queries of Local Press —Tells Them to Ask Harding Also.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Sept. 23.—A charge that "two personal representatives of Chairman Hays" of the Republican National Committee, who call themselves "Hays Scouts," had been out in the country asking Republican editors to play down and misrepresent the news of the Cox campaign tour was made here tonight by Governor James M. Cox, Democratic nominee for President.

Word had come to him, Governor Cox said, that these agents of Mr. Hays, "former office holders" named Headley and Smith, had also suggested to the editors that certain questions be asked in an effort to cause embarrassment and that the answers should not be published.

Governor Cox then proceeded to answer questions concerning the League of Nations, which were published in an Albuquerque newspaper today, and also discussed the charges that liquor interests had contributed to his campaign in the belief that he would not enforce the law. He challenged the newspapers to publish his replies and also to ask the same questions of Senator Harding, the Republican nominee.

Governor Cox linked the journeyings of "Hays Scouts" with his other charges that a conspiracy had been formed by the Senate oligarchy to pull the wool over the eyes of the people and buy the Presidency. He charged that the scouts had been traveling aeahd of him and were now in other cities where he was to speak later. One statement heard here today was that they had gone on to Denver and Cheyenne.

"When a political committee endeavors to kill the news," said Governor Cox, "when it dare not meet the issue on which its condidate wobbles from day to day, when it seeks to secure the Presidency by use of a huge corruption fund, it is time for the people to think seriously. I am going back East after my visit in the West, carrying this assurance to friends and foes: The West is alive, the West is alert and the West is with me in my fight for the peace of the world and the progress and peace of our land, and the West cannot be bought."

The charges which Governor Cox made today about efforts to misrepresent him and suppress news of his tour come as the climax to attacks he has made on newspapers in Washington, Oregon and California. Governor Cox found himself confronted in some cities of the Northwest with charges that he was controlled by the liquor interests. Fac-similes were published there of a letter sent by Carroll of the New Jersey brewery interests.

The charge then made by Governor Cox was not based on the fact that this letter was published, but on the allegation that his answer was misrepresented and that instead of publishing the news some papers carried on a campaign against him.

In his attack on the "Hays Scouts" and the newspapers which had co-operated with them Governor Cox had this to say:

"A great many documents of the Senatorial oligarchy in charge of the Republican campaign have found their way into my hands, but it required a train wreck and change of schedule to uncover their fear of the truths I proclaim. They dare not permit the news to be published nor do they eprmit the editors of Republican papers to exercise free judgment.

"On arrival at Alburquerque I find that two personal representatives of Chairman Hays have been here for several days, attempting to have four local papers refuse to print the news of my visit. These men, Messrs. Headly and Smith, calling themselves 'Hays Scouts,' former office holders and traveling ahead of me on my itinerary, have been here educating your editors, asking them to ask me certain questions, but to refuse to print my answers.

"Now, I am going to answer the questions plainly and I hope that you will see to it that your papers play fair with you, printing what I say."

Concerning the League, he said:

"I favor going in, to put an end to war for all time," said the Governor. "This is my position. I am determined to secure the earliest possible entrance into the League of Nations with the least possible delay and with the least possible reservedness needed to accomplish that result. The platform adopted by the convention at which I was nominated permits reservations which will clarify and reassure our people and is opposed only to reservations which would nullify and destroy.

"I have no doubt that Republican and Democratic Senators alike will loyally fulfill the people's mandate which my election will signify. I shall endeavor to meet all reasonable desires for proper reservations which are offered in sincerity and not merely presented as trumped up for political purposes. My heart is in this fight, and I will put forth all effort and make any reasonable concession to win it, that we may secure membership in the League for America."

Spends Day in Desert Travel.

Governor Cox traveled through Southwestern New Mexico today on his way here, taking the route through Deming as a result of yesterday's wreck near Phoenix, which made a change of schedule necessary.

The car Federal, which Governor Cox uses, and one of the compartment cars of the original equipment were thought fit for service by the railroad inspectors, but the other cars in the wrecked train will probably have to be scrapped.

After the trying experience of yesterday the Governor and his party welcomed an opportunity to take things easy.

The Governor was greeted by a large crowd at Deming. At Rincon, in the heart of the desert country, he left the car, and mixed with the natives, had his picture taken with some school children and visited about the town.

Governor Cox will ignore proposals from the Prohibition Party for retirement of Aaron S. Watkins, Presidential candidate of the Prohibition Party, from the race if the Governor will pledge himself to certain measures regarding the Volstead law. Governor Cox made this announcement on his arrival here tonight. It was understood that a similar proposal was made to Senator Harding, the Republican nominee.

The Prohibition Party's proposal, the Governor stated, came in a letter about two weeks ago from Virgil G. Hinshaw, who said that he acted officially. The letter was in the nature of a questionnaire regarding action upon the Volstead law and other prohibition questions. Mr. Hinshaw, it was said, expressed "confidence" that Mr. Watkins would retire from the Presidential arena should Governor Cox reply favorably to the questionnaire.

No reply has been or will be made. Governor Cox has declined to comment on a similar offer by Mr. Watkins.

"And more than that, ask directly the same question of the reactionary candidate; then print his replies if they can get them. If they can get a single direct answer on any question, and an answer that will continue the same from day to day on a single subject, they will be able to do what no one else has achieved in the entire career of Senator Harding. He has been definite and he has been consistent on one thing, and one thing only, and that is in his championship of the cause of big business and reaction and his utter deference and devotion to the Senatorial oligarchy."

MANY BACK COX ON LEAGUE.

Irving Fisher Reports Issue Draws Ex-Republicans and Independents.

Letters and telegrams from former Republicans and Independents anxious to work for Cox and Roosevelt because of the Democratic attitude on the League of Nations are pouring in at the Pro-League Independents' headquarters, 17 East Forty-first Street, according to Professor Irving Fisher of Yale, who has charge of the preliminary organization of the committee.

Professor Fisher declared that in addition to the enlistment of such well-known men as ex-President Eliot of Harvard, Theodore Marburg and Hamilton Holt, former Republicans and Independents in all walks of life throughout the country are voluntarily sending in their names for enrollment. Among the latest recruits to the organization is Fred E. Tasker, a New York lawyer and member of the Republican Club, who wrote:

"Although I am a lifelong Republican, yet I have also been from the beginning an earnest advocate of the League of Nations. Now that the parties have lined themselves up I can see absolutely no alternative for myself except to support the ticket which advocates the entrance of America into the League. I am very glad indeed to find that I am not the only one who thinks himself justified in cutting loose from lifelong political association for a great moral issue, which undoubtedly transcends any other that has arisen within my memory."

WILSON'S PART IN CAMPAIGN

He Will Help at the "Proper Time," Says White House Statement.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—President Wilson will participate actively in the Presidential campaign when "the proper time comes," it was stated today at the White House. He will probably not make any specehes, officials said, but will confine himself to statements on campaign issues, particularly the League of Nations.

The President is keeping in touch with the campaign through the newspapers and party leaders. While he has not received a formal invitation from Democratic headquarters to take part in the campaign, White House officers said that he regarded it as his duty to do so as a member of the party.

Harding Buckeye for Coolidge.

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—A group of Ohio insurance men attending a convention here presented to Governor Coolidge today a buckeye, which Mrs. Harding, wife of the Presidential nominee, had picked up under a tree in front of the Marion porch. She forwarded the nut to him with the message that if he carried it in his right hand trousers pocket it would ward off rheumatism. Although the Governor is not susceptible to the ailment, the buckeye now reposes in his pocket.

ATTACK CITY COURTS AT HOUSING HEARING

$38 to $85. The court, she said, took no notice when she complained. After Mrs. Hammond had spoken Mayor Wallen of Yonkers offered an amendment to the bill which would remove jurisdiction in rent cases from Justices of the Peace.

Mortgage Exemption Opposed.

Earlier in the hearing Mayor Wallen had spoken in opposition to the bill which would exempt from State income tax the income from mortgages below $40,000. This measure was opposed by economists like Professor E. R. A. Seligman of Columbia University, tax experts like ex-Judge Walter H. Knapp, former head of the State Tax Commission, and practical real estate men like Stewart Browne, head of the United Real Estate Owners' Association.

Professor Seligman said that while it might be true that investors preferred putting their money in tax-exempt securities, the real reasons why investors were shy were risks and hazards partly due to the war and partly due to other untoward conditions, such as the possible increase in the cost or scarcity of building materials and a possible tumble in real estate values.

"Besides," said Dr. Seligman, "there are plenty of opportunities just now for safe investments which will bring eight or nine per cent. interest, owing to the dearth of capital all over the world.

"The enactment of this measure would not, in my opinion, bring relief, because the bulk of mortgage money comes from persons who have investments much larger than $40,000. There would be a severe loss of revenue, which would upset our fiscal system and shift the tax burden to those less able to bear it, because many large corporations, by rearrangement of their capital, would escape taxation."

Former Judge Knapp said the enactment of the bill would spell destruction to the State Income Tax Law and the loss from taxes on such securities would have be made up by a higher tax on real estate and personal incomes. "Forty per cent of New York State's $15,000,000,000 worth of real estate would be tax exempt under this bill," he said. "It would be robbing Peter to pay Paul."

Stewart Browne said that if the bill were passed it should not become effective until in the Spring, after Congress had met. The success of the scheme, he said, was contingent on Federal tax exemption on such mortgages.

"In my opinion," he said, "the high money rate is due very largely to the many tax exemptions that are in force."

Exemption of New Dwellings Approved.

There was general approval of the plan to exempt from taxation for a period of ten years dwellings erected within a year from last April. The consensus of opinion, however, was that the time limit of one year was too short. Many believed there should be no time limit for beginning construction, because of the impossibility of obtaining the necessary labor and material if all the work, as the bill seemed to contemplate, should be crowded within twelve months. Frank Mann, Tenement House Commissioner of New York City, said the exemption should be limited to multi-family dwellings suitable to people of moderate incomes.

A. C. McNulty, counsel for the Real Estate Board of New York, objected to the bill which does away with summary evictions, except where landlords can show that tenants have failed to pay rent, that they are disorderly or objectionable or that the landlord wants the premises for his own use or to make improvements to increase housing facilities. This bill is proposed to meet the emergency arising out of the serving of some 100,000 dispossess notices for Oct. 1.

"The bill is unnecessary," said McNulty. "It is all right to put the rent profiteer over the jumps, but some landlords come into court with clean hands. I think the committee owes it to the harassed tenants to inform them that there is no likelihood of wholesale eviction on Oct. 1 and that they cannot be put out on that day as the law stands, for it gives them virtually twelve months' stay."

"Then why did you advise your board to send out such notices?" asked Senator Lockwood, Chairman of the Housing Committee.

"We did not do any such thing," replied McNulty, "Many landlords did it because they wanted to rebuild and others because, with a year's stay for tenants, they would be precluded from any repairs before Oct. 1, 1921."

Mr. Mann and John P. O'Brien, Corporation Counsel, spoke in favor of putting through the Mayor's bill under which money in the city's sinking fund could be loaned for building purposes with mortgages to secure the loans. O'Brien was cheered to the echo and acclaimed by tenants as "our next Mayor." Mayor Hylan, when this occurred, had left the Assembly chamber.

"The bill contemplates a certain municipal control over these loans, the structures built out of the proceeds of them, the methods of building, the management, the rents, &c.," said Mr. O'Brien. "Thus many of the practices that have been condemned in connection with speculative building in the past will be discouraged and eradicated from the house building of the city. No other way has been suggested, and we take it that no other method will be proposed to meet this utterly lamentable lack of housing facilities at this time, which has been placed by experts at 100,000 apartments and which will be increased each year at the rate of fifteen to thirty thousand apartments. This alarming situation must be met, and who is there that has the interest of the city at heart who will raise his hand or his voice against these measures?"

John M. O'Hanlon, speaking for the State Federation of Labor, indorsed this plan, as did Peter F. Brady, Supervisor of The City Record. Brady said the federation was solidly opposed to any restrictive measures curtailing nonessential building operations because this would throw a very large number of men out of employment.

A bill giving courts issuing warrants in tenant default cases the power to vacate the warrant. This power at present reposes in the Supreme Court alone.

A measure granting to Supreme Court Justices and Justices of the Appellate Division the right to grant a stay in non-payment and hold-over tenant cases.

A bill which seeks to extend the liability of the lessor of an apartment for failure to furnish water, light, heat, elevator and telephone service to his agent, superintendent, manager or janitor. The bill also makes more explicit the language of the statue passed by the last regular session of the Legislature which makes such wilful neglect a misdemeanor.

Another bill, giving the City of New York the right to expend the proceeds of sales of corporate stock or serial bonds for the erection of new school houses to house 187,000 New York City school children now receiving only part time schooling was approved by both Houses and goes to Governor Smith for executive action.

Both houses passed a bill introduced by Senator Henry M. Sage, Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, which empowers the State Controller to make temporary loans at the "legal rate of interest." The present law permits only 4½ per cent. This change is expected to make the State's short term bonds more attractive to prospective buyers.

The bill of Minority Leader Walker permitting New York City to issue bonds up to $12,000,000 this year, $5,000,000 of which is to be expended for the repair and maintenance of bridges and the remainder in salaries, was passed by both houses.

HYLAN URGES BUS BILL.

Mayor Opposed by Traction Lawyers at Albany Hearing.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Sept. 23.—Mayor Hylan was taxed with intent to destroy the traction companies in New York City when he appeared before the joint Cities Committees of the Senate and Assembly today to defend his proposal for legislation enabling the city to own and operate municipal bus lines. The accusation was made by Jackson A. Dykman, representing the Brooklyn City Railroad Company.

"Either out of pride of opinion or to please some one else, Mayor Hylan is advocating his bus plan, not with a view to serving the people but to destroy the railroads and leave the people at the mercy of municipal ownership and the management of its traction facilities," said the Brooklyn lawyer, "and any one who has studied the operations of city-owned buses and the damage they have done realizes what municipal ownership under Mayor Hylan would mean."

The Mayor, when he had an opportunity to speak, denied that he had any intent to destroy the railroads. The city, he said, had only supplied facilities which the railroads had failed to furnish.

Job E. Hedges, receiver for the New York City Railway, called attention to the declaration that the municipal bus project was part of the housing problem.

"It has no more to do with the housing problem than the stars in the Milky Way have to do with the price of milk," said Mr. Hedges. "This project is intended merely as a vehicle for a continuity of vocalizing until one year and one month more have passed."

This allusion to the municipal election next year brought a ripple of mirth. Myer Steinbrink, speaking for the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Corporation, opposed the plan, as did Arthur G. Peacock for the Interborough.

"In London the subways were compelled to buy the bus lines in order to keep alive," he said. "New York City has more than $200,000,000 invested in subways. Moreover, buses cannot be operated with a five-cent fare. There would be a big deficit every year for the taxpayers to make good."

Mayor Hylan, flanked by Grover S. Whalen, his Commissioner of Plant and Structures, and Corporation Counsel O'Brien pleaded earnestly for the plan. The Mayor laid the troubles of the traction companies at their own door.

"They earned more than 187 per cent. on their investment between 1903 and 1920 and dissipated it all, not laying by a cent to tide them over future difficulties," said the Mayor amid great applause. "The people want the buses. We had 2,000 buses distributed on forty-six lines which carried 75,000,000 of people at a profit on a five-cent fare."

Commissioner Whalen said the daily profits on 100 passengers had been shown by his experience to be $3.76.

REELS OF SPAGHETTI

The approved Italian way of eating spaghetti is to spear a stick of it with the fork, convey the end to the mouth, and suck it in.

An American, observing this process, came to the conclusion that the Italians have reels in their throats.

He was probably one of the multitude who prefer the equally delicious, but shorter cut, spaghetti at CHILDS.

ROOSEVELT ACCUSES CONGRESS OF WASTE

Declares Republicans Refused to Give Authority to Reorganize Departments.

$360,000,000 LOSS IN YEAR

All from Unnecessary Duplication—He Calls for Change in Congress Personnel.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 23.—Duplication of work by Government departments cost the country $360,000,000 during 1919, Franklin D. Roosevelt asserted here tonight in a speech in which he attacked the Republican Congress for failure to act on legislation proposed by the Administration.

"People declare the time has come for a change in our national Government," he said. "I heartily agree with them. The change in question, which is more vitally needed than anything else for the good of this country, is a change in the personnel and control of the Congress. Give us a new Congress and there will be change enough to suit everybody."

Mr. Roosevelt said that the waste, caused by division of responsibility and duplication, was "outrageous."

"In the matter of the navy, for instance," he said, "few people think about the fact that there are actually four navies. There is the navy under the department of the same name, the Coast Guard under the Department of Revenue, the Army Transport Service and the separate Department of Geodetics, which operates our lighthouses, dredges and miscellaneous craft. The Army Transport Service actually has more vessels afloat than the navy proper.

"Such a condition cannot but make for extravagant waste. During last year it cost the taxpayers at least 15 per cent. of $6,000,000,000 for 'overhead' and other incidentals in connection with the maintaining of the antiquated departmental system now obtaining in almost every branch of the Government."

"Again and again," said the candidate, "we went before the lawmakers seeking statutory authority to go ahead and reorganize many departments which are draining the public purse. For reasons purely political, however, we received no help."

Mr. Roosevelt also assailed Republican leaders for "their attitude of bitter disappointment at the failure of Congressional investigations to disclose graft and waste as they had hoped.

"It seems a very bitter commentary on the point of the view of our so-called leaders," he said, "when they actually admit disappointment that the American Government cannot be proved crooked or spendthrift."

He added that personal friends of his in the Republican camp had expressed such regrets.

Mr. Roosevelt later took up the matter of taxation and criticised the Republican Party for failing to be explicit regarding how it proposed to relieve the country of burdensome taxes.

"Their candidate for the Presidency has been wholly vague on the subject," he said. "Past history shows that the Republican doctrine is to levy indirect taxes in such form that the individual consumer pays the tax. This means that those who possess wealth do not pay taxes in proportion to their possessions. The Democratic policy is, of course, opposite.

"The Democratic Party was the father of the income tax, a system which has been adopted by every great nation on earth. It is a fair tax, bringing the burden of taxation on those who can best afford it."

destinations in the United States. That meant that the 1,000 passengers had less than $20 or were absolutely penniless and would have to remain on Ellis Island until their relatives could send for them. These three vessels were from ports where Polish war refugees embark for America.

"I have called a conference of the heads of the different divisions to see what can be done to relieve congestion and reduce discomfort to a minimum," said Commissioner Wallis. "There were not blankets enough for all the women and children I found. In the New York room I found 1,300 Jewish women and children. This room is only large enough for 250 persons.

"The exodus of these Jewish people from Poland amounts to a stampede. They are coming too fast for their own good. They tell pitiful tales of being robbed at Danzig and Warsaw by the official police and Government authorities. One Jewish woman told me last night that she had been robbed at Warsaw before sailing and when she made a protest about it to the authorities she was locked in prison two weeks. She now finds herself and children here without money to take them where they are going. There are hundreds just like her.

"I am convinced that a serious mistake has been made in letting these people come over in such a panic-like stampede as this. I am informed that Felix Warburg is heading a movement to discourage this unbusinesslike method of turning loose thousands of the Jewish people all at once upon the tide of immigration. All parties concerned would profit if Mr. Warburg is successful in his move to hold back this overwhelming tide of Jewish refugees.

"I am going to Washington tonight to see what can be done to remedy conditions. If necessary, I shall ask the Labor Department to call upon the State Department to hold up passports, and not continue to paralyze our immigration system this way."

Antone Belado, a foreigner held on Ellis Island, was found nearly exhausted early yesterday on Pier C of the Jersey Central Railroad in Jersey City. He had swum from Ellis Island. He was turned over to the police, who notified the United States authorities. Belado was attired in a uniform of a hospital attendant.

REASONABLY PRICED FINE FURNITURE

The Sloane Collection

Several old New York Establishments have a national reputation for excellence of goods and service.

The prestige of their names is so great and their homes so imposing that many persons of artistic tastes but moderate means hesitate to visit them, feeling that the high quality must express itself in high prices.

On the contrary, articles in these great houses, quality for quality, cost less than elsewhere, and in order to spread such knowledge, visitors are as welcome as purchasers.

In the field of Furniture there is a conspicuous case of this rare association of high quality and reasonable price.

Sloane's devote fully as much attention to their Collection of Reasonably Priced Fine Furniture as to their special hand made pieces. This Collection is growing in size and usefulness all the time, because merit, price and the guarantee of an honored name, make shopping there a delightful experience.

We Eat Less Meat
We Eat More Milk

Milk gives you more food per dollar than anything you eat.

According to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, we are eating less meat. About 8 pounds per capita per year. The figures available, indicate that we are eating more milk.

This may be due to price.

Milk, you probably know, is the cheapest of all foods of animal origin.

On the other hand, it may be due to a national awakening to the fact that milk is the greatest of all body-building foods.

Milk is rich in Calcium and other mineral salts. Its constant use as a food can have but one result: to give you a sounder body and a sweeter disposition.

M'ADOO BEGINS TOUR WITH LEAGUE PLEA

Time to Stop Hating, He Says, and Admit Germany and Austria.

DECRIES SOCIALIST OUSTER

Favors Iron Heel for Them, but Opposes Transgressing the Constitution.

HUNTINGTON, L. I., Sept. 23.—William G. McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, tonight, in his first speech in the present campaign in the interest of the Democratic Party, warmly defended the League of Nations and also asserted that the five Socialist Assemblymen should not have been expelled.

Mr. McAdoo, who is a resident of this place, addressed a crowd of 1,100 persons at the Palace moving picture house. Many women were in the audience.

Mr. McAdoo said he was a non-partisan speaker and dissociated himself from all politics in presenting the League of Nations. He prefaced his remarks by saying that Huntington was the site of the capture of Nathan Hale, who died for the principles of democracy.

Pleads for League of Nations.

"I want to discuss the League of Nations purely on its merits," said Mr. McAdoo. "It is a question which will determine in the future the lives of your children and your children's children. It is an organization which aims to make war impossible, or at least remote. Why have we not had a league before? The answer to this is that democratic people are peaceful. Despite the fact of our isolation we have had five wars.

"The Hague Tribunal is an utterly ineffectual instrument. The suggestion which has been made in the past to put teeth into it is ridiculous. The only teeth that could be put into it is sufficient military force to enforce its decrees. If it became effective at all it would really be a League of Nations."

Mr. McAdoo discussed the merits of the League and laid special emphasis on the fact that at least six months would expire before any two quarreling nations could declare war on each other.

"One of the compelling necessities after a war is to stop hating. The sooner we admit Germany and Austria-Hungary into the League of Nations the better for the civilization of the world. When they are admitted the combined nations will then form a body to prevent war.

Says Separate Peace Is Impossible.

"There is no part of the League or Covenant which justifies the conclusion that our boys can be sent abroad at the dictate of the League.

"Senator Harding said in his speech of acceptance that he is for a separate peace. This plan could not possibly be carried out, as the Constitution provides that Congress may declare war, but nowhere says it can declare peace."

In speaking of the expelled Assemblymen, Mr. McAdoo said:

"The expulsion of the Socialists is one of the most serious things that has happened in our life. I have no use for the extreme Socialist. We must place the iron heel upon him. But we must not ourselves transgress the Constitution.

"These people have elected servants of their own choice. Let them go there and let them be heard. I would prefer to have them hire halls and spout than to bottle them up. The best antidote is free discussion. If they have committed a crime they should be indicted."

Seek Kentucky Republican Senator.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—In an effort to elect a Republican Senator from Kentucky in place of J. C. W. Beckham, the Democratic incumbent, Senator Poindexter, Chairman of the Republican Senatorial Committee, has organized a special committee for the State, made up of Kentuckians. This committee will push for the election of Richard P. Ernst, Republican nominee.

WILSON PAYS TRIBUTE TO AMERICAN LEGION

Sends Message of Greeting for Convention, Eulogizing Veterans' Services to the Nation.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 23.—President Wilson, through The Legionnaire, the weekly publication of the posts in Cuyahoga County, today sent a message of greeting to the American Legion, which will open a three days' convention here Monday.

He congratulated the members of the Legion on the ideals exemplified by their service during the war and by their efforts since the war as an organization devoted to public welfare. The message follows:

"Years are now beginning to separate us from the day of trial and deeds of valor which marked America's participation in the World War. As the number of the years increases, the things you did in foreign fields will be seen in clearer perspective, and your heroic quality will be more and more apparent.

"The nation sent you as its representative and its champion, the fidelity with which you fought fittingly represented the faithfulness with which those at home labored and sacrificed in the same cause. The result of it all was a military victory in France and a moral victory in the world, the deeds of valor, the deeds of high thinking, the deeds of righteous impulses together make a great tradition, and it will be good for all future generations to continue your practice of cherishing these memories and keeping them bright as an example and inspiration.

"My own high privilege of leadership was a daily privilege. There was no need to urge; we all went forward as comrades to a great end, and we can survey the result with gratitude that America was permitted to make so great a contribution to righteousness among peoples and among nations."

COOLIDGE ON JEWS' FUTURE

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—Governor Coolidge's views on the future of the Jewish people, asked of him by Representative Elihu D. Stone of this city, are contained in this letter which Mr. Stone made public today:

"Should the opportunity present itself I should be pleased to support Senator Harding in such efforts as he might make for the bettering of the condition of the Jewish people wherever they may be, for undertaking to assist them in the support of organized government everywhere, which is the only means of protecting and advancing their liberties.

"Our great concern is to make of America such an example of righteous laws and of implicit obedience to those laws on the part of all citizens that the material prosperity and spiritual blessings which flow therefrom may demonstrate to all the world the soundness of such actions. In this great enterprise the Jewish people of America ought to take a most prominent part.

A Mother Writes—
"This letter is just to tell you about the way your Kora-Konia has helped my baby. He was two weeks old on Thursday, July 22nd, and was born on July 8th at U.S. Army Base Hospital, Camp Sherman, Ohio. The heat was so great that he was covered with a rash and he looked like he was cooked. He cried continually and I used everything I could think of, but nothing seemed to help.
I saw your advertisement for Kora-Konia in a magazine and got a box and just covered the parts thickly that were broken out. It was miraculous the way it relieved him. I have written about it to three friends who have small children. I shall never again be without it."

WITNESS DESCRIBES FATAL BOMB WAGON

ELIMINATES MISHAP THEORY

Supplements Story of Man Who Saw 3 Flee Before Blast—Glanders Clue Fails.

Many days' patient hunt by Department of Justice agents for a single person who could give a dependable description of the "death wagon" that hauled to Wall Street the infernal contrivance which killed thirty-five persons, or who could give a seemingly accurate account of the scene just before the disaster, was rewarded yesterday.

The Federal investigators, who have interviewed hundreds of men and women in the financial district and have puzzled for hours over the conflicting, often incoherent and sometimes almost hysterical stories of those who were victims or near victims of the explosion, came at last upon William A. O'Neill, special officer for the Bank of America of 46 Wall Street, who told them a clear, coherent and possibly a very important story.

The vital point in O'Neill's narrative was that just before the detonation he saw standing before the new Assay Office a horse and wagon and that in the wagon was a wooden box about two feet long, sixteen inches wide and eight or ten inches deep. If O'Neill's observation was correct the problem as to the nature of the container for the bomb seems to be solved and at the same time his estimate of the size of that container would seem to bear out the opinion of American Can Company experts that five cans of a combined capacity of twenty-one gallons went into the makeup of the bomb—at least to the extent that the cubical contents of the container would have admitted of the presence of such cans.

Text of O'Neill's Statement.

O'Neill's statement, as made public yesterday by the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice follows:

"O'Neill stated to Agents Burke and Matthews that on Thursday, Sept. 16, he left the Bank of America, No. 46 Wall Street, and proceeded west on the north side of Wall Street and that as he approached the Assay Office he saw standing in front of same a one-horse open express wagon, with staves or racks on sides. That this wagon was of a dark grayish color.

"About the middle of the wagon he noticed quite a large box. That this box was about two feet long and about sixteen inches wide and from eight to ten inches deep. The box reminded him of a ketchup box. The wagon appeared old and ricketty. Its wheels had reddish stripes. The horse was dark in color and looked old.

"O'Neill noticed under the seat of the wagon what appeared to be canvas rolled up. The seat of this wagon stood about two feet from the body of same and was of a collapsible character. At the time of the explosion O'Neill was on Wall Street in front of the Bankers' Trust, returning to his place of employment. He was blown to the sidewalk by the explosion."

Eliminates Powder Wagon Theory.

O'Neill's statement, in which the Government detectives manifestly placed great reliance, was regarded as of particular importance not only for the excellence of his description of the vehicle, but as setting at rest finally all the manifold reports and rumors and dark hints of a regular powder wagon having blown up.

To a degree the investigators felt that his story served to back up that of Samuel H. Wellington, the aged President of the West Indies Trading Company of 37 Cortlandt Street, who told of seeing such a wagon only seconds before the explosion and of seeing three men flee from the vicinity. One of these men, he said, was standing by the wagon when he first noticed him and two others on the other side of the street were calling to him warnings to "beat it." Wellington, it will be recalled, said he watched the three men flee, thinking they might be bond thieves and that some policeman would interrupt their flight. Then came the explosion and his observations ended, for he was knocked unconscious.

O'Neill said he did not see any one standing by the wagon nor did the vehicle as he recalled it have a top in accordance with Mr. Wellington's recollection of it, but even with these discrepancies officials felt that the two stories furnished an interesting study together.

Glanders Tag Clue Fails.

Published reports that a promising clue in the shape of a glanders tag found near the scene of the disaster might lead to quick tracing of the horse which drew the "death wagon" in which was the infernal contrivance came to naught.

In substance these are the facts about the much-exploited glanders tag: These tags were issued by the Health Departments of New York and New Jersey in large numbers nearly two years ago, when there was a glanders epidemic. A driver for Robert W. Scharf & Son, truckers of 12 Fulton Market, found Tag No. 6889, certifying that the horse wearing it was free of glanders, while he was watering his own horse at Wall and Front Streets on the day of the explosion.

He turned it over to the police, who found from Health Department records that the tag was issued in December, 1918, for a black gelding owned by the Reid Ice Cream Company of Waverley and Atlantic Avenues, Brooklyn. The company, investigation showed, sold the animal to the Calleson Horse Company of Prospect and Fourth Avenues, Brooklyn, who, in turn, sold it to the Scharf concern.

Horse Still in Service.

When the detectives got to the Scharf stable they were informed the horse in question still was in use by them. Examination showed that the tag was missing from the horse's ear and that the puncture in the ear through which it had been attached was freshly torn as if the tag had been removed forcibly. In other words, the driver had turned in a tag belonging in the ear of his own horse without discovering, apparently, that it was missing from the animal he was driving.

Another of yesterday's crop of "hopeful" clues died suddenly when William J. Flynn of the Bureau of Investigation of the Federal Department of Justice said there was absolutely nothing to a published story that a young woman had told a startling tale of having dined recently with a man who had warned her to keep out of Wall Street and that search was being made for this man.

The Grand Jury heard Ray Clark, foreman for the wrecking company which is clearing the foundation for the Stock Exchange extension to be erected at Broad and Wall Streets. Clark reiterated a vigorous denial that he had told about a man who tried just before the explosion to deliver a load of dynamite which had not been ordered for the job. Clark merely repeated under oath his original story that a man who said something about having lost a horse stood for a time on the roof of the structure protecting the sidewalk at the site of the excavation, surveying the explosion scene. Several men employed on the same job verified his tale.

Three Hardware Men Testify.

The Grand Jury also heard from three Seventh Avenue hardware dealers. Jacob Ziegler of 115 Seventh Avenue and Louis Dulchin of 158 Seventh Avenue said a man, apparently an American, visited their stores about Sept. 10, seeking to purchase nine-pound sash weights such as supplied the missles in the bomb. They had none. Jesse Kessler of Seventh Avenue said on or about that date he sold two of the weights to a man whom he also described as probably an American.

A number of witnesses connected with the two power companies authorized to transport explosives in New York were not reached. They will be examined today, the Grand Jury devoting its entire day to the inquiry.

Detectives trying to trace the "death wagon" horse through its shoes went to Jersey City yesterday and visited shops in ten Hudson County towns. They were accompanied by Timothy Healy, walking delegate for New York Local No. 1 of the Journeyman Horseshoers' Union, who was joined by Hugh Corbett, walking delegate for the Hudson County local. They visited shops in Jersey City, Bayonne, Hoboken, West Hoboken, North Bergen, Union Hill, Guttenberg, Weehawken, West New York and Secaucus, but found no blacksmith who thought he might have shod the horse.

Last night they went to a meeting of the local in Jersey City, where a number of oldtimers agreed with men of the New York local that the shoes were the work of some country blacksmith.

Blood-stained Pipe Found.

Combing over the sweepings from the explosion scene the police found a piece of blood-stained iron pipe about one foot long, bored and tapped for screws at either end. There were no screws in it. The find caused speculation as to whether it could have been part of the bomb. In connection with efforts to reconstruct the contrivance, Assistant District Attorney Alfred J. Talley told again of efforts by the city laboratories to determine whether or not a white substance in the crevices of some of the sash weight slugs was of an explosive nature.

There was another flurry of excitement in police circles when a detective agency announced that it had received an anonymous warning that Grand Central Terminal was to blown up. The agency communicated with Police Headquarters and with officials of the New York Central Railroad. Both railroad executives and police officials refused to discuss the matter, but it was learned that strong details of uniformed men and detectives were sent not only to Grand Central, but to the Pennsylvania Station and the two main Post Offices. The guards at Grand Central were reinforced by men from the agency which received the warning.

John R. Silladay, Executive Director of the National Consumers' League, suggested an ordinance requiring a police escort for every movement of explosives, the cost to be paid in some way by those interested in the operation.

Mrs. J. Takamine, Sr., yesterday corrected an impression that she was in the District Attorney's office a few days ago when Edwin P. Fischer, who sent warnings of the Wall Street disaster from Canada, was examined and sent to Bellevue pending commitment to a private institution.

Mary Dodd, 26 years old, of 124 West Seventy-first Street, a dress designer, who came here from Cleveland, was locked up in Police Headquarters on a charge of forgery in the third degree after Detective Fleming had arrested her as she emerged from 20 Broad Street, where it was reported she had been making a fake collection for the benefit of relatives of the explosion victims.

Assistant District Attorney Talley, who examined her, said she confessed to having collected $22 on Wednesday and $9 yesterday and admitted she had forged a subscription paper which purported to be headed by a number of men well known in the Street whose names he refused to disclose. Mr. Talley said the girl explained she could not get work and conceived the idea of capitalizing for herself sympathy for the victims because she helped another girl collect $150 supposed to be for the purpose of giving a dinner at Long Beach to wounded soldiers in the Fox Hills, S. I., Hospital.

The Subscription Paper.

The subscription paper which Miss Dodd said she dictated to a public stenographer read:

"To the Public: We, the undersigned, have organized and launched a drive, to start Sept. 20, for the purpose of raising money for the families of the dead and maimed victims of Thursday's horrible outrage. Most of the families of the victims are poor, and a great many will be plunged into debt through this catastrophe; so we ask you as Americans and citizens of New York to give what you can. Miss Rogers is duly authorized to accept checks or money, and will give you all the information desired. Kindly write your name and amount given on the list provided. Checks should be made payable to W. W. Cunningham, attorney. We wish to thank you on behalf of those whom you have so generously befriended."

The girl admitted, according to Mr. Talley that "W. W. Cunningham" was a fictitious character.

INTERBOROUGH COAL WASTE IS CHARGED

SAMPLE REFUSE ANALYZED

Points to Bearing on Company's Plea for Higher Rate of Fare.

Maurice E. Connolly, President of Queens Borough, made public last night a letter he had sent to Public-Service Commissioner Lewis Nixon protesting against waste of coal by the Interborough Rapid Transit Company in its plant at Fifty-ninth Street and Eleventh Avenue. Ashes bought of the Interborough were analyzed and the result showed, according to Mr. Connolly, more than 40 per cent. of combustible material still existing in them.

Mr. Connolly says in his letter that 7,700 tons of the ashes were bought at the rate of $2.80 per net ton, with the provision that "the loss on ignition shall be less than 10 per cent. The chemical analysis made of the ashes," he says, disclosed unconsumed material to the extent of 44.48 per cent."

Mr. Connolly learned through inquiry at the office of The Subway Sun, the Interborough's periodical, that the Interborough consumes coal at the rate of 2,000 tons a day and that this readily shows "that the waste in coal, presumed to exist as a result of our analysis, has a distinct bearing upon the operation of the Interborough company and of the carrying of passengers."

After making public his letter Mr. Connolly said:

"The Interborough Company has been making appeals for a higher fare on the plea that its operating expenses have increased so largely that it is unable to make a fair return on the money invested in its properties.

"If the company uses 2,000 tons of coal a day and if the loss in coal is only 5 per cent., it would mean 100 tons a day. This at $12.25 a ton, which the company is now paying, would be $1,225 a day or $446,125 loss for 365 working days. I do not want to be understood as charging that the company is wasting $1,225 a day in this way. I only want to call the attention of the company and the Public Service Commission to the fact that there is a loss."

Store Robbed of $25,000 in Furs.

Furs valued at $25,000 were stolen early yesterday from the store of Nathan Seidenberg, 2,277 Broadway, according to a report made by the proprietor to the West 100th Street Police Station. The thieves made an entrance through the front door by removing the hinges and forcing the lock. A safe containing $80,000 worth of furs and valuables, the only thing in the establishment with burglar alarm equipment, was not touched.

pay for work executed under the occupation régime. At midnight, after a lively discussion, during which as many as seventeen resolutions were put forward, the main body of the delegates voted for approval of the concordat.

Nevertheless, in view of the intense and widespread dissatisfaction among the men, the federation has ordered a formal referendum to be taken on Friday in all metallurgical workshops throughout the country.

If a vote of confidence should be denied to the Executive, then the initiative will pass to the Council of Action. Last night's majority decision, which was arrived at by 148,740 votes with 28,000 dissentions and over 5,000 abtsentions, confirmed the men in the retention of the factories until the referendum has been taken, and recommended to the masters a review of their decision, or at least to give evidence of good will by turning over the payment for executed work in favor of victims of the agitation and those of the recent earthquake.

Opposition Also in Milan.

MILAN, Sept. 23.—Opposition to the agreement reached at Rome between the representatives of employers and workmen in the metal trades has become quite bitter at meetings where the agreement, has been discussed.

Members of the Workers' Commission who signed the agreement explain they simply carried out the decision of the plenary session of workmen, at which the tendency of the Socialist Party to give the present movement a political character with the view of overthrowing the present régime was defeated by a large majority. They insist that the logical consequence of this decision was the return of industrial plants to their owners, since occupation was a means to the end, and not the end itself.

Clerks employed at the Pirelli works here have formed a non-political association for the purpose of protecting their interests. Plans contemplated would make this association the nucleus for a general federation of clerks throughout the country.

The Milan Chamber of Labor published a manifesto today expressing dissatisfaction with the agreement concluded in Rome, saying it is a mere truce, and urging the workmen not to disarm. "The hour will come when you must be ready for anything," the manifesto continues. "We can, we will and we must win."

A meeting of representatives of the Socialist workmen today passed by a vote of 100 to 20 a resolution acknowledging the importance of what has been obtained by the agreement reached in Rome, but deploring that the Confederation of Labor took hold of the movement, which the resolution says should have been left in the hands of the Socialist Party. The resolution urges the Socialists to intensify their propaganda so as to be able to obtain a greater conquest soon.

ROME, Sept. 23.—There have been sporadic attempts on the part of the poorer classes, fomented by the Socialists, to occupy uninhabited buildings, palaces and villas, especially in the outskirts of the city. The most important of these attempts was made against the famous Villa Albani, owned by Prince Torlonia. A mob broke through the side gate of the villa and fought among themselves for the occupancy of the best rooms. They carried portions of their poor furniture, which they placed in the beautiful gallery between the statue of a Greek Apollo and a fragment of a Venus and under pictures of famous artists.

The police were soon rushed to the villa and cleared out the invaders.

An attempt by Socialists to occupy the Lateran Palace, once the residence of the Popes, which, according to the Osservatore Romano, was to be made last night, was not carried out. What happened, it appears, was that the palace was approached during the night by a bicyclist scout, who on seeing a policeman come out from the main door attempted to escape and fell from his bicycle. He fought against the police who rushed out to catch him, but was arrested after he had wounded one of the police.

Oriental Pearl
Necklaces

With the Rare Beauty and Delicacy Which Make Them Perfect Gifts

To the softly shaded lights of evening and the shimmering folds of evening or dinner gowns, pearls form the natural complement.

Lustrous with the peculiarly delicate softness of sheen that marks the genuine Oriental pearl, each necklace is a study in color subtlety that eludes expression. Perfect graduation of the pearls and security in the fashioning of clasp in gold, platinum, or platinum with diamonds characterize each necklace.

For gift purposes the daintiness and refinement of these smaller sizes—they are 15 and 16 inches in length—make them the ultimate in good taste. The possibility of adding additional pearls at future anniversary occasions increases their value, while the size means a moderate initial expense.

At the Service of People Who Want to Know

No good intention can be actually lost

Life is often for long stretches along shores of shifting sands, and it is not easy to keep one's feet and make headway.

The star of good intentions may be hidden now and then with clouds, but suddenly it reveals itself without our looking for it, and we are prompted to take up our deferred work; and more thinking suggests another plan, and new courage comes along and we move forward into more light—remembering that far back in the years we resolved not to turn back or stand still when on a straight road.

The climax of success will surely arrive if we keep life's foundations right.

Autumn Suits
Sponsored by Paris

The new mode in suits as sponsored by Paris, and favored by the designers in this country, is reflected in copies of luxurious imported models from Callot, Cheruit, Madeline.

New features that characterize these autumn suits are shown in their different phases.

Long straight lines and rather long coat; box and semi-box models and the ever smart severely tailored suit with notch collars and correct semi-fitted lines.

The materials are luxurious, silk and wool duvetyn, Veldyne, marvella, orlanda cloth, duvet de laine and tricotine in their finest qualities.

New colors, that have such a flair this autumn—soft browns, Malay and Zanzibar brown, lovely dryad brown and pine needle green, Nankin blue and moonstone gray, as well as midnight blue and black.

Fur Trimmings

Some of the Suits

A charming three-piece suit, a copy of a Callot, is made of midnight blue silk and wool duvetyn, with a three-quarters length coat, straight of line and confined by a narrow shoestring belt.

The frock underneath the coat is slim and straight of line and has a bodice embroidered with wool and beads in floral motifs. The standing collar and cuffs of the coat are trimmed with flying squirrel.

Another copy of Callot has a little box coat and is silk duvetyn in that charming new autumn shade of elephant brown. The coat is interestingly embroidered all-over with self colored silk stitchery and a very delicate and intricate design made rich by dark brown bugle beads, with standing collar and the bottom of the coat banded with mole.

The collection contains a suit for every type of woman and a range of price that covers the better classes of suits starts at $59.50 and up to $575.

The Shops for Men
A Specialized Service of the Wanamaker Store

THE story of how 1,200 pairs Men's Shoes can be sold by us for $7.75 pair, although the maker's price is a quarter more.

These shoes were made by a factory manager who broke a standing rule of his boss—"No stock department."

The factory is well known. We are its biggest retail customer.

This year—as in all shoe factories—orders were held back. To keep his force working full time—the manager turned out, without orders, several thousand pairs of the brogue oxford shown below—the smartest type of men's walking shoes.

When the boss heard of it, he ordered the shoes sold out AT ONCE, no matter at what price. He didn't intend to break his rule—"no stock department."

The manager sent for us—his best customer. He didn't want to affect his market. Would we take the shoes—the whole lot—at a price?

(1)—tan or black Norwegian grain leather shoes with good broad heavy soles, blunt toes, broad heels.

To these we have added a hundred or more pairs tan Glasgow grain leather full brogue oxfords, half double sole, which we had bought to sell at more than half as much again, but which we shall sell at $7.75, because of these finer shoes which have come to us to sell at that price.

Step into the Burlington Arcade Clothes Shop. Stand at one end and look across to the other. Case after case of men's Fall and Winter clothing invites you—the best clothing that we know anything about.

One section is devoted to suits for men of regular build. Another to suits for stout men. Another to suits for slim men. And so on until ALL men are properly provided for. Not sale merchandise, remember; not job lots; not a few of one and a few of another; but a big, all-inclusive stock of the KIND of clothing that serves its purpose in the most satisfactory way. We've tried it for many, many years, and we know.

You never look —for extremes in fashion in the Wanamaker clothes for men. They are NOT here. But you DO look for the substantial types—the finer fabrics, the better linings and trimmings, and the more accurate details of workmanship. These are the factors that count most because they represent value and service.

AMERICAN-MADE SUITS BEGIN AT $50.
AMERICAN-MADE TOPCOATS begin at $45.

The high lights

—in these Shops for Men are always interesting. Here, for instance, is a separate section for young men that offers fashions of a type more youthful but not too extreme to be in good taste. The tailoring is hand work; the variety of woolens includes patterns that are a bit more colorful. Prices here range frorm $50 to $85.

Redleaf (London) Topcoats

—have never ceased to interest the man who likes the full, roomy cut of the English coat, and the different aspect of the fabrics. These are made by Kenneth Durward, of London; the unusual character of the tweeds attracts men who like things that are distinctive, yet practical. SEATED SOCIALISTS FORMALLY RESIGN

MASS MEETINGS APPROVE

Vote for Withdrawal as a Protest Against Ousting of Other Three.

Samuel DeWitt and Samuel Orr, Socialist Assemblymen-elect from the Bronx, who were seated by the Assembly when their three colleagues—Charles Solomon, Louis Waldman and August Claessens—were ousted on Tuesday, sent their resignations to Speaker Thaddeus C. Sweet last night. In a joint letter to the Speaker, DeWitt and Orr declared the Assembly had "definitely ceased to function as a representative body in a republican commonwealth" and that they refused to lend sanction to the ouster of their colleagues, whose political views they said they shared, by retaining their sats.

The resignations, which had been threatened by DeWitt and Orr immediately following the ouster, were definitely decided upon after the two Assemblymen had addressed several thousand persons at mass meetings in their districts. Votes taken at these meetings were practically unanimous for withdrawal from the Assembly.

"I would have been a traitor to the 150,000 voters in this district had I allowed myself to remain in the Assembly when the Socialist voters and their duly elected representatives were being made pawns in a corrupt chess game played between two political groups," DeWitt said at a meting at Longwood and Prospect Avenues.

Text of Resignations.

Thaddeus C. Sweet,
Speaker of the Assembly,
Albany, N. Y.

Sir: I hereby submit my resignation as member of the Assembly, such resignation to take effect at once.

My reasons for the resignation are as follows:

1. By the arbitrary and repeated exclusion of three duly elected members the Assembly has definitely ceased to function as a representative body in a republican commonwealth, and by disfranchising the voters of three large working class constituencies it has reduced itself to the condition of a mere rump parliament. I do not consider it consistent with my self-respect and the principles of representative government, nor with the interests or desires of my constituents to participate in the deliberations of such a lawless body.

2. As a member and representative of the Socialist Party, I have been elected upon the same platform as Messrs. Waldman, Claessens and Solomon and I fully share their economic and political views. The attempt to draw a distinction between my case and that of my comrades above-mentioned is a disingenuous subterfuge engineered for political purposes by the bipartisan reactionary ring in the Assembly.

I must refuse to accept such a dishonest and senseless compromise and to lend it my sanction by retaining a seat in the Assembly.

I have made my campaign for reelection to the Assembly in good faith and in the hope that I would be able to contribute to the solution of the housing problem, which is so vital to the residents of my district, particularly in view of the fact that my party is the only party that offers a definite and comprehensive program for coping with the acute and growing dwelling problem absolutely free from the influence of rent profiteers. But the issue of representative government is at this time paramount. If the right of the people to choose their own representatives is denied, their power to remedy social and economic evils by legislative processes is forever destroyed. Yours very truly,

SAMUEL ORR,
SAMUEL DE WITT.

Confer with Hillquit.

Following their arrival in this city yesterday afternoon the five Socialist Assemblymen had a long conference with Morris Hillquit, their chief counsel at the first ouster proceedings, at Mr. Hillquit's office, 19 West Forty-sixth Street. At this conference the decision was reached to put the question of the resignation of Assemblymen Orr and De Witt before the voters of the district last night and to abide by the wishes of the constituencies. The cases of the expelled three—Solomon, Waldman and Claessens—are regarded as closed so far as any action looking toward reinstatement is concerned.

About 1,000 persons met the five Assemblymen when they arrived at the Grand Central Terminal at 1:05 P. M. The station master sent in a call for police reserves to keep the crowd back from the gates. When the five men appeared they were greeted with cheers lasting several minutes.

Mr. Hillquit would make no statement about the conference, saying that the matters that were talked about there would not be definitely decided until the mass meetings last night. He made it clear, however, that no attempt would be made by the Assemblymen to take advantage of the fact that certificates of election had not been issued when Waldman, Claessens and Solomon were ousted and to gain reinstatement by a technicality.

Mapping Out a Campaign.

"The object of the conference," said Mr. Hillquit, "was to work out a plan of campaign to take advantage of the fortunate circumstances which Speaker Sweet has created for us. The campaign will not be made solely on the issue of the ouster, but on the real reason for the Legislature's refusal to seat them. That reason lies in the fear of the old party representatives that the Socialists would spoil their game in favor of the manufacturing class, the profiteering class, and the landlord class. Of course the party will continue its Statewide educational campaign in favor of the economic problem of socialism.

"Returning Socialists bring reports of unprecedented enthusiasm in favor of our course, of which they have had many evidences. These five men will tour the State and speak. Our efforts will be directed toward wresting control out of the hands of the present bipartisan reactionary clique. The machine may not have wanted to oust them this time, but last Winter they started something which grew beyond them, and over which they lost control. The step they took then was a fatal one. No matter which way they turned this time they were bound to raise a storm of reproach."

The Assemblymen called the attention of reporters to the fact that Assemblyman Ransom H. Gillett, who introduced the ouster resolutions, had been the Socialist, as well as the Republican candidate, and that two others who voted for the ouster—Assemblymen Everett and Kenyon—had also been Socialist candidates in their districts.

Executive Committee's Statement.

The State Executive Committee of the Socialist Party issued a statement on the ouster yesterday which said in part:

"The Republican and Democratic Parties, vaguely conscious of their class interest, are dominated by definitely class conscious politicians. The influences emanating from the Union League Club are the influences of Wall Street. The fiat has gone forth that no one holding the economic heresies held by the Socialists shall be permitted a seat in the governing body of New York State.

"The fusion of the old parties in the special election is a confession that there is no difference in principle between them, that the capitalist influences that control one control the other. In fusing, the Republicans and Democrats put the issue squarely to the voters. The fusion was a tacit agreement to abide by the decision of the voters in the election, and yet when the election went against fusion and when the victorious Socialists sought to take their seats the fusionists abandoned their tacit agreement and used force to accomplish the purpose they could not otherwise accomplish. And again, behind it all, the iron hand of the capitalist power is visible.

"The compromise reached at the eleventh hour to seat two and oust three was a desperate attempt to make the best of a desperate situation. The two who were seated stand for precisely the same principles as the three who were expelled. What the three ousted Socialists did the other two also did. A more absurd situation, a more inconsistent one, cannot be found in parliamentary history. Assemblymen Orr and DeWitt promptly and very properly withdrew. They did so because they felt, and we indorse their sentiments, that if Waldman, Classens and Solomon were made to suffer for their principles, they did not wish to escape. We assert this because it is not three individuals or five who are being attacked, it is the entire Socialist Party and its fundamental principles which are at stake.

"The fundamentals of democracy have been flouted; representative government has been mocked; and America has become the laughing stock of the world. But more than political democracy is at stake. The paramount issue, the great question involved is this:

"Shall the workers be deprived of a voice in the affairs of New York State as soon as they show an inclination to oppose the wishes and interests of the capitalists? Shall the power of the capitalists' control over the Legislature be unlimited? This is the issue upon which the Socialist Party bases its case. Ths is the issue upon which we appeal to the workers of America."

Farmer-Labor Party to Protest.

The Farmer-Labor Party of New York will protest against the expulsion of the five Socialist members of the Assembly at the opening meeting of its campaign in this city in Lexington Avenue Theatre on Sunday afternoon at 2:30, accordin to a statement yesterday by Dudley Field Malone, Farmer-Labor candidate for Governor, and Miss Rose Schneiderman, the party's candidate for United States Senator, both of whom will address the meeting, along with John Fitzpatrick, President of the Chicago Federation of Labor, and Swinburne Hale, former Captain U. S. A., and candidate for Judge of the Court of Appeals.

SOCIALIST PARTY CHARGE.

Executive Secretary Says New York Legislature Encourages Violence.

CHICAGO, Sept. 23.—Otto Branstetter, Executive Secretary of the Socialist Party, issued a statement today characterizing the New York legislators who expelled three of the five Socialist members as "the worst enemies of representative government and of orderly and peaceable processes of adjusting grievances through political action."

"The parties responsible for the recent Wall Street explosion with its terrible loss of innocent lives should be hanged," Mr. Branstetter said, "but if they should be hanged for the destruction of lives and property, what punishment should be meted out to these New York legislators who, by their acts, are attempting to undermine the very foundation of the Government, and whose course, if persisted in, will make certain a long series of such outrages as the Wall Street explosion and eventually civil war?

"On this issue the Socialist Party is the defender of law and order and representative government. The New York Legislature is the traitor to American institutions and is advocating policies which lead to violence and bloodshed."

Predicts 20 Socialists in Assembly.

SALT LAKE CITY, Sept. 22.—The action of the New York Legislature in expelling the re-elected Socialist members will result in there being twenty Socialists sent there next year instead of five, Seymour Stedman, Socialist candidate for Vice-President, declared at a public meeting here tonight.

Uruguayan Socialists Back Moscow

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Sept. 22.—The Socialist congress in session here today decided by an immense majority to adhere to the Third International at Moscow.

Detective di Gilio Not in Saloon.

James di Gilio, a detective attached to the Hunters Point Police Station, who was reported as having figured in a hold-up in a saloon kept by V. di Gilio in Long Island City Tuesday night, denied yesterday that he was present during the hold-up or that he was the son of the saloonkeeper, as reported. The detective said that he was not related to V. di Gilio in any way. It developed that the saloonkeeper has a brother named James di Gilio and the confusion in the reports arose from this circumstances. Detective Di Gilio was at the Astoria Station at the time of the hold-up.

WHO TAKES THE RESPONSIBILITY

WATCH a woman at the stocking or underwear counter—how she runs her hand under the goods, looking for imperfections, trying to determine the quality by the feel.

With the constant multiplication of brands, with the eternal shifting of values, women are having a hard time finding just the thing they want in stockings and underwear for the family.

What a relief it would be if she could ask for the same brand time after time and know that she would get just what she wanted in comfort, service, and price. Somebody should be responsible for her getting it.

And the logical person to hold responsible is the Maker—when you know who he is.

There is no mystery about the Makers of Allen A Black Cat Hosiery and Cooper's-Bennington Underwear.

This mark—Allen A—is the Maker's pledge of responsibility to you.

"Allen"—the name of the owners; and "A"—the standard mark of first and finest grade.

A personal earnest of uniform quality and dependable value added to such famous brands as Black Cat Hosiery and Cooper's-Bennington Spring Needle Underwear.

Allen A Black Cat Stockings come to you backed by this pledge—in silk, lisle, wool and cotton, for men, women and children.

They are full size, full length, free from imperfections and of lasting shape.

And the same holds true of Allen A Cooper's-Bennington Spring Needle Underwear for men and boys, in all weights for all seasons.

The man or woman whose feeling for style extends to their more intimate garments, whose standards of quality are the same underneath as on the surface—will find in Allen A Hosiery and Underwear the service they are looking for.

FINDS FATHER DYING, MOTHER HURT BY CAR

FORMER DIES IN SON'S ARMS

Youth Arrested in Montclair Said to Admit Accident and Flight.

When Policeman Charles Robbins, then a Newark police fledgling, was assigned to the Fifth Precinct the old-timers used to invent stories of sad duties they had performed in the "service." And until yesterday all their tales, designed to dull his cheerful enthusiasm for police work, were just yarns to Robbins. Now it is different—to Robbins and the old-timers.

It was just after 1 o'clock yesterday morning when Robbins, on his beat, and Policeman John McGrath, on his patrol, came to Bloomfield and Roseville Avenues, they halted for a short talk, when down Roseville Avenue a scream arose, piercingly shrill in that hour. Both policemen started toward its origin, when a man ran up and shouted:

"An old couple's been run over by an automobile."

While McGrath ran on, Robbins turned and made for a telephone box, where he notified police headquarters of the accident.

Robbins hung up the receiver and ran down to rejoin McGrath, who had picked up the elderly man and woman, placed them under a street light on the sidewalk, and in another machine was chasing the car that had struck them. Policeman Robbins saw this at a glance, and, notebook out, went over to the couple.

A beam of light was shining on the injured man's face and Robbins forgot the police routine—the man was his father, John A. Robbins of 627 North Seventh Street, and the woman was his mother. Stunned, Robbins ran into the avenue and halted a machine. He placed his father and mother in it and started for the Newark City Hospital. On the way the elder Robbins died in his son's arms. Mrs. Matilda Robbins was in a serious conditions there last night.

Meanwhile, McGrath in pursuit of the automobile he had seen speeding from the scene of the accident, arrived in Montclair, where, with other detectives from Newark, he began a canvass of the garages.

In the garage attached to the Hotel Montclair the police found a machine with a broken headlight and a badly twisted mudguard. The employes said the machine was owned by William Y. Bogle, Jr., son of a retired manufacturer, a guest at the hotel. He was arrested.

According to Newark Police Headquarters, young Bogle admitted that his car had struck the elderly couple and said that he ran away because he was frightened.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 23.—The total revenue of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railroad for 1919 was $61,825,876, an increase of $7,686,577 over 1918, according to the report of C. E. Schaff, receiver for the road, made public yesterday. Operating expenses totaled $56,986,985, an increase of $9,657,862 over the preceding year, the report shows. Despite the heavy troop movement in 1918 the report states that 37.5 per cent. more passengers were carried in 1919 than during the previous year.

HEARS SCHOOL EXAMINERS.

Commissioner Takes Testimony on Question of Ettinger's Authority

Deputy State Commissioner of Education Frank B. Gilbert gave a hearing yesterday at the Board of Education Hall on the question of whether the Board of Examiners is under the jurisdiction of the City Superintendent of Schools or independent of him and responsible only to the Board of Education. Dr. Ettinger maintained that as chief executive officer the law intended to place the Board of Examiners, as well as all other employes of the system, under him. The law removed him from the examining board, but it did not state that his powers over it were also lost. He said that he had the right to withhold any license granted by the examiners.

There were cases, Dr. Ettinger added, where teachers believed their examinations not to be just and appealed from the ratings given them. He declared that the examiners, in some instances, got statements from Principals as to the teachers' standing and used them in determining the status of the teachers, placing more trust in these statements than they did in the records given by his District and Associate Superintendents. It was a sort of secret report of which the teacher was not informed. This he considered unfair. He had ordered that all reports affecting a teacher should be made known to her.

Director of Lectures Ernest L. Crandall, District Superintendent Grace Strachan Forsythe and Principal Edward Mandel of the Federation of Teachers favored the point that the examiners were under the City Superintendent.

Frederick Z. Lewis, representing the Teachers' Welfare League, and Examiners J. C. Byrnes and W. L. Hervey contended that the law placed the examiners under the Board of Education only.

Commissioner Gilbert reserved his decision. He will return to Albany today.

Export Company Charges a Conspiracy to Take Away Its Business.

The Matthew Addy Company of 27 William Street was sued in the Supreme Court yesterday by the Kirby Coal, Iron, Marine Company of 511 Fifth Avenue for $2,000,000 damages. Other defendants are the Matthew Addy Steamship and Commerce Corporation and James A. Green, President; Benjamin N. Ford, Vice President; Richard M. Lambert, Treasurer, and William O. Heffernan, Lewis R. Smith, James man Pratt, Robert M. Green and Nelson B. Cramer.

The plaintiff alleges that it negotiated with the Addy Company to develop a plan to export iron, coal, coke and other commodities with a view to obtaining financial assistance. The plan embraced obtaining ship terminals in the United States and vessels of the leading coastwise steamship companies. It is alleged that pursuant to the plan suggested the defendants Cramer and Pratt were elected Directors of the plaintiff, Smith was made Assistant Secretary and Treasurer and Heffernan became General Manager. The plaintiff charges that after the individual defendants had learned the plaintiff's business secrets they conspired to destroy the plaintiff and its business in the interest of the Addy corporation and acquired the contracts for which the plaintiff had been negotiating.

PHONE RATE COMPROMISE.

Legislative Leaders Reported to Agree on Rebate Measure.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Sept. 23.—Senate and Assembly leaders were reported tonight, following a conference, to have agreed to a compromise bill affecting increased telephone rates. The compromise measure, which is slated for passage tomorrow, will call on the company to furnish a bond to insure rebates to subscribers in the event that contested rate increases are determined adversely to the corporation, but will permit present rate increases to stand without intervention of the Public Service Commission.

The bill, however, will, it is understood, bring the telephone companies within the jurisdiction of the Public Service Commission which would be required to pass on the fairness of future requested increases. The Public Service Commision would not be empowered to make any determination on recent rate increases.

DID NOT AID SONS, SAYS MRS. BERGDOLL

Was Sick and Wanted Boys to Surrender—Declares Buried Gold Is a Myth.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 23.—Mrs. Emma C. Bergdoll, James E. Romig, Charles A. Braun, Albert S. Mitchell and Harry Schuh, charged with conspiring to assist Grover and Erwin Bergdoll to evade the draft, took the stand today in their trial in the United States District Court. All denied that they had helped the fugitives in their flight. Mrs. Bergdoll, Braun and Romig declared that it would have been a comparatively easy task for the Government officers to have found them.

Erwin could be seen almost daily plowing with a tractor on his farm in Broomall, Delaware County, according to Braun, brother of the draft dodgers.

Mrs. Bergdoll said that Grover lived at her home in this city after the armistice was signed and took her motoring frequently. In giving her address she said that she had lived at the home owned by Grover ever since he had gone on his "vacation."

"I wanted my boys to surrender, and I sent Mr. Romig out to find them," testified Mrs. Bergdoll. "I gave him a letter to show Grover and Erwin if he found them, asking them to come back home and give themselves up, as I couldn't live any longer without them. The Government men were hounding me night and day, and I did not think they could be so cruel and unjust. I was sick with rheumatism and all worn out from worry, and I wanted the boys to come back."

Mrs. Bergdoll declared that Romig brought both Grover and Erwin back from Hagerstown, Md., after this and that she gave him $200 in cash for expenses.

"When Grover was arrested," Mrs. Bergdoll continued, "he had been in our Wynnefield house for several days. T. E. Furey, an automobile salesman of Baltimore, brought him there. I was going to bring Grover down to the Government men in a few days myself, after we had fixed up his money matters, but the agents came there first and took him.

"I never wanted the boys to go away. I told them to give themselves up, but they said they wanted time and they needed a rest. Both Grover and Erwin were always ill when they were away.

"I made no effort to keep either Grover or Erwin away from the Government people, when they were home, especially Grover. I went out in broad day many times with them, riding in the automobile.

"That stuff about the 'pot of gold' was wrong. I and Romig went to Washington for that gold. It was for me and not for Grover. It was my money that was changed. Grover nor any one else never got a penny of it. I still have it."

"I buried it," declared Mrs. Bergdoll. "It is buried yet. No one was with me when I buried it. I got the gold because I thought it would be good to have for a rainy day. I thought some time I would not be able to get good money when I wanted it."

Romig, in his testimony, denied he ever told any one that after he exchanged paper currency at the United States Treasury in Washington for $103,000 in gold he gave it to Grover. He said he and Mrs. Bergdoll motored to Washington on the two trips to the the Treasury to make the exchange.

"I suppose Mrs. Bergdoll wanted the gold because she thought the country was going bad," suggested Romig, when questioned why the paper money was converted into gold.

FINDS DENTON'S BODY IN LOS ANGELES CELLAR

Detective Digs Up Remains of Man Missing a Month in Sealed Box Under Tons of Earth.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 23.—Discovery of the body of Jacob Charles Denton, Los Angeles capitalist, who disappeared a month ago, buried under several tons of earth in a hermetically sealed box in the cellar of a house at 675 Catalina Street, today brought to light what the police characterized as the most weird murder mystery in the history of the city.

Physicians said Denton had been dead about a month. The body was found by a private detective engaged by Denton's attorney, Judge Avery, when Denton's continued absence aroused his suspicions. Judge Avery said Denton had been divorced and had a daughter, Frances Denton, living in Phoenix, Ariz.

Denton had left a will with Judge Avery, and when the latter wished to consult his client about the instrument he was unable to find him.

The house in which Denton's body was found was his property, but had been occupied by tenants for some time. The present tenant took the property through an agent about a month ago. The former tenants were the subject of search today.

The pistol with which, the police believe, Denton was shot to death, the room where he is believed to have been slain, and letters drawing attention to three women for whom the police are searching, were found within a few hours of the time Denton's body was discovered.

SIX BURN BRITISH FLAG.

Woman and Five Men In Auto Fire Theatre Decoration.

A woman and five men rode in an automobile to the entrance of Hurtig & Seamon's Theatre, 253 West 125th Street, at 8 o'clock last evening and set fire to a British flag, which was one of a cluster of allied flags forming decorations in front of the theatre in anticipation of "One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street Week," which begins next Monday.

According to stories told to Policeman Hanrahan of the West 123d Street Station, one of the six carried a long pole at the end of which was a hook, and this was used to bend the staff of the British flag toward the sidewalk. Then, it was said, the woman and a man lighted matches, which they applied to the flag, and the man with the hook released it when it began to burn.

The policeman was standing at Seventh Avenue, about 150 feet from the theatre, but he knew nothing about the burning until George Delaney, a steamship engineer, who said his home was in Dardon, Pa., ran up to him and asked: "Are you going to permit such an outrage?" at the same time pointing to the burning flag. Hanrahan ran to the theatre. Half a dozen men and women told him the woman and her companions jumped into their automobile and hurried to Eighth Avenue, where they disappeared. Employes of the theatre quenched the flames before they could spread to the other decorations on the theatre. The policeman obtained a good description of the automobile party.

At midnight Delaney walked up to Policeman Hanrahan at Seventh Avenue and 125th Street and insisted the policeman could have prevented the burning of the flag. Hanrahan ordered him to move on, and when Delaney continued to argue arrested him on a charge of disorderly conduct.

SHOW FEDERAL AIDS HAD EXPENSES PAID

that receipts for his book, "Republicanism in 1920," amounted so far to $73,675; Dr. P. P. Claxton, Commissioner of Education, who declared that his department was strictly neutral in the pending election campaign; Harry Levey of New York, who said that he and Bernard M. Baruch were partners in the forthcoming film production of "Uncle Sam of Freedom Ridge," and Robert T. Scripps of the Scripps-McRae Newspaper Association, who declared that the Scripps interests were heart and soul for Cox and were doing all they could to bring about his election.

Nebecker on Government Orders.

Fees was called at the afternoon session and handed to Senator Kenyon a number of official papers which proved to be the Pacific Coast expense vouchers of Messrs. Nebecker, Stewart, Montrose and Hoover. The first voucher placed in evidence was that of Mr. Nebecker. He left Washington, June 8, last, and proceeded to Salt Lake City, where he remained a few days and then went to San Francisco, arriving there on June 20. He remained in San Francisco until July 7.

"Do these vouchers show that Mr. Nebecker was on oficial business when he went to the Pacific Coast in June?" Senator Kenyon asked.

Senator Kenyon then proceeded to read into the record some of the expenses itemized by Mr. Nebecker. These items showed that his taxicab fares did not average more than $1 each, tips to station, Pullman and hotel porters averaged 25 cents and he charged per diem expenses, exclusive of subsistence, at 4 per day, or $60 for fifteen days. The voucher showed that during part of the time Mr. Nebecker was on official duty, and part of it on leave. Mr. Fees said he did not have the transportation voucher but would try to have it for the committee on Saturday.

The next expense account placed in evidence was that of Assistant Attorney General Stewart. Mr. Stewart left Washington June 10 and arrived in Seattle June 20, leaving later in the same day for San Francisco.

The voucher stated that Mr. Stewart had gone to Seattle on Government business to confer regarding the eSattle shipyard cases. As in the case of Mr. Nebecker, the witness did not have the expense sheet showing transportation charges incurred by Mr. Stewart and he said he would try to produce it on Saturday. Exclusive of railroad charges, the vouchers showed that Mr. Stewart's expenses were $104.25, while Mr. Nebecker spent 3103.15.

Mr. Stewart, who is Assistant Attorney General in charge of the adjustment of shipbuilding cases, said tonight that he had gone to Seattle on official business which also took him to Chicago and San Francisco. He said he did as much as he could in Seattle for a week, and, because of the absence of Mr. Schlessinger, who represented the Government in the suits, went to San Francisco to complete his work.

Mr. Stewart said that Mr. Nebecker went west on an oil case involving $22,000,000, and that he, too, had taken his leave after he had finished his official duties, and spent a few days at his own expense in San Francisco.

Pullman Charge for Montrose.

The Montrose vouchers showed a total expense incurred of $521.07, one of the items being a Pullman charge from San Francisco to New York of $131. There was also a Pullman charge for the trip from Harrisburg to San Francisco. Senator Reed remarked that there appeared to be a "drawing room" somewhere in the Montrose vouchers.

Mr. Montrose, it was testified, accompanied Attorney General Palmer, and it was suggested that he may have shared a drawing room with Mr. Palmer.

"What was Mr. Montrose's business on that trip?" Senator Kenyon asked.

"He went with Mr. Palmer in a secretarial capacity," replied Mr. Fees.

The Hoover vouchers were next read into the evidence by Senator Kenyon. Mr. Fees explained that Mr. Hoover was one of the officials charged with controlling extreme radical activities in this country. He left Washington June 20.

"Was there a Red outbreak on the Pacific Coast about that time?" asked Senator Kenyon.

Mr. Fees replied that so far as he knew there was not. The vouchers stated that Mr. Hoover went West on official business, and his expenses were about the same as those incurred by Mr. Stewart and Mr. Nebecker.

When informed that his name had been brought into the investigation Mr. Hoover tonight gave the following statement to THE NEW YORK TIMES:

"All I can say is that any inference that I went to San Francisco for political purposes or that the vouchers for my journey were for other than strictly official business is without foundation. I left Washington before the convention and went to Cleveland, then to El Paso, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle, Spokane and Dubuque, and returned to Washington by way of Chicago. My journey to the West was entirely official.

"I was in San Francisco three days. While there I attended the convention only one day and then for only three-quarters of an hour. I was engaged wholly in conference with officials of the department on strictly departmental work in connection with the investigations of Red activities while in the West and in San Francisco. I took occasion to make this trip in connection with the investigation being made by the Bureau of Investigation into the activities of the I. W. W. and other radical organizations.

"At no time was I in consultation with any persons engaged in political activities. While in San Francisco I saw Mr. Garvan but once. I had been away from San Francisco one week and was en route to Chicago when Cox was nominated."

The name of Floyd R. Harrison, assistant to Secretary Meredith, was brought into the case by a voucher supplied to the committee by Zappone. Mr. Harrison left Washington June 18 and on his way to San Francisco stopped in Chicago and Des Moines, arriving in San Francisco June 25. He remained there until July 9.

His vouchers stated that he made the journey on official business and Mr. Zappone explained that Mr. Harrison had gone as secretary to Mr. Meredith. His expensese were about the same as those incurred by other officials who went West on official business.

Mr. Harrison, when asked tonight for a statement regarding the mention of his name in the testimony, said:

"I went to San Francisco on official business at the direction of Secretary Meredith. There was nothing political whatever connected with my trip."

"What is your business?" Senator Kenyon asked.

"I am the man who is producing 'Uncle Sam of Freedom Ridge,'" Mr. Levey answered, and the crowd in the room laughed.

Mr. Levey said that Mr. Baruch was his partner in the enterprise, and that so far Mr. Baruch had advanced $25,000 toward the expenses incurred in filming the picture. Mr. Baruch, he added, has agreed to go "fifty-fifty" with him on the venture. It will cost, he said, about $75,000 to produce the picture, which will be shown in New York for the first time next Sunday night.

"Is the Democratic Committee going to get any of the proceeds?" Mr. Levey was asked.

"Not a cent. It is purely a private business transaction," he answered.

"In that event," replied Mr. Levey, "Mr. Baruch and I will lose our money."

The witness admitted that Mr. Baruch had been interested in the picture because it is in a large part an appeal for the League of Nations, but he also said:

In reply to a question as to whether Mr. Baruch had asked him to hurry the production so as to get it on the screen as far in advance of the election as possible, Mr. Levey said that he thought Mr. Baruch had said he would like to see it produced before the election. Mr. Baruch will probably be called to the stand tomorrow to testify further regarding "Uncle Sam of Freedom Ridge."

Mr. Barnes in his testimony repated his assertions of yesterday that the book, "Republicanism in 1920," was purely a business undertaking in which the Republican National Committee was in no way interested. He admitted that the book was pro-Republican. Mr. Barnes promised to send the committee a complete list of all persons who have subscribed for it, together with the amount of money subscribed by each.

What purported to be an appeal for subscriptions to the book, which appeal was based on purely political grounds, was shown to Mr. Barnes. He said he had never seen the appeal before and seriously doubted if it was genuine.

"I believe," said Mr. Barnes, "that a fraud has been perpetrated upon somebody."

Commissioner of Education Claxton testified at length regarding the activities of his department. There was shown an editorial in a recent issue of School Life, a Government publication, laudatory of Governor Cox and based, in part, on a letter written by Governor Cox to Dr. Claxton. Dr. Claxton said that the editorial had been printed while he was on vacation and that on his return he ordered it "killed." The paper, however, had gone to press and it was impossible to suppress the editorial.

Senator Kenyon expressed the conviction that Dr. Claxton was not allowing politics to interfere in the management of the Bureau of Education.

Scripps Questioned on Cox Backing.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 (Associated Press).—The distribution by the Newspaper Enterprise Association of what was described as "propaganda" for Governor Cox was inquired into today by the Senate Committee investigating campaign expenditures.

Robert P. Scripps, editor of the Scripps newspapers, which, he said, numbered twenty-one, with a circulation of 1,250,000, was examined. Replying to questions, he said that his father, E. C. Scripps, owned the majority stock in the United Press News Service, and he identified the Newspaper Enterprise Association as an "allied organization."

Mr. Scripps told the committee he had no knowledge of a letter written by Governor Cox urging exemption for himself or his brother from the draft during the war. He declared that he had never heard of such a letter until it appeared in newspaper accounts of the committee's hearings at Chicago. Mr. Scripps said that his interest and that of his family in the election of Governor Cox was purely "public interest."

Chairman Kenyon introduced a quantity of printed matter, on pink sheets, sent out by the Newspaper Enterprise Association.

"Yes," replied the witness.

"Are you receiving any money from the Democratic National Committee for this?" Senator Kenyon asked.

"None."

"Wish you would tell us about this oligarchy," asked Senator Reed.

"Most of the newspapers using the term refer to Senators Penrose, Smoot, Lodge and others," Mr. Scripps replied.

"That's a wide term—others," Senator Reed said. "Whom do they boss?"

"They are supposed to boss the Senate."

"A man who says that doesn't know about the Senate," said Mr. Reed.

"I think it means they control the Republican Party," Mr. Scripps continued.

"I just want to say that I consider this talk about 'Senate oligarchy' is rot, whether it comes from Presidential candidates or not," said Senator Reed.

Letters Sent to Office Holders.

A phase of alleged Federal political activity taken up was that involving charges that Postmasters and other officials had been solicited for funds by the Democratic National Committee. Loren C. Talbot, who described himself as a "letter writer" for the committee, denied the use of any special form of letter for Postmasters.

"If they got letters, it was just as other Democrats got them," he said, and added that because of postal regulations letters of solicitation addressed to Federal officers had been mailed for delivery at their home addresses.

Talbot denied that a list for the 250,000 or 300,000 letters sent out had been obtained from Liberty Loan contributions as recorded with the Government. The maximum sum asked in any letter was $1,000, he said, and he thought that about $200,000 had been subscribed as a result of this solicitation.

O'DOWD CAPTURES BOUT FROM LEWIS

Mike O'Dowd of St. Paul, former middleweight champion, easily outpointed Ted (Kid) Lewis of England, former welterweight title holder, in their twelve-round bout last night at the Jersey City Baseball Park. The St. Paul boxer, displaying form which marked an improvement over any he had previously shown in this vicinity, clearly outpointed his rival in ten of the twelve rounds. The first and third sessions were even. Lewis did not win a round.

The Briton was a disappointment. His vaunted cleverness had deserted him, as also had his speed of hand and foot and his ability to hit hard. The Lewis who engaged O'Dowd last night was far below the standard of the Lewis who at one time lifted the welterweight title from Jack Britton and held his own against the country's leading middleweights. The Briton was slow and comparatively awkward and was as wild as a rusty garden gate. He had no direction and as a result landed but few solid and effective smashes.

Conversely, O'Dowd was somewhat of a revelation. The former middleweight champion battered his way to victory, but it was not alone in this department that O'Dowd showed superiority. He actually outboxed the once clever Lewis, beat Lewis to the jab repeatedly and hooked and cuffed his rival almost at will.

A Well-Planned Battle.

O'Dowd fought a well-planned battle throughout. In the early rounds he was careful and directed his attack chiefly to his rival's stomach. Lewis sought to keep the fighting at long range, but O'Dowd perpetually bored in and dealt out terrific punishment with both hands. After the fifth round, Lewis started to show the effects of the body punishment he had experienced earlier and slowed up perceptibly. O'Dowd, fresh as a cucumber, never varied his style, but increased his pace and actually smothered Lewis with jolting blows in the latter rounds, when Lewis was showing unmistakable signs of wearying.

In the tenth, eleventh and twelfth rounds O'Dowd worked like a beaver for a knockout, and there were several instances when it appeared that Lewis must collapse under the bombardment of blows from every direction. O'Dowd fought like a tiger unleashed, dealing a rain of blows which would have caused a less sturdy and experienced foe to wilt. Lewis, however, called into service all his ring generalship and managed to last the limit. The Briton fought through the last two rounds with his face smeared in blood and in evident distress, but his experience pulled him through.

Lewis Tires Toward End.

Frequently Lewis sought refuge in clinches after being rushed ruthlessly to the ropes before his rival's mad assault. Near the bell in the fourth O'Dowd shook Lewis with a right to the jaw which had the crowd yelling wildly for the former middleweight champion. Lewis tired badly in the succeeding rounds and was always glad of an opportunity to hold. O'Dowd was a veritable wildcat in action and refused to be forestalled in his battering attack.

Through the next six rounds Lewis waged a losing battle. O'Dowd refused to relent in his attack and forced his opponent before him repeatedly with a shower of rights and lefts which rained on Lewis's face and stomach alternately. Plainly Lewis showed he was tired, for he missed repeatedly and was short with other leads, while O'Dowd beat him to the jab frequently. Each round after the fifth was but a repetition of the preceding chapter. O'Dowd, with head lowered like a bull, rushed steadily at his rival, disregarding entirely the feeble attempts which Lewis made at staying the attack. The British boxer was absolutely outclassed, and only his experience and ring craft enabled him to weather the storm. O'Dowd, once Lewis showed traces of weakening under the punishment, increased his efforts in an attempt to score a decisive victory.

On Verge of Knockout.

From the fifth to the tenth round O'Dowd pounded Lewis about the ring without sustaining an effective return. Lewis made attempts to land while in retreat, but the blows lacked steam and were easily brushed aside by the fiery St. Paul Irishman. Lewis made one concerted dying stand in the tenth, but it was only a flash in the pan, and soon disappeared in the face of O'Dowd's almost reckless assault.

In the eleventh and twelfth rounds Lewis had all he could do to withstand the attack. The Briton was on the verge of a knockout, and his condition showed it plainly. His face smeared with blood, Lewis presented a pitiable sight as, with unsteady step, he retreated before the terrific assault of the young St. Paul boxer, who allowed no letup. In the eleventh round O'Dowd landed flush with a terrific right to Lewis's jaw which almost sent the Briton through the ropes in his corner. The crowd was up in an instant yelling madly for a knockout, but O'Dowd, in his excitement, was unequal to the task, for his blows lacked serious direction and finishing power. Through the twelfth round O'Dowd continued the terrific battering on Lewis in a last attempt to register a knockout victory, but though he was weary and sore from the punishment he had assimilated, Lewis retained his feet to the final bell.

Jackson Outclasses Fitzgerald.

Willie Jackson, Bronx lightweight, administered a severe beating to Ned Fitzgerald, Charlie Harvey's Australian importation, in the semi-final bout of eight rounds. Only the indomitable courage of the lad from the land of the kangaroo and his ability to recover quickly from terrific blows enabled him to hear the clang of the bell in the final round. Three times Jackson floored his opponent with crushing rights to the jaw, but twice Fitzgerald regained his feet after a count of nine. On the third trip to the canvas, the bell came to the Antipodean's rescue.

Early in the bout it was patent that Fitzgerald was no match for the slashing, crushing Jackson. The Bronx lad worked without let-up from the tap of the first gong and hammered Fitzgerald mercilessly.

A crowd of about 12,000 turned out for the card. This was somewhat below expectations. Advance indications pointed to an overflow gathering. Instead, there were yawning gaps in the grandstand of the open-air arena. Directly back of what is ordinarily home plate there loomed conspicuously many unoccupied box seats. The bleachers and ringside chairs held their utmost in human burdens, however.

Jimmy Sullivan of Hoboken, former amateur lightweight champion, and Joe Stacey of Yorkville opened the show with an eight-round contest and Sullivan easily carried off the honors in every round. Stacey showed little but an ability to assimilate punishment. Sullivan floored his rival with a piledriving right in the opening round and Stacey stayed down for a count of six. Arising, he was subjected to a hail of blows, while Sullivan worked ceaselessly for a knockout.

Frankie Burns, veteran Jersey City featherweight, had a shade the better of Charlie Beecher, another product of Manhattan's amateur ring, in the second bout, which went eight dull rounds. The contest was comparatively uninteresting. Both boxers marred their work by continual clinching. Burns, however, was the lighter offender in this respect and in addition carried the fighting through most of the bout. He pounded Beecher hard about the stomach in close quarters.

CARPENTIER TO BOX LEVINSKY IN JERSEY

Frenchman's Match with American Rival Transferred—To be Held Oct. 12.

Georges Carpentier, premier heavyweight boxer of Europe and a contender for Jack Dempsey's world's title, will make his American ring début in New Jersey. The popular French heavyweight will engage Battling Levinsky, leading American light heavyweight, in a bout for the world's light heavyweight championship, under the auspices of the International Sporting Club and The Arena, at the Jersey City Baseball Park Columbus Day, Oct. 12.

The contest, originally scheduled for Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, but prohibited through an edict of the Boxing Commission, was awarded to Jersey City yesterday following the decision of the International Sporting Club, reached through a canvass of its 1,740 founder members. The vote was taken on the question of holding the match in Jersey City or delaying it until November, when it could be promoted here indoors, met a response from the I. S. C. members which showed the overwhelming sentiment of eighty-eight per cent. in favor of the Jersey City proposition. Accordingly it was announced last night in a statement issued by the I. S. C. officials following the counting of the votes that the match would be held there.

The exact details of the arrangements between the International Sporting Club and President Jack Frost of The Arene, were not divulged. It is understood, however, that the arrangement is similar to that which the I. S. C. had with the Newark Sportsmen's Club in the conduct of the Wills-Fulton bout in Newark.

The I. S. C. statement announcing the transfer follows:

"The votes of the majority of the members of the International Sporting Club have been received, and the result shows an overwhelming proportion of 88 per cent. in favor of staging the match in Jersey City. The great Carpentier-Levinsky contest for the world's light-heavyweight championship, therefore, will be staged as originally scheduled on Columbus Day, Oct. 12 next."

WHITE SOX CAPTURE FIRST FROM INDIANS

Cleveland Is Completely Outclassed and Loses Opening Game of Big Series, 10-3.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 23.—The Cleveland team today met Chicago in the first of a series of three games that is expected to decide the American League championship, and broke down under the terrific attack of the White Sox, losing 10 to 3. Chicago outplayed the Indians in every department of the game, outhitting the locals fifteen to eight, making but one error to three for Cleveland, and stealing three bases, while Cleveland stole none. As a result Cleveland now leads Chicago by but half a game. It was Chicago's seventh consecutive victory and Cleveland's first defeat in eight games.

For three innings Cleveland looked as if it were going to battle Chicago to a finish. The Indians then were leading, 1 to 0, having scored a run in the first inning as the result of an error by Risberg. In the fourth inning the Cleveland machine began to crack. Catcher O'Neill was guilty of an error of judgment that allowed Chicago to score once and tie the count.

One of the largest week-day crowds in the history of League Park witnessed the contest. Every available space in the park was taken with the exception of right field, where Manager Speaker protested against permitting the fans to gather. However, only three balls were caught by the right fielders.

The presence of the crowd in left field started the downfall of the Indians, as Jackson received credit for a two-base hit in starting the sixth inning that would have been an easy out for left fielder Evans had the public not been allowed to take possession of that part of the field. Errors by Bagby and Wambsgans on bunts by Felsch and J. Collins followed. Risberg singled and Chicago added three runs, enough to win the game.

Bagby retired in the seventh to permit Nunamaker to bat for him, and Chicago proceeded to score five runs in the eighth off Caldwell and Uhle, who came to the rescue. After the first batter had been retired in the eighth, the next four hit Caldwell safely, two for doubles. Uhle was welcomed with two more hits before he got his bearings.

Although he split his finger in the fourth inning, Dick Kerr pitched masterly ball throughout, holding the Indians to eight hits, five of which were garnered by Gardner and Evans.

Jackson, Felsch and Schalk led in the attack on the Cleveland pitchers, Jackson making two doubles and a single, Felsch a double and two singles and Schalk three singles. Every member of the White Sox except J. Collins made at least one hit.

"Babe Ruth Band" at Polo Grounds.

The boys' band from St. Mary's Industrial School in Baltimore, which accompanied the Yankees on their recent whirl through the Western circuit, and has come to be known as the "Babe Ruth Band," will play at every clash of the Yankees-Senators series which begins today.

Two More Victories Will Assure Brooklyn Pennant

Neither Brooklyn nor the Giants played yesterday, and the race for the National League pennant remains unchanged. This means that if they win two of their six remaining games the Robins will be beyond the reach of New York and will clinch the flag. Since five of these six games are scheduled with the Giants, in order to win two Brooklyn would have to defeat the Giants at least once. The Giants have eight more games to play. If the Robins should win two and the Giants should win all except one of the Brooklyn series the standing would be:

New York	90	64	.584

If Brooklyn should win but one game from the Giants and lose its five others, the best the Giants could do by winning all of their games, except one with Brooklyn, would be to tie for first place. The clubs then would stand:

	Won.	Lost.	P. C.
New York	90	64	.584

In the American League, Chicago's victory over Cleveland yesterday tightened up the race, but at the same time it improved the Indians' chances somewhat by reducing the number of games still to be played by the rival teams. Cleveland has ten more games to play. Chicago has seven. If the Indians split even the White Sox would have to win five of their seven games. The standing then would be:

	Won.	Lost.	P. C.
Cleveland	96	58	.623

If the White Sox defeat Cleveland again today, Chicago will go into the lead in the race by a fraction of a percentage point. It would be necessary to carry the percentage to five figures. The clubs would stand:

	Won.	Lost.	P. C.

PIRATES WIN THIRD IN ROW FROM REDS

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 23.—Pittsburgh made it three straight from Cincinnati today, winning by a score of 4 to 0, due to the excellent pitching of Cooper and timely hitting by Grimm, Barnhart and Tierney. The locals bunched three hits in the fourth and three in the sixth, which produced all of their runs.

PHILLIES WIN TWO FROM BOSTON TEAM

Break Losing Streak of Seven Games by Beating Braves Twice, 7 to 6 and 6 to 1.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 23.—Philadelphia broke its losing streak of seven straight by winning two games from Boston today, 7 to 6 and 6 to 1.

Stengel made a home run in each game, his drive over the rightfield wall tieing the score in the eighth inning of the first game. In the second game his clout which bounded into the left-field bleachers scored Fletcher ahead of him for the first two local runs. Pitcher McQuillen scored Boston's only run in this game with a home run liner into the left-field bleachers.

Wilson's Entry, Strong Favorite, Finishes Far Behind Redstone Stable's Georgie in Mile Race.

Running with the best field of two-year-old fillies that has been sent to the post during the present meeting Harry Payne Whitney's Crocus, twice victor over the great Careful, proved an easy winner of the Beldame Handicap at five furlongs at Aqueduct yesterday. She was never seriously threatened for the winner's share of the purse and led home E. F. Whitney's By Jiminy by five lengths. The Foreign Stable's Ten Lec was third among the nine which accepted the issue.

Crocus is one of the numerous juveniles that trailed in behind Step Lightly in the Futurity and in that event she finished better than her more noted stablemate, Prudery. Yesterday she appeared to have but one serious rival, that being Ten Lec, which had displayed excellent form at Empire City, but had not run since then. These two had been assigned 118 pounds each, but in the running of the race Crocus displayed far better speed than Ten Lec at all stages.

The victory was an especially popular one, for Crocus had been made a strong favorite and favorites had not been doing very well. The Whitney filly went to the post a 4 to 5 choice. By Jiminy proved the surprise, having been quoted 12 to 1 and as good as 4 to 1 for the place.

Crocus broke quickly, assumed the lead at once and under a good ride by Ensor steadily increased her advantage until at the finish she was going easily while the others were struggling for the other positions. Ten Lec displayed fine speed once she got under way, but she was slow in leaving the barrier and after getting in behind horses was forced to go wide at the elbow turn. This cost her so much ground that her rush at the end only got her into third place with a small margin to spare.

By Jiminy Finishes Fast.

By Jiminy had better racing luck and was one of the contenders all the way, though being in close quarters at the turn. She managed to save ground there and, finishing with a rush, held Ten Lec safely for second position. Conine, which was an added starter, failed to show much speed, and the others were badly outrun. J. H. Rosseter scratched his Valley of the Moon, a fleet filly which had run one impressive race at Saratoga, and left his chances to Scotland Yet, which finished a bad last. Valley of the Moon would have carried top weight of 123 pounds had she gone to the post.

The Beldame Handicap was preceded by a mile test which resulted in a hard blow to the form players, when R. T. Wilson, Jr.'s, Wyoming, an 11 to 20 choice, was soundly beaten by the Redstone Stable's Georgie. Wyoming was the heaviest backed favorite of the day. There were but four starters in the race, Albert A. and Anniversary being the others, and they finished third and last respectively.

It was a very easy victory for Georgie. Callahan rushed him away from the barrier after getting much the best of the start, and at once took a lead of two lengths. Ensor rushed up with Wyoming and at the end of the backstretch was within a length of the leader, but despite his best efforts he could not keep up. At the turn into the stretch Callahan let the leader have his head and Georgie drew away to win by six lengths. Wyoming was never threatened for second place and shook off Albert A. at the head of the stretch to lead him home by six lengths. Anniversary was outclassed and was outrun all the way.

The steeplechase event, which had but three starters, went to J. R. McDaniel's Fair Mac, which scored easily over Surf and Prince Hal II. Fair Mac and Surf put up a good contest for a turn and a half of the field, but Fair Mac was full of running and in spite of amateurish handling drew away at the end to win by ten lengths. Prince Hal II. was just able to get home and was never up with the leaders.

Snapdragon II. Is Winner.

Snapdragon II., which a year ago was a reliable performer over long distances, scored his first victory of the year in the fifth race at a mile and five-sixteenths when he took the measure of Sundial II., Shillelagh II. and King Agrippa. The distance was to the liking of the winner and after trailing his field for half the distance he moved up rounding the turn and in the stretch run easily disposed of Sundial, which was his only contender in the final furlong. Shillelagh was raced into submission in the first mile, while King Agrippa was apparently overweighted.

Riddle, Ross and Kilmer Are To Discuss Big Race Today

It is expected that a definite decision will be reached today regarding the proposed special race with Man O'War, Sir Barton and Exterminator as contenders. Samuel D. Riddle, Commander J. K. L. Ross and W. S. Kilmer plan to meet this afternoon to consider the conditions for the race to be held at Windsor, Ont., early next month. It is not believed there will be any hitch over the distance, a mile and a quarter, though Mr. Kilmer has said he preferred a greater distance for his horse.

CHASSEUR IS FIRST AT HÁVRE DE GRACE

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., Sept. 23.—The Sinepuxent Purse, at a mile and seventy yards, which was the feature at Havre de Grace this afternoon, resulted in a victory for M. J. Murphy's Chasseur. The colt got up in a driving finish to win from G. W. Foreman's Columbine by a length and a half. Gath was third among the six which went to the post.

The defeat of Columbine, which was the public choice, was probably due to the haste with which Jockey Obert rushed up with his mount. Obert made his move too early and, when challenged in the stretch by Chasseur, had little left and was tired. Chasseur was doing his best at the end after being hard ridden to get into the lead.

Ral Parr's Ireland won the steeplechase easily from Full Cry, C. S. Grayson and others. Though caught in a pocket, Ireland went around his field and won easing up. Of the nine starters two failed to finish. Katherine Harlan fell and Jack of Spades lost his rider.

The summaries:

JACK HARE, JR., IS WINNER.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Sept. 23.—The Booneboro Purse, at six furlongs, was won here today by W. E. Applegate's Jack Hare, Jr., which scored a close decision over J. N. Goode's Ginger in a driving finish, winning by a nose. Woodtrap was third.

The winner was kept close to the pace and moved into the lead at the head of the stretch, but was so hard pressed that he had to do his best to win. He raced head and head with Ginger for a sixteenth of a mile. It was a two-horse race all the way, for Woodtrap was third, five lengths back, and the others were never contenders.

The summaries:

LONG SHOTS TAKE HARNESS BATTLES

Jay Brook and Mightell Lead Favored Horses in Circuit Races at Columbus.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Sept. 23.—While the failure of the free-for-all pace to fill left but four class races on the program for today the competition was keen and favorites were beaten in two of the four events.

Just David in the second division of the 2:18 trot was one favorite to win. He took the first two heats and in his middle mile trotted in 2:05¼. Kilo Watts was a contender in each of these heats and when Just David turned unsteady in the third trip the former won handily.

Jay Brook, selling for $75 on tickets calling for $700, went over a straight heat winner in the 2:09 pace. J. W. S. was the heavily played favorite. Jay Brook paced two of his three heats in 2:03¼.

The biggest surprise was in the first division of the 2:18 trot. Mightell, selling in the field for $10 on $140 tickets, lost the first heat, finishing ninth, and then won the second and third heats handily. The final event, the 2:07 trot, was a battle between Dr. Nick and the favorite, Millie Irwin, the latter winning.

Prince Loree, 2:03¼ trotting and 2:02½ pacing, worked a mile today at the pacing gait in 2:00 flat.

VANDEVENTER NET VICTOR.

Eliminates Van Vliet in Semi-Finals of Hoboken Tennis.

Ludlow Vandeventer avenged his brother Philip's defeat of the previous Sunday at the hands of Captain R. C. Van Vliet yesterday afternoon in the Hoboken Tennis Club's tournament at Castle Point. He defeated the Hoboken club expert in rather surprisingly decisive fashion, in straight sets, scored 6—2, 6—3. This was in the semi-final round. Vandeventer had to travel his fastest pace to turn the trick, however, for it was not so much a case of Van Vliet's being off form as it was that his opponent's playing was exceptionally effective.

Through a match in the round before the semi-finals, Fred Anderson, the tallest member of the famous Brooklyn tennis family, advanced at the expense of Percy L. Kynaston, defeating the Nassau and Queens County champion in straight sets, 6—4, 6—2. It seemed as though nothing were beyond Anderson's reach. He was especially successful in assuming the offensive at the net. Most of the rallies were short and sharp, with Anderson having the better luck in working his opponent out of position. The first set was productive of the keenest sort of play and the second fell little short of it.

Only one match was played in women's singles. Miss Marie Wagner gained a well earned victory over Mrs. Ernest Weiner, taking the first set at love and then running through a close session at 6—4.

The summaries:

Men's Singles—Sixth Round—Fred C. Anderson defeated P. L. Kynaston, 6—4, 6—2.

Mixed Doubles—Second Round—Mr. and Mrs. Paul Martin defeated Mrs. M. B. Hirsch and Kenneth Johnson, 6—4, 6—3; Mrs. Percy Wilbourne and Ingo Hartmann defeated Mrs. Ingo Hartmann and Alfred D. Hammett, 6—4, 6—2.

Third Round—Miss Marie Wagner and Albert J. Ostendorf won from Mrs. James McMillen and F. H. Devitt by default.

LAD IS UNSEATED, BUT WINS A RIBBON

MINEOLA, L. I., Sept. 23.—Frankie Hitchcock, the 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hitchcock of Westbury earned considerable applause at the Horse Show, being held in conjunction with the County Fair here today, when he resumed riding after being thrown from his mount at one of the fences in the jumping class. Young Hitchcock was riding Cavalier. The competition was hurdling four five-feet fences. At one of the jumps Cavalier refused and young Hitchcock was thrown on to the fence. He clung to the top rail and then slid half way down, when a groom got him and replaced him on Cavalier. With a fresh start Cavalier made a clean jump. Young Hitchcock won second prize in the event, his mother gaining first prize with Ketoh.

Defeat Mrs. Waring and Devitt in Feature Match of Jersey Tennis.

The semi-finals were reached in the tournament at the Englewood Field Club for the mixed doubles championship of New Jersey yesterday afternoon. Miss Gertrude Hopper and Earl Fink were successful in what was, in many ways, the best played match of the day, winning from Mrs. S. H. Waring and F. H. Devitt, 2—6, 6—1, 6—1.

The present Jersey titleholders, Mrs. A. G. Morris and Alexander Iler, passed out of the picture yesterday in the lower half of the tournament, losing to Miss Margaret Kidder and Mr. Kidder in another match that had many hard fought rallies. This, too, went to three sets and the scores were 6—4, 3—6, 6—1.

The summaries:

Second Round—Mrs. S. H. Waring and F. H. Devitt defeated Mr. and Mrs. De Saussur, 6—1, 6—0; Mrs. D. C. Mills and Gerald Emerson defeated Mrs. Lawrence and Murray Oliphant, 7—5, 6—3; Miss Margaret Kidder and Mr. Kidder defeated Mrs. A. G. Morris and Alexander Iler, 6—4, 3—6, 6—1.

Third Round—Mrs. Mills and Mr. Emerson defeated Miss Helen McAuflan and Mr. Piersoll, 6—1, 6—1; Miss Gertrude Hopper and Earl Fink defeated Mrs. S. H. Waring and F. H. Devitt, 2—6, 6—1, 6—1.

INCOGNITI THRASH NEW YORK ELEVEN

Visiting British Cricketers Complete Tour with Victory by Innings and 141 Runs.

An overwhelming victory for the Incogniti cricketers of England, by an innings and 141 runs was the outcome of the second day's play in the international match with the picked eleven representing All-New York on the grounds of the Staten Island Cricket and Tennis Club, at Livingston yesterday.

The New Yorkers, after having fielded 377 runs for their opponents the day before, went twice to the wickets yesterday. In their first attempt they compiled 147, thanks largely to an invaluable contribution by Raymond Comacho, who scored 59 by cricket that was at times really brilliant.

The New Yorkers' second occupancy of the crease yielded only 89. With few exceptions, they were utterly unable to cope with the deadly bowling of Major G. H. M. Cartwright of the British Army, who, in the first innings, had made the best showing by taking 4 wickets for 34 runs. Not content with this, he followed up the good work in the second innings by dismissing eight of the Metropolitan batsmen for 37 runs. His average for the 12 wickets, therefore, was a little less than six runs apiece.

The match concluded yesterday was the eighth and last of the Incogniti tour in the United States. Winning it gave the Britishers a record to date of seven victories and one draw. Before sailing for home from here next Thursday they will contest one more match against a Canadian team tomorrow and Monday at Toronto, whither they depart this afternoon. Last night, the visitors were the guests at a dinner tendered to them at the New York Athletic Club by Edgar O. Challenger, President of the New York and New Jersey Cricket Association.

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Sept. 23.—After waiting for the greater part of the afternoon for a breeze, the yachtsmen who are gathered here for the special series of races of the Seawanhaka-Corinthian Yacht Club managed to sail their first race today. When a start finally was made the wind was south southwest. It kept growing stronger as the afternoon advanced, and by sundown, when the yachts were finishing, it was blowing a good ten knots.

Owing to the lateness of the start, John C. Work, Chairman of the Race Committee, picked short courses for all the classes. The 40-foot division of the New York Yacht Club was only over a course of 11⅞ miles. The winner was Monsoon, the property of H. M. Strachan. In this division Zilph, the property of J. E. Hayes, was disqualified for sailing the wrong course.

WEST POINT RIDERS MAKE GREAT FIGHT

Emerge Victorious in Seventh Chukker of Junior Title Game—Plan Early Start in Final.

Two things of unusual interest in the polo world occurred yesterday. One was the defeat of the West Point team in the Junior National Championship semi-finals, on the Meadow Brook field, by only one goal, whereas it was generally prophesied before the game that the Bryn Mawr four would win by at least half a dozen goals. The score was 7 to 6.

The other unusual thing was the decision on the part of the polo officials to start the final game on Saturday, between the Bryn Mawr quartet and the Foxhunters of the same organization, at half past three o'clock instead of at quarter of five as has been the custom not only during the present series, but since the game was first introduced in this country. Late starts have been traditional in the sport, but on the ground that the public would not sacrifice a timely dinner for any game the earlier start was decided upon.

As regards the game between the Army and Bryn Mawr, the latter, had they been playing on handicaps, would have had to allow the Army 9 goals, so, playing scratch, all hands expected the Pennsylvanias to have no trouble in walking away from the sons of Mars, who, by the way, were nowhere nearly so well mounted as were the civilians. There were speedy army ponies but they did not compare with the others in checking, and the good showing made by the officers was due to the hard and steady game they played from first to last, and they had the crowd with them throughout.

West Point Takes Lead.

No goals were scored in the first or last period of the game, but, at the end of the sixth period the army had a lead of one goal, the score being 6 to 5. Roe of the Bryn Mawr team did some very clever work with the mallet for his four, and to Stokes of the same aggregation ceredit is due for many cleverly directed shots. Major Wilson played the star game for the army

In the last period the only accident of the game occurred. Major J. K. Brown's pony tripped and, falling, rolled over on the major. At first it was thought that the officer's shoulder was dislocated, but such was not the case. Captain R. E. Anderson substituted for the remainder of the period.

The first score was tallied by Roe, in the second chukker, and it was a case of getting the ball all alone and driving it three-quarters of the length of the field in three strokes, the last driving it between the posts. Major L. Brown made a couple of difficult drives during the period.

Major L. Brown was the star of the third period. First he took the ball nearly the entire length of the field unaided and missed a goal by less than a foot, and then he repeated with better luck on the final drive. Stokes made a clean goal out of a scrimmage. The fourth was the big scoring period of the game, five being chalked up, three of them to the credit of Bryn Mawr. Stokes drove the first, and Roe followed it up with a clever side shot to a count, after which Major L. Brown tallied and then Wanamaker did his bit, leaving the final goal to Captain Brewer, who was playing a very level-headed game.

One Goal Tallied in Fifth.

The fifth period started with a goal by Major Wilson on a well-placed shot by Major J. K. Brown, who put the ball directly in front of the goal. Roe made another long ride with the ball, but missed a goal by a narrow margin. Major Wilson and Captain Brewer were the scorers in the sixth chukker. On a free drive for a goal as a result of a foul, Major L. Brown missed scoring, and the period ended with the ball in Bryn Mawr's territory.

In the seventh period Major L. Brown made a costly error when he came through with no one to cover him, and, as a result three Bryn Mawr players were there to take advantage of the situation, the result of which was that Wanamaker scored and McFadden followed it up with another goal, the last of the game.

The upset and narrow escape from serious injury came in the last period. The pony Bombay, ridden by Major J. K. Brown, tripped over a mallet between his feet and took a nasty tumble, rolling over on the Major, who was obliged to leave the game and his place was taken by Captain Anderson, who, while the game lasted, did his best to overcome the lead the Bryn Mawr four had, but without success. The game ended with the ball in Bryn Mawr's territory.

TOLLEY AND WETHERED WIN

MANCHESTER, Vt., Sept. 23.—Cyril Tolley, the British golf champion, and Roger Wethered, Chairman of the Oxford University golf team, defeated Lord Charles Hope and Reginald M. Lewis at the Ekwanok Country Club today in an exhibition golf match, in which the best ball of the four players was only four strokes above even threes, by 5 up and 3 to play.

Nine holes of the fifteen played were won by birdies. At the close of the match Wethered had a record of nine individual birdies in a total of forty-four holes played on the course. This afternoon Lewis and Lord Hope were winners when the same quartet played a two-ball foursome. The margin was 3 up and 2 to play.

JOIE RAY IS DEFEATED.

Wiggins-Greb Bout Is Arranged.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Sept. 23.—Chuck Wiggins, Indianapolis, and Harry Greb of Pittsburgh, light heavyweights, were matched here today to fight ten rounds in South Bend Oct. 14.

Vardon and Ray Win from Evans and Marston by 1 Up

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 23.—Harry Vardon and Edward Ray, the British golfers, defeated Charles Evans, national amateur champion, and Maxwell R. Marston, former New Jersey State titleholder, 1 up in a thirty-six-hole exhibition match today at the Merion Cricket Club. The Americans led the visitors in the morning round and were 4 up at the close of the first eighteen holes, Evans giving a great exhibition of iron play. The Englishmen showed their best brand of golf in the afternoon round, Vardon completing the first nine holes of the second round in thirty-three, three strokes below par for the course.

QUALIFYING MEDAL IS WON BY PEACOCK

Grant A. Peacock, former Princetonian and running mate of Davie Herron, had things pretty much his own way yesterday in the qualifying scramble of the Cherry Valley invitation golf tournament. While the invited guests were finding the traps, bunkers and hills on the former Salisbury links altogether too baffling in trying to break eighty, Peacock, playing over his home course, clicked off a 74, a new competitive record for the links without undue difficulty. He completed his test in the morning, and for the rest of the day, while ninety-six other starters tried their best to pass him, the 74 stood as low.

As for the other low handicapped men in the metropolitan district, all except a very few found Cherry Valley a stiff proposition. Alex Calder returned the second best total, a 77, and one stroke behind him came Gardiner W. White with 78, but thereafter a whole gap of five strokes separated the rest of the field.

Dick Haight, who on Wednesday broke the Belleclaire record with a 68, had very little to say by way of explanation when he turned in a score of 89. John M. Ward, the veteran shortstop golfer, confided to his friends that he did an 86, but he made an official report to the scorer that he had "no card." John N. Sterns, Jr. of Nassau was another who was so disappointed with his score that he withdrew.

Totals of 85 were good enough to gain the leading division, and at this figure were listed six players, whereas only five places exist. One of the following will be eliminated this morning as a result of the play-off: Arthur McKenna, Garden City Country Club; John T. Adams, Cherry Valley; C. E. Van Vleck, Jr., Greenwich; Richard Lounsberry, Sleepy Hollow; Clinton Elliot, Jr., Cherry Valley, and A. S. Bourne, National.

Maybe there was a good reason for high scores yesterday. At least, there's a presentable alibi if not a sufficient reason. It seems that Cherry Valley's caddies double-crossed the tournament officials. A good many told their school teachers with straight faces that they were urgently needed for the golf event. And the teachers, magnanimous as always, permitted them to stay away from their lessons. But instead of toting around some one's heavy bag all day, many of the youngsters decided to visit the annual county fair at Mineola, and went there forthwith for a day's frolic along the midway and in the sideshows.

Golf, therefore, suffered. Far worse excuses have been offered by linksmen for their poor scores than the fact they had to share a caddy with their playing partner.

Although Peacock failed by a wide margin to qualify for the national amateur, he has a season's record to be proud of. In May he won the Garden City Golf Club's invitation and also succeeded in qualifying for the metropolitan amateur at Apawamis with one stroke to spare. Yesterday he went out in 37 and back in the same number for his 74. His card, compared to the Cherry Valley par, follows:

Out—
Par	4	4	4	5	4	4	3	4	5—37
Peacock	4	4	5	5	4	4	3	4	4—37
In—
Par	5	4	5	4	4	3	4	4	3—36	73
Peacock	6	4	5	4	4	4	4	3	3—37	74

Match play will begin today with the first round this morning and the second this afternoon. The semi-finals will be contested tomorrow morning and the eighteen-hole final tomorrow afternoon.

The qualifying scores follow:

First Sixteen.
Grant A. Peacock, Cherry Valley	37—37—74

MAKES NEW GOLF RECORD.

Miss Alexa Stirling Lowers Mark for Course at Hamilton.

HAMILTON, Ont., Sept. 23.—A new course record was made here today by Miss Alexa Stirling, United States woman golf champion, in the second round of the ladies' championship tournament. Miss Stirling's score was 75. The former mark was 78, made by Mrs. Hope Gibson last year.

FOOTBALL SOLONS INTERPRET RULES

While most of Who's Who in Football cheered and applauded the step as one of the most progressive and beneficial taken in recent years, more than 150 coaches, officials, solons and former star players at the annual "interpretation" meeting on rules held last night at the Hotel Biltmore resolved formally to interpret clipping or cutting down an opponent from behind by throwing one's self on his legs or ankles as "unnecessary roughness," the penalty for which is loss of fifteen yards.

This annual conclave of football men to discuss rules in general and those changes which have been made within the last year in particular is generally a meeting at wich no business is transacted, but instead suggestions made for the guidance of the Rules Committee. But after four hours of rather tiresome talk on the minutiae of rules and the football men were on the point of quitting the smoke-befoggged room where technique and little else had been discussed, Coach George Foster Sanford of Rutgers roused the gathering by his strong denunciation of clipping.

"It is a cultured, highly developed brutal art of football," cried Sanford, and, despite Walter Camp's known ability to maintain parlimentary discipline from the chairman's rostrum, in a moment nearly every one present was trying to voice his views, the great majority deploring the practice. Fred W. Moore, the Harvard graduate manager, and Frank Glick, former Princeton player, for a time represented the main support of the play, but in the end a resolution, drawn up by Coach Sanford, was carried.

Meets With Applause.

The resolution follows: "Be it resolved, That the officials here assembled interpret 'clipping' as unnecessary roughness in accordance with the following definition and be penalized as unnecessary roughness. 'Clipping' is cutting down by throwing the body laterally across the leg or legs of a player not carrying the ball from behind."

A round of applause, the first of the evening, followed Sanford's declaration against clipping. Glick was of the opinion that it was a necessary and important play and he recalled three games last Autumn when clipping was used with effect in crucial stages. Sanford jumped to his feet to answer, "It doesn't belong to football," he cried. "It is becoming a cultured art and it is being used with such effect on ends and other tacklers by members of the interference that many players are being injured severely."

"Why," continued Sanford, addressing Moore who had declared that only one man had been injured at Cambridge by it in recent years, "the professional football players out in Ohio won't stand for it, yet you ask amateurs to use it. I have been coaching a good many years and I won't allow any of my men to use it on an opponent."

Frank J. (Buck) O'Neill, the new Columbia coach, drew the second round of applause of the evening when he agreed emphatically with all of Sanford's contentions of brutality of this means of putting out tacklers. He said he had coached nearly as many years as Sanford, and that he, too, wouldn't permit his men to employ it. It was described as vastly different to tripping, and an element of the game highly unsportsmanlike, because, whereas, in tripping the opponent is in front of the victim, in clipping it is a method of coming from behind to cut down an unsuspecting runner.

Sanford took the floor again. "I defy any gentleman here," said he, "to stand up while I demonstrate this clipping, and if I don't break his leg it will be because I have hard luck."

To this challenge Glick accepted without hesitation, and the others in the room grinned, lit more cigarettes and crowded closer to the clear space reserved for the speakers. Sanford took one look at Glick and then prepared to make good his threat. He removed his watch and chain, the latter having dangling from it three gold football medals representing three championship elevens, and requested Glick to face about and take a stride as if running down the field.

No leg was broken, however, and no heads were cracked, but Sanford did demonstrate with the same movement of the arms which he had been describing the ease with which the play can incapacitate a running tackler. With a quick motion he bent his right arm, thrust his elbow into Glick's leg, and down went the former Tiger star in a heap on the floor. It was easy to imagine what serious results would have occurred if Glick had been running instead of standing still.

Defends Rules Committee.

In the course of his denunciation of clipping, Sanford declared that he didn't believe the Rules Committee of recent years had understood exactly the nature of clipping. He said talks with several of them had given him this belief. Dr. Al Sharpe, Director of Yale athletics, took the floor in behalf of the Rules Committee, of which he is a member, and said the only reason clipping hadn't been abolished was because of the frequent case of a member of the runner's team cutting down a would-be tackler who was chasing the man with the ball when a touchdown seemed imminent. Sanford's reply to this was that for the sake of clean football he would be willing to allow such touchdowns if there were no other means than clipping for preventing them.

Dr. J. A. Babbitt of Haverford, Chairman of the Rules Committee, explained at the start of the meeting that one of the aims this year was to remove from football coaching all emphasis on the remunerative side of the work and to elevate officiating by consequence. He then turned the chair over to Walter Camp, who went over each rule separately and called for interpretation on any hazy points.

The fact that a kick-off which passes over the goal line but which then goes over the prolongation of the side line is still a free ball was not fully understood at first. Walter R. Okeson of Lehigh suggested that this be defined next year in so many words.

Unsportsmanlike Action.

John W. Heisman, new coach of Pennsylvania and famous for his Golden Tornado teams, spokes at length on the difference between motion and movement, emphasizing that the former was changing the position of a player's feet but that movement might be made with the feet still planted flat on the ground.

Camp ruled semi-officially that if a player on the opposing team were to shout "hike" or "hip" it would be construed by officials as unsportsmanlike conduct and should call for a penalty.

Another matter discussed was requiring the referee to carry a horn as well as a whistle, for the reason that his whistle when blown stopped all plays and rendered the ball dead, whereas the horn, heretofore only in the umpire's possession, called only fouls. It was pointed out that at least two penalties for fouls were under the referee's sole jurisdiction.

Among the more prominent football men present were Walter Camp, Yale; Dr. Al Sharpe, Yale; Dr. J. A. Babbitt, Haverford; Fred W. Moore, Harvard; Nathan A. Tufts, Brown; Tom Thorp, Columbia; George Foster Sanford, Rutgers; Frank J. O'Neill, Columbia; Robert W. Watt, Columbia graduate manager; James E. Keegan, Pittsfield, Mass.; M. J. Thompson, Mount St. Mary's; W. G. Crowell, Dartmouth; D. N. Watkeys, Syracuse; A. M. Farner, Dartmouth; C. M. Coryell, Pennsylvania; Edward B. Cochems, Wisconsin; L. A. Campbell, Colgate; John W. Ouimet Holes Out in One With Shot at 243 Yards

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—Francis Ouimet, who, as boy and man, has accomplished nearly everything possible in golf, was happy today in the realization of the ambition of all golfers. He holed out in one. Playing yesterday on the links of the Commonwealth Country Club he drove off with a midiron from the third tee, with the hole 243 yards away. The lay is slightly down hill. The ball sped true, rolled to the flag-stick and dropped into the cup. It was the first time he had holed out in a single stroke.

CORNELL DEVELOPS THE FORWARD PASS

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Sept. 23.—A feature of this afternoon's practice on the Cornell field was the amount of time devoted to practice of forward pass formations in actual scrimmage plays. Coach Dobie continues his policy of not sending the teams into actual games, but all formations of pass, drop kick and punt are worked out under conditions of actual play.

The pace at recent practices has been gradually increased, and with it have come a few more injuries, but none of a serious nature. Knauss, a tackle, went out of the game today with an injury to his back, and Lechler, a half back, is also on the side lines, together with Dunleavy, another half, who was hurt earlier in the week.

The preliminary work in the fundamentals has been thoroughly developed in the last ten days, and Coach Dobie intends to give more and more time to actual scrimmaging. Moore and Ebersole of the 'Varsity crew squad have reported, as has also Brayman, a wrestler, and Gouinlock, a pole vaulter. Further additions to the squad are expected when the main body of undergraduates returns next week for the opening of the university on Thursday.

HARVARD SCRUBS SCORE.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 23.—Head Coach Fisher of the Harvard football team sent his 'Varsity men through their last hard scrimmage of the week this afternoon, the outfit showing continued improvement. There was a fly in the ointment, however, for nearly at the close of the scrimmage and when the substitutes were arrayed against the scrubs the latter made their first score of the year. The second team quarter back threw a forward pass over the middle of the scrimmage from about the 15-yard line, Cronin completing it behind the 'Varsity's goal.

The first team mixed up its plays a lot today, but its scoring was by means of straightaway football. Two good journeys were made up the field through the scrubs's line, Horween making the first touchdown and Hamilton scoring the other.

Clark, the former 89th Division end rush, got into the scrimmage with the 'Varsity for the first time, playing at left end, and Sedgwick, last year's 'Varsity lineman, also was on the team when the practice started, but neither played for long. Fiske Brown was out working, but Holmes again was at left guard. Except for these changes, however, the line was the same as in the other scrimmages, with Havemyer at centre, Woods at right guard, Tolbert at right tackle and Kane right end. Henry Humphrey, who had a chance to run the first team today, seems to get plenty of fight into the men. Gratwick was in the backfield, with Horween and Dick Humphreys. These are the backs most likely to start against Holy Cross Saturday, with Jewett Johnson at quarter at the beginning of the game.

The 'Varsity line was given a stiff test on the defense when the coaches handed the ball to the scrubs within ten yards of the first team's goal. The scrubs had eight plays, but could not score a second time, although their coaches contended that the ball was once put over the goal line and then pushed back.

MURRAY AS PRINCETON END.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 23.—Roper made two changes in the 'Varsity this afternoon, playing Frank Murrey at end and bringing Stinson in at half back. Murrey alternated with Raymond during the signal drill, going out to the wing position when the 'Varsity was working on offensive plays. Raymond, who was shifted from half back to end during the 1919 season, is the hardest tackler on the squad, and, by the present arrangement, Roper evidently hopes to utilize his ability on the defense and at the same time get the use of Murrey's adroitness in catching forward passes.

Stinson was given his first 'Varsity tryout today going in at right half back. Wittmer took Scheerer's place at full back and Lourie was at quarter. The rest of the 'Varsity lineup was unchanged, with Callahan at centre, Dickinson and Thomas, guards, Keck and Hooper, tackles, and Davis and Raymond on the ends.

COLUMBIA DRILL LIGHTER.

Easier Football Workout Ordered as Result of Long Injury List.

Coach Buck O'Neill relented somewhat in his hard driving of the Columbia 'Varsity after ten days of stiff workouts, and confined yesterday's drill to punting, forward passing and a protracted signal practice. The scrimmaging, which began on Wednesday, was halted temporarily, and the entire squad was allowed to wend its way to the showers much earlier than usual.

An ever-growing list of disabled candidates was chiefly responsible for the let-down. Nine of the 'Varsity squad were out of uniform yesterday, and a few more have the usual minor bruises and injuries that accompany early workouts. Some of the members of the hospital squad will be on the sidelines for a week or more, but most of them are recovering rapidly and may return any afternoon. The additions yesterday were Eccles, who is suffering from a bruised knee; Miller, whose ankle was slightly hurt in Wednesday's scrimmage, and Larner, reserve end, still limping from a leg injury. Modarelli, tackle, who broke his nose Monday, was in yesterday's signal drill, but wore a nose guard.

ANOTHER FORDHAM INJURY.

Another player was added to the Fordham football team's rather long injured list yesterday afternoon, when Al Boutot, one of the most promising candidates for the quarterback position, dislocated his left shoulder while tackling one of his team-mates. tI was feared at first that the youngster's collarbone was broken and that he would be out for the rest of the season. An X-ray, taken at Fordham Hospital last night, however, showed that the injury was not as serious as was feared, and Boutot should be in uniform again within two weeks.

During Boutot's absence Shanahan, a youngster from Watertown High School, will get a chance to substitute in the injured player's position. Shanahan is a youngster with plenty of nerve and speed, and if he can live up to his scholastic reputation he should fill in very capably.

LITTLE INCONSISTENCIES.

When Judge MILLER went to the Chicago Convention to nominate Mr. HOOVER, and did it against the protest of New York Republicans, it was stated that this would be fatal to his own candidacy for the Governorship. How could a man who was for a man who was for the League of Nations be the nominee of a party that was against it? Events have shown. Judge MILLER has just accepted the Republican nomination for Governor, and without any trouble placed himself squarely on the party platform. And nobody seems to think a hair the worse of him for it.

Why should one? This is only one more little inconsistency in a campaign that abounds in glaring instances of it. If a passion for consistency is the hobgoblin of small minds, it is easy to understand why the Republican Party now claims to be in possession of so many giant intellects.

PRICES VISIBLY FALLING.

For a long time high prices seemed like the weather, about which, as MARK TWAIN said, everybody talked but nothing was done. Latterly, however, official reports have been pointing to a small but steady recession. This has usually been figured in such trifling percentages as not to affect the imagination of the public. But now, in swift succession, we are getting dramatic announcements which must convince the most incredulous that a real turn downward has set in. HENRY FORD has again demonstrated his keen commercial instinct by making a drastic cut in the price of his cars, so as to bring them virtually to their pre-war level. In Chicago the two great mail-order houses, SEARS, ROEBUCK & Co. and MONTGOMERY WARD & Co., have made reductions in their various lines of merchandise ranging from 10 to 20 per cent. On top of this comes the notice given by the Amoskeag Mills of a cut in cotton goods to the extent of 33 per cent. We are certain to see other equally striking evidences of the way in which the tide is now running.

The concerns mentioned do a great business. Hence for them a small margin of profit will still mean large returns. And it should not be overlooked that the Government will be involved in the reduction of their gross revenue, since the excess profits tax will inevitably produce a smaller yield. Out of every $1,000 made by the Ford Corporation the corporation tax will take $400. Then of the $600 left for the owner of the stock the personal income tax might take as much as $480. It is obvious, therefore, that more than two-thirds of the reduced profits would have to be borne by the Government.

This fact suggests once more the uncertainty of the excess profits tax. The official estimates are pretty sure to appear highly swollen when set against the actual collections upon incomes of this year—or any year of falling prices and diminishing business. It is clear, too, that the big corporations are less embarrassed by the tax than are small dealers. In boom times the tax can tacitly be figured in as part of the cost of production and prices be raised accordingly. But when trade falls off, the large companies are able, as it were, to stand from under, by whittling down their taxes and continuing to do their grand-scale business successfully on a small profit per unit. Meanwhile the retailers are left to worry about unsold stocks and their own taxes, not so easily pared down.

With all these reports of lowered prices inevitably go accounts of slackening industry, falling wages and an increase of the unemployed. The latest statement by the Massachusetts State Employment Bureau shows a decline in wages except for domestic servants, larger numbers looking for work, and general expectation of more unemployment in the coming Winter. Happily the business reaction has thus far been gradual, and the era of lower prices, which was bound to come, has been ushered in slowly. One reason for the decline in prices has undoubtedly been the unwillingness of the public to buy at inflated prices. The lower figures now in sight ought to induce larger purchases and so be a stimulus to production. However that may be, all must hope that business and the consuming public may adjust themselves to the lower levels almost insensibly and without undue fears or thought of acute or prolonged depression.

MR. HARDING AND RUSSIA.

In THE TIMES of Sept. 21 was published a letter dated April 10, 1920, to Mr. STANLEY WASHBURN of Lakewood, N. J., signed W. G. HARDING. The important part of the letter was this:

> I have never at any time changed my view concerning Bolshevism, but I think we are coming to a point where there is no other course to pursue than recognize the de facto of [sic] the Government of Russia.

Asked to verify the letter, Senator HARDING said:

> Ask Mr. WASHBURN to verify that letter. You may say, however, that I am opposed to recognition of any Government in Russia until it shows capacity for observing honor among nations.

Mr. HARDING neither denied nor affirmed that the letter was his. If it was his, what capacity or inclination to observe honor among nations had the Soviet Government shown up to April 10, when, if the letter is genuine, Mr. HARDING saw the time for its necessary recognition as the de facto Government near? If the letter was not genuine, why didn't he say so instead of referring to Mr. WASHBURN?

In a statement made public by the Republican National Committee Mr. WASHBURN throws no doubt on the authenticity of the letter. He carefully avoids saying anything about Mr. HARDING's attitude toward the Soviet Government in April. He merely tells us that, shortly after the Chicago Convention, he had a long discussion with him on the Russian situation and Bolshevism. Mr. HARDING agreed with him "categorically that the system of "philosophy originated by Soviet Russia and directed against the stability "of established Governments throughout the world was a menace to society and civilization, and that he "would never at any time be a party "to the recognition of any Government which was based on a reign of "terror and whose avowed objective "was the creation of world unrest." The Bolshevist philosophy, purposes and methods were exactly the same in April that they were in July, or whenever Mr. HARDING and Mr. WASHBURN discussed them. What excuse can be given for the as yet undenied readiness of Mr. HARDING in April to recognize that Government, shortly and of necessity, as a de facto Government? What opinion must we have of Mr. HARDING's fitness to conduct the foreign policy of the United States? It would be difficult to make a more serious and lamentable error of judgment than both Mr. HARDING and Mr. WASHBURN, by their silence, admit that Senator HARDING made in April.

THE CAMPAIGN FUNDS.

According to Chairman HAYS, there are many Castle Hills in the West. Castle Hill was the village in Maine where 100 Republican votes were polled at the recent election and but one Democratic vote. If the Republicans at this stage of the campaign are so cocksure of victory on Nov. 2, their design to raise a large fund to accomplish what cannot be prevented by the needy Democrats is singular, to say the least. Under pressure from Senator REED at the investigation in Washington, Colonel WILLIAM BOYCE THOMPSON, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee of the Republican National Committee, stated that "the fund we hope to raise in New York is roughly $2,000,000." Senator REED reminded Colonel THOMPSON that the Republicans had collected $1,800,000 before they nominated their candidates, "and then," said Mr. REED, "you made up an estimate for "$3,000,000, which is approximately "$5,000,000." Later UPHAM, the National Treasurer, talked of a budget for $6,000,000, and calculations of Republican needs soared after that. "All rot!" retorted the exasperated THOMPSON; "the National Committee "hopes to raise $3,000,000, and no "gifts in excess of $1,000 are being "received." It must have been a slip to say that $2,000,000 was to be found in New York alone, especially as little New Jersey's contribution would be $300,000. Proportionate quotas from Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, California and other States would obviously point to a much bigger fund than $3,000,000. Senator REED is a troublesome cross-examiner. "We feel," said Colonel THOMPSON virtuously, "that there never was a more righteous cause than ours." Why, then, the quest for so much money with the fight already won?

As a witness JAMES W. GERARD, Chairman of the Finance Committee of the Democratic National Committee, had nothing to conceal or explain. He gave the names of his associates on the committee, and produced a list showing that since Sept. 4, the date of his appointment, he had collected $128,821. He hoped to raise $1,000,000, but would be satisfied with $800,000. Had he fixed a limit for single subscriptions? The conditions being what they were, Senator KENYON's question was ludicrous. "Would you take $15,000,000?" persisted that exponent of a "righteous cause" already won. Mr. GERARD's reply was a quiet rebuke. He thought that $2,000,000 was as much as could be legitimately spent, but he did not expect to obtain anything like that sum, although Colonel THOMPSON, with a distorted perspective, had declared that "all the Wall Street crowd are supporting Cox." That was a statement that must have tickled the risibilities of Wall Street when it was read down there.

While a good deal of nonsense has been talked about the party campaign funds, it should be clear enough by this time that nothing but rising public sentiment against the use of money on a large scale will check the ardor of the Republican managers to reward their workers handsomely. It should be equally clear that on the score of morality it is the Democrats who have the righteous cause in their championship of the League of Nations as a preventive of war. They can win only by convincing the American people of it, and not by spending money lavishly.

SPARTAN THRIFT.

Governor CALVIN COOLIDGE of Massachusetts has not bought a suit of clothes for eighteen months or a pair of shoes for two years. So he told, with conscious pride, the National Association of Life Underwriters at Boston on Tuesday. A photograph of the officers of their convention, printed on the same page in a local newspaper with the Governor's speech of welcome, shows them to be a well-tailored and well-shod set of men. Evidently they could not vie with him in the practice of thrift, which he illustrates by autobiographical example. In his presence they must have felt the gooseflesh of guilt; they had replenished their wardrobes, they had acquired at least one pair of new shoes since the armistice, and perhaps two. It is a rule of social intercourse to put your guests at their ease. CALVIN COOLIDGE must have forgotten it when he extended the official hand to the life underwriters. They, or most of them, were not of the Spartan stuff which makes the Governor stand out as first in thrift, with the vouchers always ready. Who can compare with him as the exponent of the law of no demand, be the supply what it may?

Mr. COOLIDGE can hardly be popular with clothiers and shoemakers. If his countrymen who are not either had followed his example in the last eighteen months and more, many shutters would be up, and thousands of misguided persons who had been selling suits and shoes might have no cloth to their backs or leather to their feet. Fortunately for them and their employers, a good many people have not been as austere economists, and as vocal about it, as the Governor of Massachusetts. Common sense applied to spending was THEODORE ROOSEVELT's definition of thrift, but is it common sense to stop buying altogether in times of post-war inflation, an unavoidable economic condition? Why not buy less and circumspectly, so that industry may be kept going? Certainly a man who can afford to add to his declining wardrobe has a duty toward those who draw wages from industry. To shut his purse with a snap and get behind the intrenchments of parsimony is not virtuous nor heroic.

SCANDAL IN BASEBALL.

In the last forty-three years big-league baseball has been almost wholly free from serious charges of corruption. Prompt action at almost the very beginning of National League history removed a group of players who made a business of "throwing" games, and ever since then the average American has been as sure of the purity of the national sport as he was of the corruption of national politics, and as proud. Baseball became a great and profitable industry largely because of that confidence, and both the masters and the technicians, to adopt the terminology of the Italian industrial crisis, realized that big profits and huge salaries could not be maintained if the public acquired the suspicion that games were fixed. This keen realization of the financial value of honesty has probably been chiefly responsible for the maintenance of a standard which is amazingly high for a sport which is first of all a business.

Now the sure-thing gamblers have tampered with the game, and have gone so far that a prosecutor at Chicago, where the Grand Jury is investigating charges of corruption, has asserted that the last world's series was thrown. The evidence on which this is based has not yet been made public. It has been established that gamblers in Chicago, Detroit and Cleveland did have a big interest in a game, otherwise entirely unimportant, between two second-division National League clubs a few weeks ago. They had bet on Chicago, and by the exercise of duplicity equal to that of the most wily of German spies they convinced the Chicago management that the money had been placed against Chicago and that an effort had been made to "fix" the game for Philadelphia. The Chicago manager thereupon made extraordinary efforts to win the game. He fell completely into the trap, but only because he wanted to be honest. It does not appear that any players had been tampered with, and since by the accidents of the pastime Chicago lost the game the gamblers appear to have been rewarded as all villains should be in the last reel.

Out of this "scandal," then, the game comes off pretty well. But if the prosecution really has evidence to support the accusations made by various sporting writers about the last world's series, it is the worst thing that has ever happened to professional baseball. Those charges were for a long time taken with a great deal of salt. Those who made them failed to produce any evidence, though a big reward was offered for it. Their charges were generally ascribed either to disappointed local pride, which suffered a sad blow when the highly regarded White Sox were badly beaten by the unconsidered Reds, or to the personal pique of self-styled prophets who were disgruntled when their mathematical calculations were turned to ridicule. If there is anything behind the charges, the guilty men will undoubtedly be blacklisted. It is a matter of self-preservation as well as of honor and of pride in the national game to stamp out every vestige of crookedness. The pity is that all the diligence in the world cannot stop the big gambling—gambling on a scale large enough to afford bribery of players—which may be conducted downtown or in cities hundreds of miles away.

MOVIE IMMORALITY.

Mr. D. W. GRIFFITH should take courage. Moving picture morality is not nearly as bad as the "intellectual" critic has so persistently charged—and as Mr. GRIFFITH himself is beginning to think. In one sense it is true, of course, as he somewhat belatedly proclaims, that "Pollyanna" is not at all the philosophic gold for which many good folk take it, but only "a false philosophy of gilded bunkum." Being the most famous piece in its multitudinous school, many eager carpers have anticipated Mr. GRIFFITH in denouncing it as "the most im- "moral story ever produced on the "screen." In real life people are neither all good nor all bad; virtue is too often its only reward and the wicked flourish like the green bay tree. Considered as a transcript from life, or as philosophic comment upon it, the whole movie repertory is indeed "distorted and diluted stuff." If audiences took it high-seriously, their morals might be damaged. But they don't, and that is the most that is to be said as to the invectives of the "intellectual" critics, or as to the belated qualms of Mr. GRIFFITH's artistic conscience.

Movieland is the land of romance—or it is nothing. If Mr. GRIFFITH were to show us up to ourselves as we are, or to show us our relatives and friends as we know them, we should pay him few tributes of small change, or of large evenings spent with his films. Doubtless the art form of MOLIÈRE is on a higher plane with its clinically truth-seeking method, its philosophic, satiric, derisory manner. But it is not the least of MOLIÈRE's manifold claims to good sense that he steadily, persistently and definitively refused to write for the movies. Yet in spite of him, and of all his tribe, the aforesaid romance remains. When we are under its spell, we are, as Mr. GRIFFITH savagely denounces us for being, at "the mental age of about nine years." But not even the rare furies of his artistic conscience can shame us, or abate one jot of the joy of romance. After the battle of Jutland, the cabin boy of one of his Majesty's battleships was discovered in his bunk, his eyes popping out over the pages of a sea tale by Captain MARRYAT. He had been reading for hours, oblivious to the greatest sea fight of the greatest of all wars. Dull souls laugh at him or think him cheated by fate. But who with a heart for the eternal enchantments of romance would not give a dozen Jutlands, with their limited visibility and absence of all climax, to feel again the thrill of high, decisive adventure at the mental age of nine?

It is true that even in the tolerant halls of the movie the Pollyanna school is no longer popular. From time to time of late loud cries have been emitted for stronger meat, for a more novel and decisive punch. In its comparatively humble sphere, even romance has requirements that are rigorous. The fact may or may not be pertinent, but while Mr. GRIFFITH was delivering these fulminations from the artistic soul within him he was engaged in rehearsing the film version of "Way Down East."

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Apprehensions Happily Disappointed.

Probably great numbers of people living on or near the southern coast are now repeating the familiar denunciations of the Weather Bureau and its prophecies, and probably they are doing it with a special bitterness.

They have some reason to feel the anger that always follows deep anxiety or great fear when it is discovered that these very painful emotions have been experienced for insufficient cause or none—an anger that is made the fiercer in proportion to the amount of vivacity with which the emotions have been demonstrated. Then, of course, humiliation is added to indignation, and nothing is harder to bear with philosophic calmness than is that combination.

And the coast people in Texas, Mississippi and further along will be unable to deny that they were thoroughly scared by the Weather Bureau's solemn warning that a great and potentially disastrous storm was on its way across the Caribbean and would strike them not later than Wednesday morning. Those that could do so ran for high ground, taking with them such part of their property as they could conveniently carry. The others took such precautions against wind and water as were possible and awaited in hope that thus the approaching cataclysm would be mitigated.

And then nothing happened—nothing, that is, except a gusty breeze that a sailor would not dignify by calling a "gale of wind," and a fall of rain that was no more than "seasonal." A few ill-attached roofs did go off in a few towns, but nobody was hurt or even endangered, and there was practically no loss of property. In short, the Weather Bureau predicted a hurricane, confidently and explicitly, and nothing came worse than a very ordinary Fall storm. So, at least, the case will be stated by hasty critics.

A Success Except in Details.

Though it is easy to find fault with the Weather Bureau, and though multitudes daily say that its forecasts are "never right," as a matter of fact the service it renders is of enormous value, and, as another matter of fact, the very people who affect contempt for the Government prophets read their predictions every day and really trust them.

In this case of the Gulf storm the bureau, instead of being wrong, was right in all it said, as will be evident to anybody who looks at the announcements carefully. They were not so much warnings of serious trouble as statements to the effect that the meteorological conditions off shore were of the kind that made somewhere between possible and probable the development of a moderate atmospheric disturbance into one of great violence.

That was well worth knowing. There is no pretense that the exact course of a storm of this character can be foretold from what it is and what it is doing at any particular moment. Modifying influences are many and complex, and their combined results, while easy enough to understand after they have come under examination, before that are still veiled in not a little uncertainty. The Government forecasters do what they can in a domain of science for the thorough exploration of which there has not yet been time, and, instead of deriding their occasional failures, complete or partial, the fair and reasonable critic observes and remembers that the hits of these prophets far outnumber their misses, and that their marksmanship is steadily improving.

The Weather Bureau pays for itself thousands and thousands of times every year, and it is best appreciated by those for whom advance information about the weather is of most consequence—sailors, for instance, and the growers of the great staple crops.

These Bars Mustn't Be Lowered.

Among the so-called housing bills now before the Legislature there is one the danger of which is likely to be overlooked, merely because it gives a plausible promise of immediate relief from pressing ills. It would do that to some extent, but at a possible cost in after-effects so serious that action should be taken with the utmost care.

As summarized, this bill empowers the New York City Board of Appeals "to let down some of the bars in the present tenement house law, so long as health and safety are not imperiled." Now, the present tenement house law was passed only after years and years of exertion, and the long opposition it encountered came from exactly the class of landlords that will make the existing emergency an excuse for demanding the mitigation of provisions they find inconvenient. Yet every one of those provisions—and they are neither too many nor too stringent—was drawn in the interest of health and safety, and the abrogation or suspension of any of them is almost sure not only to imperil health and safety, but to necessitate a repetition of the old struggle for tenement house reform.

It is generally admitted that the law as it stands is not perfect, but its faults are by no means all in the nature of making excessive demands on the landlord's purse, and changes demanded by him should be considered in connection with the course which he, in so many instances of late, has followed when fixing rents.

They Can't Be Much Terrified.

Canada's veterans of the World War fought the good fight so well and so bravely that comment on anything any of them does must be gentle and friendly. Therefore there will be no excited scolding on this side of the line over the protest which some army and navy men in Kingston, Ontario, have made against the appearance in the St. Lawrence of an "armed ship" belonging to the United States.

It presumably was in jest that this complaint was laid before the Government at Ottawa, for the "ship," it seems, is an 80-foot tug, on coast guard duty with special reference to recruiting. That her presence in the river really alarms the Canadian fighting men is inconceivable, and they must be sure that such slight power to injure as she may have is unaccompanied by even the slightest intention or desire to injure. Besides, the authorities in Washington say that the little vessel is not "armed," in the technical sense.

The Ottawa officials, happily, have remained calm, presumably because they are not looking for grievances or inventing them.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is with regret that I read the stand you take in the matter of protection on peanuts and lemons as set forth by Senators Harding and Poindexter. Surely, the circus bag of peanuts is small enough and the circus lemonade is weak enough now without giving excuse to reduce the size or strength of either commodity. I see in it all a deep-laid plot by the Republicans to injure their rivals in the circus business without injury to themselves. Their attitude is that with their peanut politics and their lemon candidate they can win out, although it will take a lot of sugar to put the latter across, which accounts for the large campaign fund.

THE SAINTS.

Their hands were folded on their breasts,
  Their eyes looked at the floor.

"O Saints," I cried, "if tales be true,
  The world was harsh to ye,
From rock and rope, from knife and flame,
  Thy faith forbade ye flee.

"But sorrow has its recompense—
  Ye won the martyr crown,
And stand above the great Church door
  In marble hood and gown.

"And yet I wonder, knowing all,
  Were ye content to die?"
A shadow passed across the Moon—
  I thought I heard them sigh!

"WEARINESS."

An Explanation of Republican Success Carried Further.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Tribune undertook to explain the Maine Republican landslide in one word, "weariness." The country is "weary, unutterably weary," of the sort of Administration it has had for seven years; "bone-aching" weariness dwells in many hearts over the spiritual inadequacy of the President; weariness over the Administration's course in the peace negotiations—in the President's setting out, "as if with a fixed purpose to create distrust"; weariness over the President's fatal unwillingness to consult, his denial to others the freedom of judgment, &c. The writer declares the counts of the indictment are "too numerous to enumerate." But he likes the word, and finds in its iteration a solemn joy, as of the raven croaking "nevermore."

The diagnosis is shrewd, but incomplete. In fairness to the facts let us continue. Weariness in welldoing; weariness at the thought of further toil or effort or risk, when school is out and it's time to go fishing; weariness in hearing of the sufferings of others who disconcert us by looking our way for help; weariness at the prospect of sharing responsibility with our allies in enforcing the common terms of peace, when a private and easy peace with Germany can be "declared" by a Republican Executive; above all, "bone-aching" weariness from the persisting suspicion that this same arch autocrat somehow has landed on the right side of the fence in the matter of a League of Nations, morally, historically and in the eyes of men.

As a Republican born and bred, never having voted otherwise until this year, I find a further source of weariness which I believe is shared by thousands of fellow-Republicans. That the party which elected Lincoln and fought the civil war and abolished slavery, that backed McKinley in one of the most unselfish wars in history—that this grand party should now stand on the smug, timid, ungenerous and hence un-American side in the greatest issue in the history of your country—this is indeed cause to be weary and sick at heart.

A College for Blind Girls.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Will you allow me to make known through the medium of your influential columns the establishment of a collegiate institution unlike any other in the world? It is the College for the Higher Education of Blind Girls, situated at Chorley Wood, Herts, about twenty miles from London, England. The equipment of the college is nearing completion, and it will be ready to receive scholars in January next.

The very fine building, with its spacious grounds of more than forty acres, has for some time past been in process of adaptation for the purposes of the college. It occupies a high and quite ideal situation in the midst of beautiful surroundings, and no pains have been spared to equip it in a manner which will bear comparison with the best secondary schools for sighted girls. Miss Phyllis Monk, a lady of high scholastic attainments and considerable experience, has been appointed principal, and has gathered round her a competent staff.

This school will receive pupils from the age of seven years, and will be divided into sections according to the age of the scholars. The standard of education and of comfort will be of the first order. The fees have been placed at the moderate figure of £105 per annum.

The Council of the National Institute for the Blind have felt for some time past that there should be a sister institution to the Worcester College for the Higher Education of Blind Boys, for which they have recently made themselves responsible, and of which I have honor to be Chairman.

The Chorley Wood college will give the parents and guardians of blind girls an opportunity of securing for them a first-class and specialized education suited to their needs and requirements, an opportunity which hitherto has not existed. We now wish to hear from the parents or guardians of blind girls who would like to inquire further into this matter. Any who are interested please communicate with Miss Monk at the offices of the National Institute for the Blind, 224 Gt. Portland Street, London, W. 1, England.

Ireland's Case for the League.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It does not seem too wild a thing to hope that a tactful suggestion from the right quarter, not from our Government but from a private source, might induce England and the Government of Lloyd George to submit the Irish problem to the Council of the League of Nations. They have a chance to show their real greatness which may never come again. It is idle to claim it as a domestic question. England can cut that knot, even if no other Government can.

Such an act would be on a par with their generous treatment of South Africa and with their present generosity in Egypt. England's friends have a right to expect something big from her.

The fevered brains of both contending parties cannot fairly reason with each other. If left with the Council both will cool off, assured of a fair and just determination by all the nations. The determination might be deliberate, possibly slow, but it would take it out of the hands of hot-headed contestants and leave the decision with people of the world who love justice, peace and liberty.

Such a submission, accompanied by release of political prisoners, would be as welcome news to humanity as was the armistice of November, 1918.

Who knows but that even Russia might follow such an example. If such things could but happen they would be fit vindications of the super-statesmanship and humanity of our great President.

Gas Attack on Armentieres.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Might I refer you back to an article that appeared in THE NEW YORK TIMES, dated Sept. 20, under the heading "A Chemists' War." As one who was connected with this type of warfare, I can thoroughly indorse your statements and remarks. I wish, however, to correct the statement that "gas drove the British out of strongly fortified Armentieres in one hour." On the night of April 7, 1918, the Germans opened a gas bombardment on Armentieres that lasted approximately ten hours. This gas naturally caused a large number of casualties, but it was two days later, after the Germans had broken through Portuguese troops on our right and had almost surrounded Armentieres, that it became necessary to evacuate the town. I would mention that the writer was in Armentieres during this particular period.

Professor Fisher's Argument.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am greatly pleased with Professor Fisher's article in the Sunday TIMES of Sept. 19. It is the best thing I have seen on the importance of the League of Nations. As an old-time Republican I accept it heartily, with the earnest wish that millions of copies might be distributed among Republican voters.

It is a strong and truthful statement of the issue and will doubtless do great good. I heartily congratulate you on its publication.

British West Indies Pleased by His Democratic Attitude.

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad, Sept. 22.—The Prince of Wales, who has been visiting Georgetown, British Guiana, is expected to return here tomorrow morning and will spend the day and evening ashore. He will start on Friday morning for St. George, the seat of the Government of the Windward Islands colony and the principal city on the Island of Grenada.

Since his arrival here the Prince has been very active. He has visited the principal industrial centres and has played golf and tennis. Last Sunday he attended divine service and later visited soldiers stationed here, chatting with the men. His democratic attitude has been very pleasing to the people, with whom he has conversed on many occasions. Dinners are being planned for members of the crew of the cruiser Renown, which is returning with the Prince from Australia and New Zealand.

REVIEWS BRAZILIAN TROOPS.

King Albert of Belgium Likely to Fly Over Rio Janeiro.

RIO JANEIRO, Sept. 22.—President Pessoa and King Albert of Belgium this afternoon reviewed one of the greatest military parades ever given in Brazil. With the King and the President in the reviewing stand were members of the Diplomatic Corps and various foreign missions and representatives of all the Federal and municipal officers. A great throng witnessed the parade, a holiday having been declared.

King Albert, accompanied by a mounted guard, was loudly cheered as he galloped across the field to the reviewing stand. President and Mrs. Pessoa and Queen Elizabeth rode to the field in carriages. The forces in the parade numbered about 15,000 men. As they marched, airplanes went through evolutions overhead.

It is understood that King Albert has accepted an invitation from the French Military Mission to Brazil, to take an airplane trip over Rio and the suburban towns in the nearby mountains.

ITALIAN HONORS RECEIVED.

Decorations in recognition of war activities in behalf of the Italian Government were conferred upon Mr. Guggenheim, A. C. Bedford, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Standard Oil Company; L. J. Replogle, President of the American Vanadium Company; Eugene Meyer, formerly Chairman of the War Finance Corporation; Edwin B. Parker, General Counsel of the Texas Oil Company, all of whom were made Commanders of the Italian Order of the Crown, and F. Fitzpatrick, President of the Railway Steel Spring Company, and Alfred Breton, Vice President of the Guarantee Trust Company, who were invested with the order of Officers of the Crown of Italy.

OFFERS NEWSPRINT REMEDY

Chemical Engineers Told to Use Wood for Pulp Instead of Cases.

Everett W. Morgan, an official of the Pneumatic Scales Corporation, offered a solution of the news print problem at a meeting of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers held last night in connection with the Sixth National Exposition of Chemical Industries in the Grand Central Palace, Forty-sixth Street and Lexington Avenue.

Mr. Morgan suggested that the wooden containers used to ship goods be turned over to paper mills, and also advocated the gradual abolition of wooden containers and the substitution of metal ones.

"Six million cords of wood," he said, "were turned into shipping cases last year. One and a half cords of this wood make one ton of paper suitable for news print. In this idea lies the solution of the news print problem. Four million tons of paper is twice the amount of paper being manufactured today for news print, so that if this wood were turned over to the paper mills the paper shortage would be relieved at once."

Big crowds throughout the day and evening again marked the show, now established as one of the most successful industrial shows—from the attendance standpoint, at least—held in recent years. During the afternoon David Wesson, President of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers, one of the speakers, asked support for the bill now before Congress to establish a Department of Public Works.

TELL OF WORK WITH ALIENS

Progress of Americanization Recited at Woman's Committee Meeting.

The progress being made by those active in Americanization movements in this city was told last night at a meeting under the auspices of the Americanization Committee of the Mayor's Committee of Women at the public school building at 216 Mott Street. Julius Hochfelder of the American Education Department and Miss Sarah Elkus, a director of Americanization work, were the principal speakers.

Miss Elkus and Mr. Hochfelder, after telling of the necessity of learning the English language, said there was no excuse for foreigners living in New York who could not speak English, as schools were provided for "everybody" in all parts of the city. They said that men and women of all ages were welcome. It was explained that if business prevented persons from attending school it was only necessary to form a class of five or six pupils and a teacher would be supplied who would come to them in their homes.

Schmitt Sale of Antiques, $42,817.

To Woodward, agent, went the two biggest numbers at the Schmitt Brothers' sale, Augustus W. Clarke, auctioneer, yesterday, a large carved and gilded eighteenth century Venetian style settee upholstered in old blue silk damask for $700, and for the same price a painted bedroom set in Chinese-Venetian manner. Mrs. E. E. Ruffing paid $250 for a pair of fine old eighteenth century English flower paintings; to E. A. Laudau went a large carved Italian Renaissance walnut cabinet for $425 and to the same buyer a Queen Anne slope top writing desk of walnut, the interior decorated with Chinese green and gold lacquer. A genuine old Queen Anne mirror with frame of walnut and gold went to J. E. Davis for $295. Returns for the afternoon were $20,955, making a total for the sale of $42,817.

HOOVER DENOUNCES FEDERAL BUREAUS

FAVORS NATIONAL HOUSING

Tells Calder Committee Deepening Erie Canal Would Help Solve New York Problems.

Herbert Hoover, a witness before the Senate Committee on Reconstruction and Production, of which Senator William M. Calder is Chairman, suggested yesterday that the committee direct its investigation toward departments of the Government at Washington which he described as "woefully inefficient" as the result of a hundred years of accumulated negligence." Mr. Hoover came before the committee to give testimony as to the postal savings bank system.

His views on housing, transportation and reconstruction were expressed in response to a request by Senator Calder that Mr. Hoover discuss such topics as he thought would aid the committee in its work.

"A good lead to work on might be an investigation of the nine Governmental agencies in Washington which are handling the construction problem," Mr. Hoover said. "These appear to be competing with the building trades throughout the country, and with each other. If your committee has the authority I think one of the first things it should do is to look into the reconstruction of departments of the Federal Government."

Mr. Hoover said he lamented the fact that the United States had no definite reconstruction program at the close of the war. Much of our post-war difficulties, he added, might have been obviated had this country developed a series of such programs. Europe, he thought, had done much better in this respect.

Favors National Housing Commission.

"The orgy of spending that followed the armistice was one of the penalties that had to be paid for the war. A program of reconstruction, in my opinion, should be decided upon now, to deal with the question of finance, labor and transportation," Mr. Hoover continued.

"The housing and transportation problems are the direct result of the war. During the war the production of war necessities was made at the expense of both. Having suffered more than any other branches, housing and transportation are now our most pressing difficulties. I think it will help but little for individual cities to cope with either transportation or housing. The result of such an effort would probably be to create competition between various cities, thus defeating the move.

Suggestions for relieving the housing situation by exempting mortgages from income taxes did not meet with his approval, the witness stated. He declared the income tax was one of the most just and sound taxes ever imposed, adding that he was opposed to the exemption of any additional classes of investments.

Suggests Home Loan Bank.

Rather than have mortgages on new construction exempted from the income tax, Mr. Hoover said he would prefer the establishment of an institution modeled after the Farm Loan Bank. This, he thought, would help the situation materially without establishing a dangerous precedent. It was called to his attention that in England loans of one-third the cost of erection of a building had been made by the Government on housing projects. Mr. Hoover's only comment on this was the brief statement that he thought England had gone further than was economically sound.

"But I think the excess profits tax is all wrong," he continued. "This is not a tax on profits, but merely a method of taxing the consumer through the producer."

Mr. Hoover thought the completion of the Erie Canal would go far toward relieving railroad congestion and by providing an adequate means of transportation would tend to reduce prices on both food and building materials in New York. The lack of traffic over the canal, he said, was caused by the failure of the State authorities to deepen the Erie Canal to 12½ feet throughout its length. One of New York's great needs, he said, was adequate terminal facilities.

"The whole canal question is of tremendous importance, due to the increase in railroad rates," Mr. Hoover asserted. "One of the effects of the crowding around the Alleghany gateway is the driving inland of many important industries. Terminals and the deepening of the canal will go far toward solving this problem."

Senator Calder asked Mr. Hoover to express an opinion on the proposed granting of priority to the transportation of building materials.

"I am opposed to railway priority orders as a general proposition because their execution by the carriers involves so much delay that the efficiency of the railroads is materially reduced," he replied.

His Postal Savings Bank Views.

He then submitted a memorandum of his opinion in regard to the postal savings bank system. He made several suggestions as to its reorganization, a topic on which the Senate Committee is taking testimony.

"The postal savings banks were established for the prime purpose of enlarging the area of national savings," Mr. Hoover testified. "It was proposed to avoid competition with the banking system generally by paying a fixed rate of 2 per cent., being about one-half the rate of mutual savings institutions, and to secure the redistribution of such deposits in the areas from which they originated by redeposit in the banks at 2½ per cent. interest.

"Even the 2 per cent. of the original act has been defeated by departmental regulations. An examination of any annual report will show that they do not receive much in excess of 1 per cent., owing to the regulations in force. For instance, in 1918 the average deposits were approximately between $125,000,000 and $130,000,000 and the interest paid to depositors $1,259,000. The same reports will show that profits obtained by the Government in 1918, chiefly from redeposits in banks at 2½ per cent., is given as $1,135,000. If a complete balance sheet were made from the beginning, this return would probably represent at least a 100 per cent. per annum profit on any capital invested by the Government. Such an operation in private banks would be dignified by the term "profiteering" and a public demand would require investigation by the Attorney General.

Makes Definite Recommendations.

"It appears to me that the first thing to do is to pay interest at the rate of ½ per cent. quarterly on average deposits. This is only a matter of justice and is the implication of the law—at the rate of 2 per cent. per annum—not 1 per cent. as at present.

"The second step that seems to me worth considering is the declaration yearly, in advance, of an additional rate that will be paid upon deposits of twelve months' duration. Such annual declaration after deduction for expenses and depreciation of securities would raise the rate on deposits remaining for twelve months to probably somewhat under the mutual savings banks. It would stimulate the leaving of deposits for longer periods.

"It would appear to me, also, time that a more definite organization should be given the Postal Savings at the top. I believe it is necessary and desirable that a real directorate should be appointed in which the Federal Reserve Board and some independent membership should be introduced."

ALL DEFEND THEIR ZEAL

They Reply to Assertion by Ex-Colleagues That They Are Out of Sympathy with Work.

It became known yesterday that due to a row in the Church Temperance Society of the Protestant Episcopal Church seven members of its Board of Managers have resigned.

Those who resigned stated they did so because they were unable to subscribe to the financial management of the organization. Three members of the Executive Committee have answered that some of those who quit did so because they were not in sympathy with the prohibition campaign on which the society some time ago entered. This those who have quit deny. They charge that the society has come to be a "paper organization." The Rev. Dr. James Empringham is the general superintendent. He received $5,000 a year and his expenses.

Those who resigned are: Arthur H. Michell, lawyer, 32 Nassau Street; Roland K. Brown, lawyer, 320 Broadway; the Rev. Dr. Archibald R. Mansfield, superintendent of the Seamen's Church Institute; the Rev. Dr. Floyd S. Leach, assistant rector of St. Thomas's Church, Fifth Avenue and Fifty-third Street; the Rev. E. M. H. Knapp, until recently vicar of the Chapel of the Intercession; the Rev. William H. Owen, Jr., rector of Trinity Church, Mount Vernon, N. Y., and the Rev. Frederick A. Wright, rector of St. John's Church, Tuckahoe, N. Y.

Dr. Leach stated last evening that he had been on "the water wagon all his life and voted the Prohibition ticket.

Dr. Empringham and the Rev. Dr. James V. Chalmers, President of the society, are in Washington, D. C., attending the International Congress Against Alcoholism and are not expected home until Sunday night.

Reply to Dr. Leach.

The current issue of The Chronicle, an Episcopal monthly, which appeared yesterday, contains a long statement by Dr. Leach and is signed by all of those who resigned except Mr. Wright. It also contains a statement in answer, signed by three members of the Executive Committee, defending the policy of the society. These are Dr. Chalmers, W. H. Reid and William J. Schieffelin, who is Treasurer of the organization. The Chronicle is edited by the Rev. Dr. Alexander G. Cummins, rector of Christ Church, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

"The Executive Committee of the Church Temperance Society is making an evasive reply to criticism which has recently been aimed at the present management of the society," says Dr. Leach in a statement.

"The Executive Committee in weakly answering the question, 'Why have some prominent men resigned from the Board of Directors?' quotes a published letter from Mr. Mitchell on the ground 'that he and others resigned because they felt the society was not justified in plunging into a campaign for prohibition in view of the fact that the constitution of the society allows moderate drinking.'

"Mr. Mitchell is a lawyer, and he and others have felt that law should be respected. An attempt to change this part of the constitution a few years ago failed. This, however, is not the basic complaint.

Criticises Business Management.

"My reason for resigning was a refusal to be a party to a business and financial procedure of which I could not approve. This policy is illustrated by the disposition of the income of Squirrel Inn. The inn was closed in the Winter of 1917-18 on recommendation of a special committee appointed to investigate conditions and report. This committee recommended the closing of the inn and leasing the property, the income to be placed in a separate fund from which no drafts were to be made except by resolution of the board.

"The committee's report was unanimously adopted by the board on Dec. 10, 1917. Some time later it appeared that the income was being used for current expenses, and the firm of certified accountants had passed and certified to the correctness of this irregular procedure."

Protests were unheeded, said Dr. Leach, until on June 11, 1918, the board expressed regret that the income continued to be used for current expenses, contrary to positive direction of the board, and directed that the moneys received from the rents of Squirrel Inn and used for current expenses of the society be reimbursed to the Treasurer "at the earliest minute possible."

"By one subterfuge or another the income continued to be used for current expenses and was never set aside as directed," says Dr. Leach in his statement. Then he discusses the use of other funds.

Complains of Heavy Outlay.

"In 1918 a legacy of $1,000 was received from the Cotheal estate, and that disappeared in the same way," says Dr. Leach. "It is also reported that in 1919 the proceeds of the $25,000 legacy from the Margaret E. Zimmerman estate was received. The board never had a clear and satisfactory statement of its financial condition and could never get a real budget.

"I have recently been informed that $15,000 paid on account of the Squirrel Inn was to be used wholly for saloon substitutes, but that $5,000 of this had already been used for current expenses.

"I am confident that if the church at large knew the inside workings of the Church Temperance Society, as some of the ex-members of the board have known it, it would give it neither confidence nor support."

The statement is isgned by Dr. Leach first. Then there follows this statement:

ERIC PAPE, ARTIST, WEDS ALICE BYRNE

Noted Stage Designer's Marriage to Actress and Authoress Last Friday Just Told.

Eric Pape, widely known as an artist and stage designer, was married on Friday of last week to Miss Alice Bryne, actress and authoress. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Vincent C. Lahey at the Little Church Around the Corner, and the friends of the couple learned only yesterday that the marriage had taken place.

Mr. Pape, whose paintings have been exhibited in salons all over the world, founded the Eric Pape School of Art in 1898 and conducted it until 1913. As a stage designer one of his most notable works was the production of Percy Mackaye's "Canterbury Pilgrim," given in honor of President Taft at Gloucester in 1909. In 1895 Mr. Pape made one of the earliest productions of "Trilby" in this country, in Sherry's ballroom. Mr. Pape's first wife, Alice Monroe-Pape, who died in 1911, appeared as Trilby and the late Evert Jansen Wendell played the Laird. He also designed the production for the Titanic memorial performance, "The Flowers of the Sea," given at Gloucester in 1912.

Mr. Pape is a fellow of the Royal Society of Arts in London and a member of the United Arts Club of London, the Atlantic Union, the North British Academy, the Société International Geographique of Paris and many other organizations. He was proposed for The Players by Mark Twain. His paintings in oil, water color and pastel have been exhibited in Paris, Cairo, London, Munich and other capitals.

His bride, Alice Byrne, is an artist and actress and the author of several books for children. She has appeared here with Lou Tellegen in "The King of Nowhere" and several other plays. Mr. and Mrs. Pape will live at Manchester-by-the-Sea, in Massachusetts.

MISS UPSHAW A BRIDE.

Late General's Daughter Marries Everett B. Horgan of This City.

Miss Muriel Alexandria Upshaw, daughter of the late General Alexander Bradford Upshaw and Mrs. Upshaw, was married at noon yesterday in the Church of the Blessed Sacrament to Everett B. Horgan of this city and Brookline, Mass., son of Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Horgan. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss May Upshaw, as maid of honor, and Herbert Horgan served as his brother's best man. A breakfast was served after the ceremony at the home of the bride's mother at the Hotel Ansonia.

The bride is a descendant of Sir Walter Blount, a Colonial Governor; of William Blount, a ratifier and signer of the Constitution, and of the Southern branch of the Bradford family. She is a niece of the late General John Thomas, who was commandant of West Point.

Douglass-Hathaway Wedding Today

Miss Sarah Hathaway of Pelham Manor and Richard Douglass, Jr., of Memphis, will be married today at Pelham Manor. The bride is the daughter of W. A. Hathaway, an official of the American Telephone and Telegraphy Company. Mr. Douglass is a cotton dealer of Tennessee. Laurence L. Roberts, a brother-in-law of the bride, who was to have been best man, was seriously injured in the Wall Street disaster.

Jeremiah John Andreas, one of the last survivors of the Walker filibustering expeditions in Central America, died yesterday at the age of 88. Of recent years he had made his home at 429 Third Street, Brooklyn. He joined Walker's party in Lower California, followed his leader to Central America and settled there.

Church Organist Killed by Fall.

Carl Kebart, organist of the Church of St. Mary, Queen of the Angels, at South Fourth and Roebling Streets, Brooklyn, died early yesterday at the Williamsburg Hospital, after falling out of the back window of the schoolroom of the church a few hours before. Kebart fell two stories into the courtyard. He was 36 years old.

Frederick C. Shann, Editor.

Frederick C. Shann, editor and owner of The Orange Advertiser, which he founded thirty-three years ago, died yesterday of acute indigestion at his home, 133 Park Avenue, Orange, at the age of 55. He was a candidate for the Assembly in 1910 and had served on the Orange Board of Education. His father, Joseph Shann, established the Rahway Record.

MRS. CATT RENEWS WADSWORTH ATTACK

Says if Harding Is Elected Senate Will Be Republican Without New York.

ANSWERS MRS. LIVERMORE

Asserts There Is No Proof That Wadsworth Would Support His Party's Policies.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, President of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, replied yesterday to the recent statement of Mrs. Arthur L. Livermore, Chairman of the Republican Women's State Executive Committee, urging women to vote for United States Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., because Republican control of the Senate was essential to an effective administration in event of Senator Harding's election. Mrs. Catt said it was now easy to see that if Senator Harding carried the country he would carry the Senate without New York. "Any Republican man or woman who wants to vote against Mr. Wadsworth," Mrs. Catt said, "may do so with a clear conscience on this score."

Mrs. Catt said there was no proof that Senator Wadsworth, if re-elected, would support a Republican, as in his attitude on woman suffrage he "opposed the National Republican Convention, the State Republican Convention, the National Republican Committee, the State Republican Committee, the National Republican Chairman, the State Republican Chairman, the Legislature of his State and the personal requests of Mr. Hughes, who might have been President, and of Mr. Roosevelt, who had been President." Mrs. Catt also said there was no proof that Senator Wadsworth would be present to support a Republican President, as he was absent from eighty-one roll calls in the last Congress.

Mrs. Catt asserted that Senator Wadsworth had consistently opposed all measures to restrain, limit or control "special interests," and was a never-failing supporter of "invisible government." She quoted the late Theodore Roosevelt's judgment on him as follows:

"It is rarely that a public man champions the right of big business to do wrong as openly as Mr. Wadsworth."

"A vote for Mr. Wadsworth," Mrs. Catt continued, "is a vote not for the Republican Party but for the control of that party by the 'big business' which is in that party to 'do wrong.' A vote for Mr. Wadsworth is an indorsement of his continuous service to 'big business' when it has opposed the welfare of the people."

HOLCOMB VETOES BILLS.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 23.—Governor Holcomb today vetoed a number of bills passed by the special session of the Legislature on Tuesday, and as a result the Connecticut Woman's Suffrage Association tonight issued a stinging excoriation of the Governor, whom they accuse of being wholly to blame for any eleventh hour difficulties over Connecticut women voting. They denounce the Governor and his coterie of advisers because the special session was not convened early enough to give all Connecticut women the opportunity of participating not only in the Connecticut October elections of town officials, but in the important town caucuses which will nominate Senators and Representatives to the next Legislature.

The Governor "pocket-vetoed" several important bills by refusing to sign them, and they now die because the Legislature failed to remain in session to pass them over his veto, though they repassed one large appropriation bill on Tuesday afternoon. He refused to sign the bill making World War veterans eligible for admission to the Old Soldiers' Home at Noroton, and granting a $100 bonus to Connecticut soldiers if ratified by a State-wide referendum.

The suffragists accuse the Governor of being personally to blame for any confusion. Their statement concludes:

"The question seems to come down to a matter of whether the State intends to give women full equality in suffrage with the men of the State. The Legislature apparently has attempted to do this, but Governor Holcomb has defeated the attempt."

It was learned today that the suffragists entered into a compromise on one of the bills vetoed, and that not only was their second portion of the compromise indefinitely postponed in the closing moments of Tuesday's session, but now the Governor has vetoed the first bit of the compromise, throwing them on the mercies of the two State Central Committees.

Coats & Wraps
Materials and fur trimmings a revelation of richness.
$59.75 to $450.00

Gowns
Simple fashions — welcome news for the woman of stout figure.
$39.75 to $350.00

Blouses
$7.95 to $89.50

INSTEAD of feeling that added weight subtracts from smartness, the woman who wears Lane Bryant models is sure of wearing the newest Paris fashions—deviating in details but faithful in effect—following the slightest changes of fashion, yet slenderizing in line.

Instead of making a mode to follow stout women we make it possible for stout women to follow the mode.

BRITISH AND DUTCH IN PILGRIM FETES

Exercises Will Start with Delegates' Reception at City Hall Monday.

DINNER AT ASTOR TUESDAY

Colby and Pershing to Speak—Mass Meeting of Celebrants on Wednesday.

The Sulgrave Institution announced yesterday this program of events commemorating the tercentenary of the landing of the Pilgrims, in which Lord Rathcreedan and other members of the British delegation which arrived Wednesday and a Dutch delegation will participate:

After their return next Sunday from a tour of the State the delegation will be received at the City Hall at noon Monday, and then will go to the Chamber of Commerce rooms, where a reception and luncheon will be given in their honor. In the afternoon they will be the guests of Dr. William T. Hornaday and Professor Henry Fairfield Osborn, President of the American Museum of Natural History, at the New York Zoological Park.

On Tuesday the party will be the guests of the Sons of the American Revolution at a luncheon at the Army and Navy Club of America. In the evening a dinner will be given at the Hotel Astor by Sulgrave Institution, which will be attended by representatives of seventy organizations allied with Sulgrave in the celebration.

Colonel George W. Burleigh will preside, and among the speakers will be Judge Alton B. Parker, Chancellor of Sulgrave Institution; Secretary of State Bainbridge Colby, Vice Admiral Hilary R. Jones, General John J. Pershing, Dr. A. J. Barnouw and Raoul Dandurand. The Community Service has arranged a pageant and tableaux of events from Pilgrim history, which will be given at the dinner.

The delegates will go on a sightseeing trip Wednesday morning, and at 1 o'clock will be the guests of the Pilgrims of the United States at a luncheon at the Ritz-Carlton, at which ex-Senator Chauncey M. Depew, President of the Pilgrims, will preside.

A mass meeting of all the organizations taking part in the celebration will take place at Carnegie Hall on Wednesday evening. Judge Alton B. Parker will preside, and among the speakers will be Secretary of State Bainbridge Colby, Dr. W. H. De Beaufort, Acting Minister of Holland; Lord Rathcreedan, head of the British delegation; Sir Arthur Shipley, Henry St. George Tucker and Dr. George E. Vincent.

Among the organizations taking part in the dinner and meeting are the American Civic Association, American Defense Society, American Mayflower Council, American Unitarian Association, Brotherhood of St. Andrew, Colonial Dames of America, Community Service, English Speaking Union, Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, Fifth Avenue Association, General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, General Society of Mayflower Descendants, Descendants of Colonial Governors, Merchants' Association, National Council of Congressional Churches, Daughters of the American Revolution, Sons of the American Revolution, New York State Historical Association, St. Andrew's Society and People's Institute.

FRENCH ASSEMBLY ELECTS MILLERAND

Throw Their 69 Votes to Deputy Delory—Great Demonstration Follows Election.

ASSUMES OFFICE AT ONCE

New President Urges Rebuilding of France and a Foreign Policy Worthy of Victory and Sacrifice.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VERSAILLES, Sept. 23.—Alexandre Millerand was today elected President of the French Republic by the Electoral Congress here. He received 695 out of 892 votes recorded.

The Socialist Party maintained the attitude of aloofness that it assumed in French public affairs when Clemenceau became Premier in 1917 and cast its sixty-nine votes en bloc for M. Delory, Deputy of the Nord Department. There were over a hundred blank voting papers due to absence and other reasons and twenty-two votes were cast for other candidates.

The result expresses the virtual unanimity of the country in favor of a strong, straightforward man who, it believes, is best fitted to preside over its destinies during the critical days still to come. Despite the somewhat fictitious demonstration of radical Senators and Deputies against Millerand's announced intention to strengthen the power and influence of the President, there is a general feeling in the country—perhaps ever more than in Parliament—that the President of the Republic should be something more than a figurehead. At the same time no one really fears that Millerand will ever infringe on the sound republican tradition.

The ceremony itself was relieved from monotony by only a few incidents which aroused strained hilarity. The arena of the theatre was packed with Senators and Deputies when Léon Bourgeois as President of the National Assembly took the chair at 2 o'clock for the second time this year. The galleries were even more crowded than seven months ago. Arrangements for the admittance of the press were primitive to the point of suffocation.

In a businesslike fashion M. Bourgeois declared the Assembly open and read the law in regard to the election of a new President in the case of death or retirement. Those members with names beginning with the letter U were chosen to vote first. There was only one Socialist Deputy, named Uhry, whose name began with that unusual letter. He earned distinction for it by crying out as he mounted the tribune to drop his card in the urn: "A bas la dictateur!"

Shouts of laughter greeted this protest and then the voting settled down into a monotonous procession of Deputies and Senators to the tribune. One Xavier de Magallon, in his hurry to vote, dashed up to the tribune only to find he had forgotten his card. For a second he stood confused, then a friend gave hi mhis, and without waiting to find out whether the vote was for the candidate of his choice, De Magallon plunged it into the urn.

It was two hours before the procession of 892 voters past the urn had ended.

When the result was announced the ovation which two days ago in the Chamber was denied to Millerand, was given to him unstintingly. His friends crowded around to congratulate him until his gray top hat was in danger of being irredeemably ruined on the first day of its official appearance.

The ceremony of vestiture was performed by Bourgeois, and shortly after 5 o'clock the new President left in an automobile for Paris, where, as he drove from the Porte Dauphine to the Elysée escorted by cavalry, a great popular reception had been prepared for him.

Fashionable Crowd Turns Out.

For the second time this year the royal town of Versailles was awakened from its dreams of past glories to celebrate today the social function that is the election of a French President. From the gates of the King Louis Palace, across the great square and through the crowded streets bright with flags stretches the road to Paris, guarded on both sides by a fringe of troops in horizon blue. Gay spectators and cheering children accentuate the note of festival.

At 11:30 o'clock the first limousines began to churn the orange sand that had been spread along the Presidential road from the neighboring town of Ville d'Avray. Their occupants looked more like a fashionable crowd of the Grand Prix or a Deauville or Biarritz season—indeed, the trains from Biarritz have been jammed for the last three days—than members of a political assembly, and women in the first creations of Autumn fashion seemed to form the majority.

The goal of every auto was one of the great hotels bordering the park to the right of the palace. First in favor was easily the Hotel des Reservoirs, where it is the acme of "chic" to book a table on the day of the Presidential election in the great hall that once echoed to the iron heels of Bismarck and Moltke. But the echo has been silent since the Summer day last year when in the same hall Brockdorff-Rantzau received a copy of the treaty that marked Germany's downfall.

Since the date of the election was fixed the hotel telephone has been ringing from morn to ve and all yesterday the manager was repeating monotonously, "Pardon, Monsieur l'Ambassadeur; a thousand regrets, Monsier ie Senateur or Mme. la Comtesse, everything is taken."

Those who had retained tables included such different personalities as American Ambassador Wallace and Count Boni de Castellane. The luncheon that seemed most popular was oysters—little pinkish Betons or big Marennes that have an ominous coppery green to unfamiliar eyes—followed by supreme de sole Reservoirs and accompanied by a bottle of white Burgundy, Nuits, Saint Georges or Marsaull, 1906. Partridge on toast with salade romaine formed the piece de resistance with Chambertin, or Mouton Rothschild of the same noble vintage. Then petits pois, fruit and coffee with a glass of authentic Napoleon brandy that is the dearest pride of the Reservoirs Hotel.

Conversation turned more to past events of Deauville or Dieppe than on the election, which everyone realized to be a purely formal affair, and the recent huge winnings of a Cuban sugar king at baccarat were discussed by eager witnesses from Trouville, Aix les Baines and Biarritz.

Briand Is Applauded.

Toward half past 1 there was a general exodus in the direction of the Palace where the Deputies and Senators were streaming across the Cour des Princes to the Congress Hall in the left wing. Briand in his familiar drooping black felt hat received quite a little ovation as he walked briskly up the steps and the smile with which he responded seemed full of triumphant anticipation—"like a Cheshire cat before a bowl of cream," murmured an irreverant reporter beside me.

Much amusement was provided by an eccentric ex-municipal Councilor of a little provincial town named Jules Mathieu, whose harmless and patriotic wish it is to see himself President of the French republic. To conciliate all parties he describes himself as an Independent Republican Democratic candidate, and his appeal to the Senators and Deputies, which was being distributed in the form of leaflets to all and sundry, runs:

"For the third time I am entering the struggle for the election to the Presidency of the republic. As well as any one I know the needs of the poor people and all human misery, having raised a family of eight children and lived among workmen. If your choice falls upon me I will convoke the representatives of the civilized nations and b ymy wise and foresighted counsels I will reach a humanitarianism and understanding that will render all wars henceforth impossible. Under my Presidency France will enjoy once more days blessed by peace, concord and union."

Millerand Quickly Invested.

VERSAILLES, Sept. 23 (Associated Press).—Alexandre Millerand was invested with the executive powers of the eleventh President of the Third Republic today before the assembled Versailles Congress ten minutes after Léon Bourgeois, President of the Senate, had proclaimed him elected, without the usual formality of receiving the powers from the hands of the retiring President at Elysée Palace.

The illness of M. Deschanel, the former President, made impossible the customary ceremony at Paris, but M. Millerand received the greatest ovation at Versailles ever given a President. The Congress, which had been rather apathetic, gave vent today to all the pent-up enthusiasm of the last five days and cheered for several minutes.

M. Millerand, surrounded by Deputies and Senators, was greatly moved. He replied to the congratulations of M. Bourgeois with the assurance that he would discharge the duties of his post in accordance with the Constitution.

"Victorious France must rebuild its ruins and repair its wounds," he said. "We must continue a foreign policy worthy of our victory and our dead. The republican whom Congress has just designated as President will bring to the discharge of his duties all his intelligence and energy and try to be worthy the confidence of the people's representatives."

M. Millerand takes office for a full seven years. Future Presidential elections will take place in September, at a time when both Chamber and Senate have been officially adjourned, necessitating the recall of all the Deputies and Senators. In his election today M. Millerand received the third highest vote ever given a French President, the election of M. Thiers being unanimous, and M. Deschanel receiving 734 votes. Millerand's vote was 695.

Chicago Bootleggers Must Pay Tax on Big Profits

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 23.—Harry W. Mager, Collector of Internal Revenue, announced today that whenever evidence was obtained that a bootlegger had made a large amount of money, his income tax for this year would be collected at once. The law provides a tax-payer's year may be terminated any time the Commissioner believes such action is necessary to safeguard the Government's interests.

"Hundreds of thousands of dollars are made by bootleggers, and unless this tax is collected immediately the chance of the Government ever collecting it is poor," declared Mr. Mager.

MILLERAND'S RISE TO POWER.

Entering Public Life in 1885, He Was Thrice Minister, Then Premier.

Alexandre Millerand, lawyer, publicist, Deputy from the Department of the Seine, Socialist, then Socialist reformer, then Nationalist reformer, was born in Paris Feb. 10, 1859, and educated at the Lycée Henri IV. and the Lycée Michelet.

In the early eighties he was frequently called upon to arbitrate between capital and labor, to defend Socialists before the Court of Appeal. He became a Deputy in 1885, and entered the Waldeck-Rousseau "Cabinet of Republican Defense" in 1899, taking the Portfolio of Commerce, as the first Socialist to accept a portfolio in a bourgeois Ministry. The Socialists expelled him from their party. Ten years later he took the Portfolio of Public Works, Posts and Telegraphs in the first Briand Ministry, and played a prominent part in putting down the great railway strike of October, 1910, by calling the railway men "under the colors."

He was Minister of War in the Poincaré Ministry of 1912-13, and did much to assure his chief's election to the Presidency. He returned to the War portfolio when Viviani formed the "Cabinet of National Defense" on Aug. 26, 1914. By the time Briand formed the Coalition Cabinet in October, 1915, Millerand had resigned.

In the Chamber he continued to support what was progressive in successive Governments, and thus gradually became the artisan of the famous "bloc national" which gave M. Clemenceau his successive majorities, in the fight against "defeatism" as well as that against the Germans, at first on the field, then in the council chamber, and as Governor of Alsace-Lorraine, until he succeeded the "Tiger" last January as Premier and Foreign Minister.

In his intercourse with the Allies at San Remo, Boulogne, Hythe, Spa, and Aix-les-Bains, he judiciously compromised on the Clemenceau legend, and then finally brought all but Socialist France solidly behind him by his uncompromising denouncement of Soviet Russia and his triumphant protection of Poland.

As legislator and pre-war Cabinet Minister, as one of the editors of Clemenceau's La Justice and then as editor in chief of La Petite République, the organ of the Socialist Left, and of La Lanterne, which marked his departure from revolutionary, Unified Socialism, his program gradually developed from class revolution, through class reform, to national reform, as little by little he withdrew from schemes for collective ownership of the means of production and the international association of labor, to reforms in factory inspection, the merchant marine and the enforcement of forgotten laws for the benefit of labor, and finally to measures of national protection from which the last taint of the tradition of Karl Marx had disappeared.

In 1899 the German Kaiser called Prince von Bülow's attention to a speech made by Millerand, and said: "Would that we had such Socialists in Germany!" but in May, 1914, the Kaiser was thrown into a fit of anger over a patriotic speech made by Millerand at Belfort.

In his early days Millerand's private life was rather stormy. He fought two duels, one with pistols, as a result of the Dreyfus excitement, and the other with swords, because Deputy Lavertujon had imagined himself insulted in La Petite République. While editor of La Lanterne, Mme. Paulmier, the wife of a Deputy, entered his office and shot M. Olivier, mistaking him for Millerand, because the latter had attacked her husband.

Maurice Casenave, Minister Plenipotentiary and Director General of the French Service in the United States, last night reviewed M. Millerand's career in a statement and praised his ability as an organizer. He recalled that M. Millerand presided at the universal exhibition of 1900, and distinguished himself there by his remarkable power of organization.

"Mr. Millerand," said Mr. Casenave, "is a remarkable orator, from the points of view both of logic and force. He is more firm than amiable, has a practical mind and is a born organizer.

"Mme. Millerand is reputed to be one of the most remarkable women in Paris on account of her intelligence and benevolence."

MILLERAND A MAN OF FIXED POLICIES

Twenty Years Ago He Was Driven Out of the Socialist Party.

HE CAN SEE ONLY ONE WAY

So He Sticks Through Thick and Thin to Any Policy He Has Adopted.

PARIS, Sept. 23.—On Paris monuments, such as the Alexandre III. Bridge, which commemorates, among other things, the great Paris Exhibition of 1900, is engraved, with those of other Ministers of that date, the name of Alexandre Millerand.

Millerand then was Minister of Commerce, holding office for the first time and as the first Socialist to enter the French Government. The Government had been formed for the exhibition purposes and was supposed to represent all parties and preserve perfect unity. But Millerand's acceptance of office cost him his place in the Socialist Party. He was driven out, he himself said in the Chamber some months ago on the occasion of the debate on the first of May strikes, and he didn't leave of his own accord.

But much water has flowed below the Alexandre III. Bridge since those days, and if Millerand still reckons himself a Socialist he is one of the kind that he himself would have repudiated in the old days. In the twenty years that have passed he has moved steadily across the Chamber in sympathies, until now his most ardent supporters are to be found on the benches beside Léon Daudet and Maurice Barres.

Every morning he rises early and takes a walk for a half hour before breakfast, which is a solid meal. He is never a minute late or early at his office. He lunches alone, but loves a family dinner with his wife and four children. He plays dominoes with his son as his only recreation—on official journeys Marshal Foch is his partner—and he retires to bed at the same hour every evening, to sleep soundly all night without a single dream.

Vigorous at 61.

Sixty-one years of age, he finds himself in perfect health, with the prospect of living at least another score of years.

In figure M. Millerand is short, strong, with broad, muscular shoulders, and he walks with quick little steps. His clothes are tidier than they used to be in Socialist days, though he is no dandy such as Deschanel was, and he never learned the art of wearing a silk hat with natural dignity.

Second to his hard working propensities, the greatest factor in his political advancement has undoubtedly been that he was never gifted with too much imagination. He has never been able to see anything more ways than one at a time, and seeing only one way he has determinedly pursued it. In all the governmental offices he has held in the past, and in the Premiership which he is abandoning, his methods have been the same.

Before accepting office he always stipulated his program, and no circumstance, no change of events, no outside pressure ever altered his obstinate allegiance to that preconceived idea. His speeches in the Chamber show this method to perfection. He always begins by recalling what he said at the outset of his career, and traces in a definite sequence the decisions logically following therefrom.

That was the secret of all his negotiations with Premier Lloyd George. He began when he took office by defining his programme as one of strict execution of the treaty, with no concession to Bolshevism at home or abroad. When the Germans infringed on the treaty terms by invasion of the Ruhr he replied with the occupation of Frankfort. When the Bolsheviki went to London to negotiate for commercial relations he refused to commit himself, and in the end he broke off all relationship.

The same sort of thing has happened throughout the whole time he has been conducting foreign affairs. The Huthe, Boulogne, San Remo and Spa negotiations have always been of the nature of a fight between Millerand's fixed ideas and Lloyd George's genius to accommodate himself to changing conditions and seek working solutions. The result has always been a negative victory for the French Premier.

Typical of France Today.

The situation with regard to Germany and Russia is little changed from the time when he took office eight months ago. Out of Spa France got German coal at a stiff price, and out of the Polish War has come a momentary victory. That is about all.

But at home the difference has been greater. The Millerand policy began with severity and a goodly number of labor leaders are still in prison. Afterward discontent was treated with about the same admixture of leniency and harshness as Pétain treated the 1917 mutiny in the French Army. The result has been, for the present at least, peace. It is a peace in which ideas and ideals are stifled, and every one is placated with more money to buy bad bread.

That is about as far as Millerand's internal policy could ever go. It is the policy of a rather obstinate-minded man whose views and ideas are eminently correct as far as they go, but they do not go too far.

FOUR MENTIONED FOR PREMIER

Jonnart Favored in the Speculation on Next Ministry.

PARIS, Sept. 23.—Politicians tonight were busy discussing the new Cabinet. It is generally held that after the emphatic indorsement of M. Millerand's policy by the Congress at Versailles those who collaborated in it will remain at their posts and that it only requires the finding of a new Premier.

The names of those most mentioned in connection with the Premiership are Aristide Briand, M. Jonnart, M. Viviani and M. Leygues.

From the fact that before accepting the candidacy for the Presidency M. Millerand tried to induce M. Jonnart to stand for election as Chief Magistrate, it is deduced that M. Millerand tomorrow is likely to ask Jonnart to succeed him as Premier and carry on Millerand's policy.

LONDON, Sept. 23 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—More than 200 Jews were killed in the Galician pogroms instituted by the Ukrainians, according to the latest reports received in Kovno, says a dispatch from that city.

The Kiev correspondent of The Daily Herald, describing the recent pogroms in the Ukraine, declares that 10,000 new refugees have reached Kiev, and predicts that if nothing is done to relieve them they will be worse off than the refugees of last Winter, who died at an average of 100 a day.

Ex-Kaiser Presents Hospital to Amerongen; His Aide Weds Countess Elizabeth Bentinck

AMERONGEN, Sept. 23.—The hospital which the ex-Kaiser built on the outskirts of Amerongen to show his gratitude for the hospitality extended to him by the village was presented by Wilhelm himself today to the municipality.

Few persons save the village officials and members of the Order of the Knights of St. John, including Count Bentinck, knew this was the day appointed for the ceremony. These applauded the ex-Kaiser's words. In announcing the presentation he stood in the reception room of the hospital beneath a large portrait of himself wearing the imperial crown, while near by hung similar portraits of the ex-Kaiserin and Queen Wilhemina, also in robes of state, the latter picture having been autographed by the Queen for the occasion.

The village had been profusely decorated in honor of Orange Day, and these decorations served the purpose of adding lustre to the present occasion as Wilhelm's gray limousine passed by.

This evening there was a dinner at the Bentinck Castle, attended by the participants in the dedication.

The hospital, though given to the village, is under the supervision of the Knights of St. John, who still recognize the ex-Kaiser as their traditional head, no matter what the rest of the world thinks of him.

A civil marriage has taken place between young Countess Elizabeth Bentinck and the ex-Kaiser's Adjutant, von Sleman.

JAPAN PLANS SUIT AGAINST CALIFORNIA

If Impending Anti-Japanese Bill Is Passed Will Contend It Is Unconstitutional.

ALSO VIOLATION OF TREATY

Washington Government May Be Asked to Appoint a Commission to Settle Problems.

TOKIO, Sept. 23 (Associated Press).—The Washington Government will be asked to appoint a commission to effect a solution of Japanese-American problems, and in the event of the passage of the California anti-Japanese legislation the Japanese Government will arrange for a lawsuit against the California Legislature on the ground that the bill is unconstitutional and a violation of the treaty rights of the Japanese, according to leading newspapers today.

The newspapers say the above program was defined at a meeting of the Cabinet and the diplomatic advisory council.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 (Associated Press).—Reports in the Japanese newspapers that the Japanese Cabinet and advisory council had decided to ask the United States to appoint a commission to effect a solution of Japanese-American problems created surprise at the State Department, where efforts to effect an understanding by diplomatic means are still being made.

It was stated today that no official information had been received indicating that Japan had decided to take the question out of the hands of its Ambassador, Kijuro Shidehara, who recently received authority from his Government to conduct formal negotiations with the State Department on the various questions which before that time had been discussed only informally.

The conversations now under way between the Japanese Ambassador, on the one hand, and department officials and Roland S. Morris, American Ambassador to Japan, on the other, have to do with the Japanese occupation of Saghalien Island as well as the anti-Japanese legislation to be voted on in California in November.

It has been made clear that the State Department has no intention of attempting to influence the result in California. It was said that should the legislation be adopted an understanding with the Japanese Government on the result of it might be obtained in two ways, one by a treaty modifying action taken by a State or by action in the United States courts.

To invoke the first method is said to be no part of the plan of the State Department. The second method is believed to have been suggested in the conversations and may have been the basis of the reported decision of the Japanese Government to resort to the courts to determine the constitutionality of such legislation.

FIUME UP AGAIN IN ITALY.

People Are Wondering What Stand Premier Giolitti Will Take.

ROME, Sept. 23.—The solution of the Adriatic question is once again coming to the fore. As far as can be gathered from Premier Giolitti he holds the same views on the subject as his predecessor, Nitti.

The negotiations had hardly been initiated at Pallanza last June when the fall of the Nitti Cabinet cut short any further discussions. When Giolitti assumed the reigns of government vital internal problems were waiting to be unraveled, relegating the Fiume question to a secondary position.

People are now wondering what line of conduct the Premier intends to adopt in the future meetings between the Italians and the Jugoslavs.

It is hard to eradicate from the public mind that Giolitti was against the war or a member of the "Peace-at-Any-Price" Party, as they call him, and therefore willing to make further concessions than the Nitti Cabinet.

It is said that the conditions asked by the Italians will be the boundaries set down by the Treaty of London with Fiume an independent sovereign city, including the port and railway, and a guarantee of the independence of Albania. But as to the fate of Dalmatia perfect silence is kept on the subject.

Italians consider the possession of Dalmatia vital for military safety and economic expansion toward the east. The Giornale d'Italia says that Jugoslavs occupying Cattaro, Sebenico and the Dalmatian archipelago would be a daily and an hourly threat to Italy.

MILAN, Sept. 23.—The Government has notified d'Annunzio that the transatlantic liner Cogne, whose seizure with a cargo valued at over £1,500,000 took place at the beginning of September, must be immediately and unconditionally surrendered, because the bulk of its merchandise is the property of foreign firms.

Failing compliance, Premier Giolitti threatens a blockade of Fiume and other reprisals.

PLANS TO REDUCE GERMANY'S DEBT

RIGID ECONOMY PROGRAM

"Waste" Law to be Introduced and Many Offices Abolished—Mines to be Socialized.

BERLIN, Sept. 23 (Associated Press).—Under a threat of resigning his post and thereby precipitating a crisis, Herr Wirth, Minister of Finance, today not only succeeded in forcing the Cabinet to tackle the problem of the nation's tangled finances, but also obtained for himself an ascendent influence in Governmental affairs.

At an extraordinary session of the Cabinet Herr Wirth presented an unvarnished analysis of Germany's financial condition, hurling billions of marks of deficits at his colleagues and charging that the "wretched finances are but an expression of maladministration."

As a result of his frank exposition the Cabinet unanimously voted to take up immediately the problem of the confiscation of coal fields and ordered the Minister of Economy to prepare the draft of a law, based on the report recently compiled by the National Commission for Socialization.

At no stage of the Cabinet's deliberation did Herr Wirth encounter the opposition of his colleague, who, regardless of party affiliations, agreed that the appalling situation demanded prompt and drastic action. It is taken for granted now that the crisis rumors which have been current during the last week are disposed of and that the Majority Socialist will continue as onlookers, according "benevolent neutrality" to the bourgeois Cabinet.

There is some belief that Herr Erzberger is back of the Minister of Finance's unexpected offensive. Erzberger recently arrived in Berlin, for the purpose, it is believed, of preventing, if possible, the trimming of his financial policies and taxation measures that he had induced Herr Wirth to take up.

The Finance Minister told the Cabinet that Germany's total debt, including the funded debt of 91,000,000,000 marks, amounted to 242,700,000,000 marks.

The deficit in the current budget, according to Herr Wirth, will reach a total of 55,700,000,000 marks. The nation is facing claims for indemnities to subjects growing out of the war and the Peace Treaty totaling 131,000,000 marks. The operation of the State railways had been responsible for a deficit of 16,000,000,000 marks, while the operation of posts and telegraphs was 2,000,000,000 marks short of their expected returns. The national debt had been increased by 47,500,000,000 marks during the current year, said the Minister.

The statement of Herr Wirth, which was issued after a Cabinet meeting, said, among other things:

"It was resolved to introduce a 'waste' law at all costs to strengthen the position of the Imperial Minister of Finance in the Cabinet, as it is absolutely necessary, wherever possible, to put a stop to extravagant expenditure and to employ every means to avert further depreciation in the currency.

"The 1920 ordinary estimates were to contain, as a matter of principle, no new expenditure, and a systematic limitation of existing expenditures is to be introduced. No new official posts are to be created.

"It has also been resolved to carry out a progressive reduction in offices already existing and a speedy extinction of the existing war concerns, and also to remove as quickly as possible the railway and postal service deficits.

"The Cabinet further unanimously decided to entrust to the Imperial Minister for Economic Affairs the task of introducing a bill for the socialization of mines on the basis of the report of the Socialization Committee."

Prince Koudacheff, who formerly expressed a desire to save China from embarrassment in connection with his position, now declines to close the legation. China is therefore forced to consider other measures having for their object the cessation of functioning by the legation.

China hopes to place the Russians in this country in the same position as the nationals of non-treaty powers, depriving them of extraterritorial privileges and thereby encouraging other nations to abandon these privileges.

Railway and Transport Workers Fail to Reach Decision at Conference—Cabinet Ready for Crisis.

LONDON, Sept. 23.—A meeting of the greatest importance was held this afternoon between ministers and high officials in various departments for the purpose of discussing plans which the Government will put into operation in order to safeguard the well-being of the community should no peaceful settlement be found in the mining dispute.

It is understood the Departments for Transport and Trade, the Home Office, War Office, Admiralty and Food Ministry were represented.

In the departments concerned there was a period of tense waiting and expectancy tonight. Lloyd George, Bonar Law and Sir R. S. Horne were within reach and all their righthand men were in readiness to deal with any development that might arise.

Delegates of the three organizations composing the Triple Alliance sat all the afternoon and evening behind closed doors, sometimes separately and sometimes together. From these secret deliberations scraps of news filtered through to the public at long intervals, in most cases throwing but little light.

Most ominous of the earlier items was that the delegates of the miners after a long debate as to whether they should refer the Government's offer to a new ballot of their members decided in the negative by a card vote. This decision showed that in the miners' meeting the war party was definitely dominant. It is understood that Smillie himself proposed a new ballot and urged it most strongly. Three hundred and sixty votes were given for the second ballot and 545 against.

The general belief is that the victory of the violent extremists in the miners' meeting was not duplicated in the sectional meetings of the railwaymen and transport workers.

A full conference of the Triple Alliance was held tonight and adjourned at midnight without reaching a decision. Before its commencement it was learned that all the leaders took a most pessimistic view of the situation—J. H. Thomas declared he could see not one ray of hope—but one and all were most reticent as to what was going on behind the closed conference doors and refused any information whatever.

It was learned on good authority that while the miners bound by the majority were "standing solid" for a strike the railwaymen and transport workers were anxious to avoid coming out in their support.

Premier Urges Miners to Yield.

LONDON, Sept. 23 (Associated Press).—Premier Lloyd George made another appeal today to the miners to accept the Government's proposal and refer the question of an increase in wages to an independent tribunal, or, as an alternative to meet the owners and agree upon a scheme increasing the output, which the Government believes would give the miners more wages than they are demanding.

But the Premier's appeal was futile. The miners insisted that their demand of a two-shilling increase should be granted immediately and passed a resolution refusing to withdraw the strike notices which expire Saturday.

At the meeting a letter was read from the Premier explaining in detail his proposal for a conference between the miners, mine owners and officials of the Department of Mines, to secure a better output.

President Smillie and Frank Hodges replied in substance: "Our executives repeat their assurance that when the present wage claim is disposed of they will be prepared to undertake an inquiry into the whole wage system."

The Premier further replied urging acceptance of his proposal and pointing out that if it was rejected "I would remind you that a peaceful method of settling the wage claim is still open to you by a means similar to that adopted by the railway men and a majority of your colleagues in the triple alliance."

Three Conferences Held.

This was a day of conferences. First the triple alliance, composed of miners, railwaymen and transport workers, met as one body. Then there were sectional meetings, and finally another joint meeting lasting until midnight.

Many of the leaders favored conciliation and further negotiations with the Government, but so far as the miners were concerned the majority decided to endeavor to get what they desire by means of a strike. This policy having been adopted, it remained for teh triple alliances to decide what, if any, action the railwaymen and transport workers should take to support the miners.

There were many speeches, but the long conference could not reach a decision, and adjournment was taken until tomorrow. This adjournment will give the Government another opportunity to find a peaceful solution, and Premier Lloyd George and Sir Robert S. Horne, President of the Board of Trade, are remaining in town over the week-end in case their services are necessary.

ALBANY BLOCKS IRISH PLEA

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Sept. 23.—The Republican majority in the State Senate tonight refused passage to a resolution proposing that the British Prime Minister be requested by cable to release Lord Mayor MacSwiney from the Brixton prison. The resolution, killed, temporarily at least, by a forced adjournment demanded by Majority Leader J. Henry Walters and sustained by a Republican vote of 24 to 20, went over for further consideration tomorrow.

The measure was introduced by Minority Leader James J. Walker. It gave rise to some debate which Senator Walters endeavored to stop by asking that action on the resolution be postponed until tomorrow.

Senators Sage of Albany and Knight of Wyoming spoke in opposition to the resolution, while Boylan of New York urged its adoption.

The resolution, as introduced, reads:

"Whereas, the Legislature of the State of New York in extraordinary session assembled, is confident that the English-speaking people of the world will jealously guard and perpetuate those principles of humanity, freedom of government and toleration of the opinions of free people for which thousands of American soldiers laid down their lives on foreign soil; and whereas, for nearly two months past the detention of Lord Mayor MacSwiney and his unselfish devotion to principle has awakened feelings of sympathy and pity throughout the world, and thousands of the citizens of this State and nation honestly believe that his release from incarceration at this time would increase the confidence of the world in the fairmindedness and sincerity of the English-speaking race in respect to those principles the great war established for the benefit of all peoples and the uplift of mankind, be it resolved (if the Assembly concur) that the English Government be requested by cable to the Prime Minister of England forthwith to cause the release from prison of the aforesaid Lord Mayor MacSwiney and that the Secretary of State transmit a copy of this resolution by cablegram and an engrossed copy by mail to the Prime Minister of England."

The Senate will meet at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 23.—A daily airline passenger service between New York and this city is a possibility next Summer. Major Lorillard Spencer, who has been flying back and forth between Newport and New York all Summer, is greatly interested in the proposed new line.

The tentative plan is to have two flying boats, capable of carrying six or more passengers, engaged in the service, one to leave New York in the morning so as to arrive in Newport before lunch and the other to leave Newport in the afternoon to insure passengers being in New York in time for dinner.

The city officials will be asked to keep the southern end of the harbor clear of boats and to construct a suitable landing place there.

'WET' PROTESTS FAIL IN MEXICO CITY

MAY CUT PART OF TAXES

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 22.—President de la Huerta's "dry" policies have caused a big ferment here. As a result of the order by the President closing the saloons on Saturday at midday and on Sunday all day, the liquor interests are using all kinds of influence with the Governor of the Federal District.

Many members of the Chamber of Commerce interested in the sale of liquor are using the power of their organization to try to cause a revocation of the order. Daily delegations of saloon owners, mostly Spaniards, visit the Governor's office demanding that the "dry" condition be ended. They say that their interests have been damaged by the closing.

The Governor has stated that under no consideration will the order be rescinded, as the desire of the President is to have the entire district dry during the pay periods of laborers. This step, it is declared, was taken after long study which demonstrated that usually the Mexican laborer spent the largest portion of his wages directly after being paid.

Although it is supposed that the Government will lose a considerable amount of revenue, yet the President thinks that his duty to the people requires the Government to take direct action on anything affecting their welfare. It is a duty, said the President, at times for the Government to show the citizens results of vice and roads to health and prosperity. The Government, he holds, must consider the interests of the greater number of citizens, although causing losses to certain interests.

De la Huerta realizes that it is impossible to make many radical changes in the short time he will remain in the Presidency, yet wishes to start works which will probably be continued by the next President.

A large delegation of wine producers saw the Governor this afternoon without result. Numbers of personal friends of the Governor and the President are working in behalf of the liquor interests daily, trying to change the attitude of the Government. Although in Mexico personal influence is used more than in many other countries, they have been unable to move de la Huerta.

The saloons which sell beer, wines and liquors are almost entirely in the hands of foreigners. Those which sell pulque are practically all controlled by Mexicans. The foreigners are making the strongest protests. A number of representatives of foreign interests, mostly Spaniards, after a meeting, threatened to use diplomatic pressure against the Government.

He Has Been in Pain for Ten Days, Chaplain Says—Has Slight Rally.

LONDON, Sept. 23 (Associated Press).—"The Lord Mayor of Cork is somewhat less exhausted this evening," says the bulletin issued by the Irish Self-Determination League at 8 o'clock tonight. "The pains in his head, from which he has been suffering for two days, have abated. He is still conscious," the bulletin added.

At a dinner given this evening by the Bishops of Cloyne, Southwark and Portsmouth to Archbishop Mannix, the Archbishop, speaking of Lord Mayor MacSwiney, said he had never read of anything more callous than the alternative made to the noble man dying in Brixton Prison that he should give a guarantee in exchange for his life that murders, for which he was not responsible, should cease.

Archbishop Mannix added that if he went to Ireland he would speak against contention and to promote peace.

Officials at the London headquarters of the Irish Self-Determination League manifested no anxiety this evening over the immediate danger of Lord Mayor MacSwiney's death, but stoutly maintained that he was receiving no food, a few sips of water every three or four hours being his only sustenance.

The warning bulletin issued by the league said that MacSwiney had a few hours of restful sleep last night, but was suffering severe pains in his head and was very weak this morning.

Reports to the Home Office by the prison physician stated that there was no apparent change in the Lord Mayor's condition.

Father Dominic, the Mayor's chaplain, said to the correspondent after a visit to the prisoner's bedside: "His cheeks and temples are sunken and his body is badly emaciated. He has had an almost continual headache for ten days, but his mind is always clear.

"The league's reports of his extremely weakened condition are not overdrawn. It is not true that the prisoner reads the newspapers daily. He reads for a few minutes at a time, but the paper is always held by a nurse. It is also incorrect to say that MacSwiney shaves himself. He is shaved every two or three days by a warder."

Father Dominic said that in the event of Mr. MacSwiney's death he would be buried in that portion of the Cork cemetery allotted to "the victims of the English," alongside the grave of his predecessor, Lord Mayor MacCurtain.

KILL SIX POLICE AT LAHINCH

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 23.—The Government is anxiously concerned about the effect that the condition of clandestine civil war now prevalent in a large part of Ireland is having on the morale of the troops and constabulary, THE NEW YORK TIMES learns.

A rigid inquiry is being made into such deplorable incidents as the outbreak of the "Black and Tan" police at Balbriggan, and General Sir Nevil Macready, Commander in Chief in Ireland, is determined to restore discipline and punish the offenders.

At the same time the authorities are not prepared to accept as true, without adequate proof, every story that is published of military indiscipline. Thus, it was pointed out to THE NEW YORK TIMES today by a high authority, that one type of alleged outrage is frequently reported from different sections, namely, that soldiers or police have driven at high speed through the towns firing wildly on all sides in a Wild West fashion.

Investigation, it is believed, will prove that such incidents may sometimes be explained by motor engines back-firing, with the result that the noise of the exhaust has been mistaken by excited spectators for rifle shots, while in other cases where actual firing has taken place it can be shown that Sinn Feiners and not the police were responsible.

The difference between the official and popular accounts of nif the Sinn Fein "Judge," Jack Lynch, came to his end in a Dublin hotel is another illustration of how easy it is for a regular police action to be represented in the present heated atmosphere of Ireland as a "military outrage," and the Government feels that in justice to its subordinates it must investigate fully before it begins to impute blame.

It does not, however, attempt to deny that there have been several most serious instances of soldiers or police wreaking reprisals on defenseless civilians, and it intends to take stern measures to make a repetition of such incidents impossible, for, at is was pointed out to THE NEW YORK TIMES, setting aside for the moment consideration of the suffering such outbreaks cause to innocent women and children, and the most unfortunate effect they have on any hope of reaching a settlement of the Irish question, the Government cannot be indifferent to the way in which lawlessness is affecting the forces of the Crown. It cannot stand idly by while the discipline of the soldiers and police is undermined by sporadic bursts of violence, and to suppose that it could be a party to them would be to assume that it had embarked on a course of administrative suicide.

Police Wreck Three More Villages.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUBLIN, Sept. 23.—Following another attack by civilians on the police three more small towns and villages were sacked last night by men in uniform. These places, which are all situated on or near the coast of County Clare, are Milltown-Malbay, Ennistymon and Lahinch. In all, eighteen houses were burned down, seven in Milltown-Malbay, six in Lahinch, and five at Ennistymon. At the last named place two civilians were shot dead and one man was killed at Lahinch.

Only meagre accounts of the affair have come to hand as yet. The attacks by uniformed men were in revenge for the ambushing of a motor lorry near Ennistymon on Wednesday, when six policemen were killed. In the fight four of the assailants were also seen to fall.

Thirty-six arrests were made of people suspected of being implicated in the attack and great military activity now prevails in the locality. All the roads are commanded by machine guns and approach to the spot is impossible.

Milltown Malbay, which was nearest to the scene of the conflict, has been the heaviest sufferer. There are hardly a dozen houses in the little town which do not bear marks of the outbreak. Just before midnight rifle fire warned the inhabitants of what was about to take place, and then uniformed men paraded the streets, cheering and smashing windows and doors with rifle butts. Business premises and private houses were set on fire and a search was made for certain men whose names were freely mentioned. They, however, had fled from the place.

It is alleged that the raiders had supplies of petrol and that the destroyed houses were gutted in about half an hour. Numbers of soldiers, led by their officers, helped to fight the flames and the townspeople say that if it had not been for their assistance the damage would have been much greater. A few of the local police were also engaged in the work of rescue.

The raiders did not leave the town until 5 A. M.

At Ennistown and Lahinch the Town Halls were burned down and many farm houses in the countryside over a distance extending to ten miles were set afire.

General Hints at Official Reprisals.

DUBLIN, Sept. 23 (Associated Press).—General Sir Nevil Macready, commander of the military forces in Ireland, in an interview today denied that the reprisals for the assassination of police taken at Balbriggan by the "Black and Tan" police, and elsewhere by the regular police or military, were actuated by any set policy formulated by the Government. He declared, however, that if the guerrilla warfare of the Irish republican army continued the situation might become such that reprisals would be necessary. He asserted, however, that he had no authority over the police but only over the troops.

General Macready explained why reprisals occurred, saying that any American Army officer would understand exactly the spirit which led to them.

"I wish," he said with a smile, "we could ship a whole lot of the trouble-makers to your country. You would know how to deal with them."

It is officially announced that Captain Lendrums, resident Magistrate of Kilrush, is missing and that it is believed he was murdered on Wednesday.

LONDON, Sept. 23.—Castle Mary, the seat of Colonel Longfield, dating from the reign of King John, was set on fire and destroyed by raiders last night. The raiders gave the occupants of the castle ten minutes in which to leave the building.

MUSIC FESTIVAL IN BERKSHIRES OPENS

PIANISTS IN ENSEMBLE

Guy Maier and Lee Pattison Play Brahms's Variations on a Theme by Haydn and Pieces by Debussy.

By RICHARD ALDRICH.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Sept. 23.—For the third time Mrs. Frederick Shurtleff Coolidge has invited an audience of musicians and music lovers to what is modestly styled the Berkshire festival of chamber music. She has already distinguished herself as a member of the band of American music lovers who endow orchestras and string quartets, and on the South Mountain, outside of Pittsfield, has built a chamber music hall, small, as its function requires it to be, and housed the players of the Berkshire String Quartet—soon to be disbanded at least for the present, as is currently reported.

For the third time, also, Mrs. Coolidge, in connection with the festival, offered a prize of $1,000 for a new chamber composition to be played as part of the festivities. As has already been announced, the prize was given to Francesco Malipiero, a young Italian composer of rising distinction; the composition will be played at the last concert.

A chamber music festival offers scope for music ingenuity in the arrangement of programs; for chamber music is a term that covers a variety of very different things. Ingenuity has been displayed heretofore in the arrangement of the Berkshire festival programs, and characterizes those of this week. There could hardly be a wider divergence of style and substance than there was in the two parts of the opening program.

It began with Beethoven's great C Sharp Minor String Quartet, op. 131, the most wonderful, doubtless, of the last five that so long remained a sealed book to even the elect in chamber music; a piece whose soaring imagination, endless streaming of ideas and eloquent intensity of expression drove Wagner into writing a long complex program for it, embodying what he conceived those ideas and that expression to mean reduced to printed words on white paper. But many will think that words pant miserably behind this music or at least that it expresses something other than that and different from poetry or prose and that here more definitely than anywhere else music remains triumphantly music.

The work, as all music lovers know, is of transcendent difficulty in technique and still more in spirit. The valient young men of the Berkshire Quartet, Messrs. Kortschak, Gordon, Evans and Stoeber, of whom Mr. Evans is a new recruit in the problematical place of the viola, attacked it valiantly and with results much to their credit. There was serious study and thought shown in the performance; some might disagree as to the tempos, as to certain details or interpretation; nor could it be said that with all the zeal of the performance it compassed quite all the sheer beauty of the music or found all its deeper significance. But the performance made, as it was intended to make, a noble beginning for the festival.

It was followed by a performance on two pianos by Messrs. Guy Maier and Lee Pattison, whose remarkable skill in the attainment of precision of ensemble and agreement of spirit has been admired in New York. They played Brahms's variations on a theme by Haydn, which, though chiefly known as an orchestral piece, exists in an alternative version by the composer for two pianos; three pieces by Debussy called "In black and White," which are among the last music he wrote. The first, to Igor Stravinsky, is an amusing bit of persiflage; another, to Lieutenant Jacques Charlot, killed in the war, is what they used to call a "battle piece," like "The Battle of Prague": it might be rash to say of how much greater value.

The last one, to A. Kussewitzky, who was, till the face of the earth was changed in Russia, a Russian double bass player and then a conductor, seems at first hearing of more interest in its wayward impetuosity. There were four little pieces by Casella, one of the young Italian iconoclasts, that can be taken as not much more than jokes; a disquieting Berceuz, a serenade of jigging discords; a nocturne introducing an acidulous nightingale and a polka of the frankest vulgarity. A more dignified end was reached with a piece by J. Guy Ropartz that had moments of serene and impressive beauty, and more than moments of free-handed appropriation from his master, César Franck.

The audience which filled the little hall contained many musicians of distinction and many music-lovers of prominence.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

The opening of "Broadway Brevities" at the Winter Garden will take place next Wednesday, instead of Tuesday.

The title of the new Shipman-Victor play has been changed from "Undesirable Friends" to "The Unwritten Chapter." The play, in which Louis Mann will be seen, will come to the Astor Theatre on Oct. 11.

There will be but one performance at the Century Promenade on Sunday night, instead of two, as heretofore. It will begin at 8:30 o'clock.

Charles Dillingham's production of "The Half Moon," in which Joseph Cawthorn will be starred, will open in Wilmington next Monday. Others in the cast will be Joseph Santley, Oscar Shaw, Ivy Sawyer, Maude Eburne and May Thompson. William Le Baron has written the book and lyrics and Victor Jacobi the music.

"Sonny," by George V. Hobart, has been placed in reharsal by the Shuberts. Emma Dunn and Lillian Lorraine head the cast.

The Cort Theatre will be dark next week, following the departure of "Abraham Lincoln." "Jim Jam Jems" will open at the Cort during the week of Oct. 4.

Bertha Mann has become leading woman of Oliver Morosco's stock producing company in Los Angeles.

Marguerite Sylva will be in the cast of George M. Cohan's forthcoming revue, in which Sam Bernard, Joe Weber and Lew Fields also will appear.

George M. Cohan's production of "The Meanest Man in the World" will open at the Hudson Theatre on Monday night, Oct. 11.

The Provincetown Players will reopen for the season on Nov. 1.

"The Mandarin," a foreign play adapted by Herman Bernstein, will be produced in near future with Brandon Tynan in the title role.

MUSIC NOTES.

Jan Kubelik will arrive in New York aboard the Savoie in the next few days, for his first appearance here in seven years. He will give seven recitals in New York City during the season, and will also tour the country.

MOSS'S COLISEUM OPENS.

Another theatre was added to the imposing Keith list last night with the opening of B. S. Moss's Coliseum at Broadway and 181st Street. The new house, which is exceeded in size only by the Hippodrome and the Capitol, seats 3,500 on two floors. It is one of the theatres recently affiliated with the Keith circuit, but will retain the name of B. S. Moss.

An audience which stood several rows deep attended the first performance, which ran until well after midnight. Vaudeville and motion pictures will make up the program at the new house, with a change of bill twice weekly. Eddie Foy headed the opening vaudeville bill, and Norma Talmadge in "The Branded Woman" and Harold Lloyd in "Get Out and Get Under" provided the film features.

The new house is finished in gray, gold and red. E. F. Albee, Martin Beck and other vaudeville executives were present at the opening.

"Scholarship Dinner" Also a Feature of Library Convention.

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Sept. 23.—The meeting of the New York Library Association, which is holding its annual convention at the Lake Placid Club, was devoted this morning to reports of committees on institutions. In the evening the main address was delivered by William Webster Ellsworth, President of the Century Company, who spoke on "Forty Years of Publishing."

A reception was given to all the librarians at White Birches by Dr. and Mrs. Melvil Dewey. Dr. Dewey is President of the Lake Placid Club and of the National Efficiency Society and Simplified Spelling Board, and is former State Librarian.

A "scholarship dinner" in recognition of the "excellent services of fifteen women from villages of 6,000 or less inhabitants in the State, leaders in literary work," was a feature of the day's events. Dr. J. R. Dwyer, Jr., of the State Library, made the presentation speech and delivered diplomas of excellence.

WORKERS ASK CONTROL.

Want to Take Over Street Railway, Assuming Losses.

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—Employes of the Chelsea division of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Company will ask the trustees and Governor Coolidge for permission to take over and manage the division, assuming losses if any are incurred, President James M. O'Brien of the carmen's union announced today.

The employes, he said, felt confident that they could operate the division with a profit, at the same time reducing fares and putting the road in good physical condition.

San Carlo Company Sings "Aida."

Another packed house heard the San Carlo Opera Company at the Manhattan last night, when "Aïda" was the attraction. Mme. Rappold was the Aïda, which she has sung many times before; Stella de Mette was the Amneris and Manuel Salazar the Rhadames. The audience was vociferous in its applause, and there were five or six calls after every number. "Lohengrin" will be sung tonight, with Anna Fitziu as Elsa.

First Movies Shown in Zion City.

ZION CITY, Ill., Sept. 23.—One thousand school children and nearly as many of their elders saw their first motion pictures last night. They packed the Zion Tabernacle when Overseer Wilbur Glenn Voliva lifted the church ban on the movies to permit the exhibition of local pictures taken with equipment purchased by the church.

GUARD GOV. HOLCOMB AFTER THREAT OF DEATH

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Sept. 23.—Governor Holcomb is at his old home in New Hartford, tonight, twenty miles northwest of this city, and ample precautions are being taken to insure his personal safety similar to those adopted at the capitol today when a special State policeman, on guard at the entrance to the executive offices, scrutinized all callers whose business was not known.

Though the Governor probably knew little or nothing about it, a letter was received at his office today threatening his life unless he paid a certain sum of money. It was deemed wise to place the case in the hands of the State police who promptly took steps to safeguard him, although the threat is generally regarded as a hoax or the work of a crank.

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—A third warning, of intended violence was received by Mayor Peters today. It was contained in a letter signed "Reds" which said "You will be shot Friday night at 12." The Mayor last night issued a proclamation calling upon all citizens to report to the authorities any act or word involving menace to public institutions or officials.

Warnings that buildings were to be destroyed continued to be received in various New England cities today. The Mayor of Fall River was notified for a second time that mills were to be blown up and the superintendent of a large office building in Providence was similarly warned.

SOUTH NORWALK, Conn., Sept. 23.—Chief of Police W. R. Pennington, regarding it as merely a joke, today made public a letter he had received in which warning was given that the State armory and several factories here were to be blown up on Saturday noon.

BANDITS ROB MAIL TRUCK.

Escape with Pouches Worth from $5,000 to $20,000 in South Bend.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Sept. 23.—Two bandtis held up a screened United States mail truck here today and escaped in an automobile with mail valued by J. N. Hunter, postmaster, at from $5,000 to $20,000. The robbery occurred early in the morning, but the authorities held back the announcement.

The machine in which the bandits were riding drew alongside the mail truck soon after it left the New York Central Railroad station on its way to the post office, according to Clarence Hotstetter, who was in charge of the mail carrier. He said he was forced from the car, one of the robbers driving it a mile away before the mail poches were removed to the other machine.

A Story That Makes The Heart Grow Warmer

It is impossible for any man or woman to see

"Over the Hill to the Poorhouse"

without getting a tremendous thrill. This story attacks your emotions and beats upon your consciousness in heavy waves. It takes your mind by storm. It awakens your imagination.

William Fox has produced "the screen's greatest 'mother story'." He has made a love story of and for all ages. He has screened an appeal to every mother's son and every mother's daughter. You will be literally overwhelmed by the heart interest of Will Carleton's mighty drama.

OVER THE HILL TO THE POORHOUSE

Every newspaper critic in Greater New York, voicing the opinions of more than six millions of readers, has pronounced this production as "the realest motion picture you have ever seen."

Long Term Railroad Bonds

High grade long time railroad issues can be purchased today to yield a return higher than has been obtainable in any previous year for more than a generation. The enactment of the Transportation Act of 1920, followed by the increase in rates granted by the Interstate Commerc Commission, has greatly clarified and strengthened the railroad situation. We recommend to investors the purchase at this time of long time railroad bonds.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

The continued decline of industrial stocks was general yesterday, selling being furthered by fresh facts in respect to price recessions in the merchandise field. The 33 1-3 per cent. reduction of cotton goods' quotations by the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company, one of the largest producing units in this country, lent emphasis to the movement first instituted in retail lines last May and made prominent by the American Woolen Company's action early this month when contracts for Spring delivery were booked. Also the reduction of 10 to 20 per cent. in catalogue quotations of two leading mail order houses received due attention in stock market quarters, together with news that the Franklin Manufacturing Company was making ready to let down its motor car prices 17 to 21 per cent. These events, and others of the same order likely to follow, have long been in the making, and their expected appearance was heralded by the reaction of share quotations in the last three months. The bears made considerable capital of price cutting and the reluctance of consumers to buy during the Summer, and one reason why there should be a secondary reaction now is that the gradual recovery of the last three or four weeks left stocks vulnerable to fresh attack. A faint rally in the final hour of trading was not sufficient to prevent net losses extending from 1 to 3 points, the reaction being somewhat more extensive than on Wednesday and under a heavier flow of transactions. Call money was steady at 7 per cent. and time funds also were unchanged.

Railroad stocks moved irregularly, a few of the low priced class gaining while most of the list receded fractionally. While these were acting uncertainly, railroad bonds were more active than the day before and prices were firm, including even several convertible issues of companies whose stocks were weak. The bond market has been encouraging for some time past and the decline of commodity quotations, with its influence in enhancing the purchasing power of the dollar, contains a force which increases the attractiveness of investments bearing a fixed return. Doubtless much of the buying of railway bonds of late has been of the purely speculative order. The rising cost of capital and credit worked steadily to depress bond quotations during the period after the armistice was signed when the Government's borrowings weighed heavily upon the market, making the field ripe for speculative pickings. But the evidence coming from investment bankers has shown since the Autumn season began that purchases for the sake of income have been on the increase, encompassing the depressed, old line railway bonds as well as new offerings. The healthy state of investment demand was made evident yesterday through the quick sale of $20,000,000 Bethlehem Steel fifteen-year 7 per cent. certificates at a price to yield 7⅝ per cent.

A deduction to be made from the current erratic grain market is that an extensive foreign demand has afforded this week a material support to wheat, while corn, oats and rye, dependent chiefly upon home buying, have fallen away. December corn yesterday slipped down from $1.04¾ per bushel through the $1 level for the first time, reaching a point as low as 98¾ cents, with a final recovery of slight proportions. December wheat at the same time left off unchanged on the Chicago market at $2.36½. Market reports indicate that, despite the low position of the foreign exchanges, cash sales of wheat for delivery in various European countries are embracing unusually large quantities. Sterling exchange receded 1¼ cents for sight drafts, the final quotation being $3.49½.

BETHLEHEM STEEL LOAN QUICKLY TAKEN

$31,000 IN DEALS ON CURB

Proceeds of Issue Will Be Used to Acquire Ships to Bring Iron Ore from Chile.

Subscription books for the $20,000,000 Bethlehem Steel Company fifteen-year 7 per cent. marine equipment trust certificates, which were offered by a banking syndicate headed by the Guaranty Trust Company and the Bankers' Trust Company, were opened yesterday morning at 10 o'clock and were closed again within a few hours, when it was said unofficially that the offering had been heavily oversubscribed. The bonds were offered at 94½ and accrued interest, not at par and interest, as it was at first reported they would be offered. The bonds were traded in on the Broad Street curb at prices ranging from 95, at the high, to 94⅝ at the close. Reports of transactions showed that $31,000, par value, of the securities were dealt in.

In explaining the purpose of this financing, E. G. Grace, President of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, had the following to say:

"The $20,000,000 marine equipment trust issue is for the sole purpose of financing the building of ships for the transportation of iron ore from the company's mines in Chile to its steel plants at Bethlehem, Sparrow's Point and Steelton. The equipping and developing of our Chile mines continued during the war period, but the building of the ships for transporting the ore had to be deferred on account of emergency war work requiring all shipbuilding capacity.

"The mines are fully equipped, all loading and harbor facilities completed, and this important ore supply will become available to Bethlehem just so soon as the ships provided for in this program can be constructed."

M., K. & T. LINES SHOW GAIN.

Net Corporate Income for 1919 Reported as $207,336.

Net corporate income of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas lines for 1919, after expenses, taxes and charges, amounted to $207,336, according to the annual report of the company. This was the equivalent of $1.59 a share earned on the $13,000,000 preferred stock.

In the year before the company reported a deficit of $2,058,320. In 1919 the Federal operating figures showed a deficit of $3,162,634, as compared with a Federal deficit in the year before of $2,707,423. The Federal figures show gross for last year of $61,825,376, an increase of $7,686,578 over 1918, while expenses and taxes increased $9,925,646 to $59,031,006.

GENERAL MOTORS DIVIDEND.

When the Directors of the General Motors Corporation met for dividend action yesterday there was an expectation in some quarters that a sales policy for the year would be announced. No action along this line was taken, however.

The regular quarterly dividends were declared on all classes of stock as follows: $1.50 a share on the preferred stock, $1.50 a share on the 6 per cent. debentures, $1.75 a share on the 7 per cent. debentures and 25 cents in cash and one-fortieth of a share in common stock on the outstanding common capitalization.

The dividends are payable Nov. 1 to holders of record of Oct. 5.

TOLEDO & OHIO EARNINGS.

The annual report of the Toledo & Ohio Central Railway, one of the New York Central lines, for 1919, which has just been sent to stockholders, shows in the corporate income account a balance, after charges and taxes, amounting to $261,826, which was equal, after 5 per cent. on the preferred stock, to $1.29 a share earned on the $5,846,300 common stock. In the preceding year $2.89 was earned on the stock.

The account of Federal operation for the year shows a deficit from operation of $30,297. Adding to this the $1,086,650 rental guaranteed to the road by the Government, the Federal loss for 1919 was $1,116,947.

Stock Exchange Seat, $90,000.

The New York Stock Exchange membership of Thomas Denny has been sold to William J. Keating for $90,000. The last previous sale of a membership brought $88,000.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Investment Demand.

Whatever else the price cutting movement may have accomplished, or be destined to accomplish, there is conclusive evidence that it has helped the bond market considerably, and unless all precedent and all signs now presented may be ignored it will continue to do so for some time to come. Bond dealers report that they have been receiving inquiries in ever increasing volume for several weeks, and in one or two places there is the firm belief that nothing helps the bond market quite so much as public announcement of price cuts. The American investor, bankers say, may not be the most sophisticated financier in the world, but some of them have learned that there is a positive relation between commodity prices and the price of money, and of these, it is now maintained, enough have learned to take advantage of developments to create a buying power in the investment market which has to be reckoned with.

"No Offer."

As evidence of the strong demand for Liberty bonds, which all too frequently are overlooked in discussions of the bond market, three of the issues closed last night with only bid prices. The First and Second Liberty 4s and the First Liberty 4¼s had no offering prices. Of these the first named was not traded in, but its closing bid price was the same figure as its closing offer price of the night before. It is not often that any bond, or any other fairly active security of whatsoever description, for that matter, closes without some one advertising the fact that he has some of the issue for sale.

French Gold.

The Bank of France statement, which showed the loss of some $6,000,000 additional gold, was something of a disappointment to many in the Street, where it was hoped the flow of gold from France would be more extensive than the $20,000,000 talked of three weeks ago. Yesterday's reported loss, added to the losses shown in the two previous weekly reports, rounds out the $20,000,000 which bankers expected to receive on the present, which is the first, movement of this kind. But the unofficial utterances of persons close to the French Finance Ministry made at the time the French financial program for this market was first discussed gave the impression that something like $50,000,000 gold would be sent here, and because of this many expected the Bank of France yesterday to show a much greater loss than actually was reported. For this reason there was disappointment among those who had been building high hopes on the expectation of a $50,000,000 gold injection into the American credit structure.

Industrials Heavy.

The prospect of further extensive price cutting was too much for the stock market to contemplate with equanimity yesterday and selling pressure was exerted throughout the list. Whatever there was in the way of liquidation of long stock was hurried along by further bear raids, the professionals hammering at the list throughout the entire trading session. There was nothing definite to indicate that the wave of price cutting which is beginning to sweep over the automobile industry would involve other industries as well, but it was held that it was a time to exercise caution. In the case of many industrial companies inventories have already been written down heavily to take up the slack caused by the price reductions which have already appeared. Should there be further price slashing another readjustment of inventories would have to be made and the losses might roll up into some big figures.

Lower Automobile Prices.

A reduction in the price of Ford cars on Wednesday was followed yesterday by a slashing of Franklin automobile prices. In explanation H. H. Franklin, President of the company, says that the companies, with price reductions in effect, will be able to go to manufacturers of various materials entering into automobile construction and demand that prices be correspondingly reduced by them. This sounds all right. No doubt a good case could be made out in support of the plea of the automobile men. The interesting question, however, is whether the demand will be acceded to. In substance, that which the Franklin company is preparing to do is go short of the market for materials. Short selling is not without its risks.

Is Oil an Exception?

In all of the price cutting which has thus far taken place the oil industry emerges unscathed. Not only has there been no reduction, but every little while an announcement comes forth that the price of a certain quality of crude has advanced in price. It is a bit unusual for one industry to so successfully withstand the trend of the times. And yet the basis for a reduction in the price of petroleum and petroleum products does not appear to exist. Demand is in excess of supply and will probably continue to be so for a long time to come. The only chance of change would appear to lie in the discovery of an unusually large oil pool, but even then a considerable period would have to elapse before transportation facilities could be provided to market the production. The chief difficulty even now in the oil industry is transportation, the number of tankers being inadequate to bring from Mexico the output of that country.

Rock Island's Mortgage Application.

Considerable interest is being displayed in the progress of the petition of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway in the Federal Court in Chicago to eliminate a clause in its refunding mortgage which forbids the creation of any other mortgage by the company, either senior or junior, to the 1934 mortgage of the company. The company maintains that the clause keeps it from financing normal capital requirements and, therefore, from properly serving the public. The rate of interest on the first and refunding mortgage bonds is 4 per cent., and the present action has been started because the bonds cannot now be marketed except at a prohibitive discount. Another reason for striking out the clause mentioned is that the present mortgage states that the consent of all of the holders of the 4 per cent. first and refunding mortgage bonds must be obtained before any other mortgage may be created on the property. It is claimed that it is almost impossible to obtain unanimous consent for a new mortgage.

More New Equipment.

That some of the new equipment ordered this year by the railroads is beginning to appear from the manufacturers has been shown by reports of individual roads recently, and yesterday dispatches from Chicago stated that 500 new ore cars are being received by the Chicago & Northwestern. In addition to the ore cars it was officially stated that many of the stock and refrigerator cars ordered by the company will be delivered by early Spring, while fifty new locomotives will probably be delivered during next month and November. As the new equipment is received the roads are pressing it into immediate service, and with the intensive drive being made by the railroads for a more efficient use of existing equipment still further strides are expected in the direction of clearing up congestion at various points throughout the country.

One Proof of Improvement.

A considerable amount of satisfaction was expressed yesterday in local railroad offices following announcement by the Interstate Commerce Commission of the suspension of its priority order for the shipment of 1,250,000 tons of coal each month to relieve the shortage in the New England district. At the same time, conservative railroad operators who condemned the plea of the roads that the Interstate Commerce Commission exercise its emergency powers under the law to ease the coal situation both in New England and the Northwest were inclined to withhold their approval. Generally, however, the suspension of the priority orders of the commission was interpreted as still further proof that the transportation situation has materially improved.

St. Louis Southwestern a Feature.

The bulge in St. Louis Southwestern common and preferred shares was one of the features of the trading in railroad issues. The former on a turnover of 6,800 shares sold up to a high at 37⅝ and closed at 36¾, with a net gain of more than 1½ points from the preceding close, while the common registered a net gain of 1⅞ points after selling off fractionally from the high for the day at 45⅞. The reaction in the closing hour was apparently due to profit-taking sales.

Changes in the Business World have a definite and important bearing on investment holdings. It is our thought that this is the time for investors to look over their list of securities and consult with their investment bankers as to advantageous exchanges or purchases.

We shall be glad to submit definite investment suggestions for the consideration of any investor. Write for Circular G-6.

The Question for Investors

Not—Shall I buy?
But—What Shall I buy?

Not for over fifty years has the general public had the opportunities to secure such high yields without the sacrifice of safety.

The same class of securities that a few years ago returned from 4% to 6% are now selling to yield 7% to over 8%.

We have prepared a list which we recommend to you.

OFFER STEEL CAR NOTES.

New Obligations Totaling $2,000,000 Put on Market.

A. G. Becker & Co. and Ames, Emerich & Co. are offered at prices to yield the investor 7½ per cent. to 8 per cent. an issue of $2,000,000 7 per cent. equipment trust notes guaranteed by the Pressed Steel Car Company. The notes will mature $110,000 semi-annually April 1 and Oct. 1, from 1921 to 1930.

In addition to the guarantee the notes are the obligation of the Steel Car Equipment Company, a subsidiary of the Pressed Steel Car Company, and are secured by 1,000 standard hopper cars, which provide an equity of more than 33 per cent. over the amount of the notes.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

R. E. Saunders, New York agent of the National Bank of South Africa, has received cable advice from the bank's head office that a branch has been opened at Molteno, Cape Province.

Lindsey Hopkins of Atlanta has been elected Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Santa Cecilia Sugar Corporation.

Albert G. Wilson & Co., Inc., has been incorporated to transact an investment business in municipal bonds and over-the-counter investment securities.

Bethlehem Steel Company
Fifteen Year 7% Marine Equipment Trust Certificates

TO BE ISSUED UNDER THE PHILADELPHIA PLAN

To be dated October 1, 1920, to mature October 1, 1935

Certificates in denomination of $1,000, registerable as to principal. Dividend warrants payable semi-annually April 1 and October 1. Principal and dividends payable at Guaranty Trust Company of New York. Redeemable at any time on 20 days' notice at 102½ and accrued dividends. Authorized and to be issued $20,000,000.

Certificates are to be retired by purchase or by call by lot if not obtainable at not exceeding the call price, at the rate of $1,000,000 on or before each dividend date from April 1, 1922, to October 1, 1927, inclusive, and $500,000 on or before each dividend date thereafter until maturity; these amounts to be ratably reduced if Certificates are redeemed in advance of schedule. Certificates so retired to be cancelled.

Guaranty Trust Company of New York, Trustee

These Certificates are to be issued pursuant to an Equipment Trust Agreement under which the Trustee or its nominee will hold title to five steamships of 20,000 deadweight tons each, to be constructed, and to five steamships already constructed totaling 52,417 deadweight tons (all of which are less than three years old and one of which has just been delivered). This fleet of ten ships, aggregating approximately 152,417 deadweight tons, will be employed for the transportation of ore from the Bethlehem iron mines in Chile and Cuba for use in Bethlehem Steel Company's plants. All ships are so constructed as to provide for efficiently carrying other commodities, thus substantially increasing their earning power through return cargoes.

The purchase price of the five ships to be constructed and the current reproduction value less depreciation of the five ships now in service aggregate over $30,000,000, or 50% more than the maximum amount of Certificates to be issued, and this margin of 50% in excess of outstanding Certificates must, as below set forth, constantly be maintained.

Title to these ships is to be vested in the Trustee or its nominee, and they are to be chartered to Bethlehem Steel Company, which will pay charter hire in semi-annual installments that will cover dividend warrants and retire the entire issue by maturity. These charter payments will be guaranteed by Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, Ltd., thus placing behind these Certificates the strength and credit of substantially the entire Bethlehem system.

Title to any ship will be relinquished (provided that the number of ships held shall not thus be reduced below five) upon deposit of an amount of cash sufficient to retire a ratable face amount of Certificates, in which case the charter hire thereafter payable shall be ratably reduced.

The Trust Agreement and Charter will further provide that if at any time after completion and delivery of the ships to be constructed the depreciated value (calculated upon the then current reproduction cost new of similar tonnage, less depreciation at the rate of 5% per annum from the respective dates of construction) of the ships held falls below 150% of the amount of then outstanding Certificates in excess of deposited cash, Bethlehem Steel Company will agree to maintain this margin by the delivery of additional ships or by pledge of United States Government obligations, or Bethlehem Steel Corporation's Consolidated Mortgage Bonds or certain underlying bonds, or other securities which shall be legal investment for trustees in the State of New York, all such securities to be taken at their market value.

Pending completion and delivery of the ships about to be constructed, Bethlehem Steel Company will agree to maintain the above mentioned margin of 50% in tonnage under construction or in operation, or in the securities above mentioned, in respect of all Certificates not covered by their face amount in cash or United States Government obligations of equivalent market value held by the Trustee.

All of these ships will be under American registry and will bear the highest classification under the American Bureau of Shipping. They will carry customary insurance against fire and marine risk, such insurance in case of total loss to aggregate at least 125% of the principal amount of Certificates outstanding, proper deduction being made for cash and securities held by the Trustee.

The entire capital stock, excepting directors' shares, of both Bethlehem Steel Company and Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, Ltd., is owned by Bethlehem Steel Corporation and the combined earnings of these two subsidiaries comprise practically the entire earnings of Bethlehem Steel Corporation which have been as follows:

Railroad Bonds and Lower Money Rates

A continued relaxation in the money situation should be reflected by a rise in prices for sound railroad bonds.

An upward tendency in the price of railroad stocks is already in evidence as indicated by the fact that since August 9th the average price for 20 stocks has increased nearly $7.00 per share

Careful investors desiring to purchase bonds at present low prices will be interested in our investment suggestions including several railroad bonds.

COTTON MAKES NEW LOW CLOSING MARKS

There was more general selling in yesterday's cotton market and from the outset prices were heavy and with a positive downward trend. The lower level at Liverpool and the overnight news of a big cut by the Amoskeag Company in New England hurt the market, just as the failure of the much-advertised tropical storm in the Gulf to materialize had hurt it the day before, and at the opening there was a sag of 20 to around 40 points. Good weather also contributed to the bearishness in the first hour and a lot of cotton was sold by the ring in anticipation of Southern selling and possibly some for Liverpool account.

A brief rally at midday failed to have any lasting effect on prices, for in the afternoon there was another sharp drive, in which the Wall Street houses joined with the ring traders to smash prices. So successful was this that the market got down 120 points for October, slightly more than 160 for December and anywhere from 75 to 45 for the later months. In the final half hour there was a rally, mostly on profit-taking purchases, which lifted the list about 30 points on the average but left it at the lowest closing prices to be recorded on the present downward movement.

Spots were notably weak, both here and in the South. The local market, which was quiet, was quoted down 100 points, to 29.50 for middling. This is the first time local spots have been under 30 cents since Sept. 15, 1919, and at today's figures they were off $52.50 a bale from the first August price and $71.25 from the record high made on July 22 of this year.

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Previous day
Oct.	27.80	27.90	26.60	26.85	27.80
Dec.	25.10	25.20	24.30	24.45@24.50	25.33

CONTINENTAL AND COMMERCIAL TRUST AND SAVINGS BANK, CHICAGO, TRUSTEE

Further information in regard to this issue is given in a letter of Mr. Nelson Morris, President of William F. Mosser Company, from which we summarize as follows:

William F. Mosser Company is engaged in the tanning of hides and manufacture and sale of leather. The Company was incorporated January 1, 1908, under the laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and has plants at Richwood, West Virginia, and at Westover, Pennsylvania. The combined daily capacity of these plants is about 100,000 pounds of raw hides.

All of the capital stock of William F. Mosser Company is owned by Morris & Company, who will guarantee the prompt payment of the principal and interest of these notes.

The entire proceeds from the sale thereof will be applied to the reduction of current obligations, thereby not increasing the indebtedness of the Company.

The Company's balance sheet as of January 3, 1920, discloses total tangible assets of $10,250,770.39. After giving effect in this balance sheet to the proceeds of the present financing, net current assets approximate $7,242,000, and net tangible assets $8,346,000, before deduction of the present issue of $3,000,000 notes. William F. Mosser Company has no funded indebtedness other than this issue.

During the four fiscal years, 1916 to 1919, inclusive, the average annual earnings of the Company available for interest charges after all deductions except Federal taxes were $855,824.14; average net profits for the same period available for interest charges after all deductions including Federal taxes were $761,529.40. The average annual interest charges during this period were $186,273.26.

The Indenture, among other things, will provide that the Company will not create any mortgage or lien of any kind upon its properties or assets, or pledge any of its properties or assets, except that the Company may acquire property subject to purchase money mortgages for not to exceed 75% of the fair value of the property covered by said mortgages, and except as liens may be created in respect to drafts drawn in connection with foreign exports and imports in the regular course of business.

The Company agrees to maintain current assets (as defined by the Indenture) in an aggregate amount equal to at least one and one-half times all current liabilities (as likewise defined in the Indenture), including all notes of this issue outstanding and any purchase money mortgage indebtedness maturing on or prior to the date of the maturity of these notes and any other issues of notes or debentures at any time outstanding.

A Sinking Fund is provided beginning April 1, 1923, which will retire in semi-annual installments $1,500,000 par value Notes before maturity.

PRICE 100 AND INTEREST, YIELDING 8%

All legal matters will be approved by Messrs. Mayer, Meyer, Austrian & Platt, Chicago. Temporary negotiable certificates, exchangeable for definitive notes, will be delivered when, as and if issued and received by us.

$2,200,000

7 Per Cent Equipment Notes

Guaranteed as to Principal and Interest by Endorsement by

Pressed Steel Car Company

Dated October 1, 1920. Due serially, $110,000 April 1 and October 1 of each year from April 1, 1921, to October 1, 1930, inclusive. Redeemable at the option of the Company in whole or in part on any interest date, upon 30 days' notice, at 102½. If less than all the Notes of any one maturity shall be called at any one time, Notes to be redeemed shall be selected by lot by the Trustee, and if less than the entire issue is called, the Notes of the last maturity or maturities outstanding shall be first called. Principal and semi-annual interest (April 1 and October 1) payable in United States Gold Coin at the New York Trust Company in New York. Coupon Notes in denomination of $1,000. Registerable as to principal. New York Trust Company, New York, Trustee.

The Company Agrees to Pay Any Federal Income Tax Deductible at the Source Not Exceeding 2 Per Cent

BUSINESS The Pressed Steel Car Company was organized under the laws of New Jersey in 1899, to acquire the principal pressed steel car manufacturing plants in the United States, and has since materially expanded. Its business consists of the manufacture of steel passenger and freight cars, trucks, truck frames, bolsters, and other pressed steel specialties for wooden and steel cars.

SECURITY In addition to being guaranteed, principal and interest, by the endorsement of the Pressed Steel Car Company, these Equipment Notes represent the obligation of the Steel Car Equipment Company, which is organized to lease cars to railroads or industrial corporations requiring their use, and all the capital stock of which is owned by the Pressed Steel Car Company. They are issued under the conditional sale or so-called lease plan, by which title to the cars will be vested in the Trustee until all the Notes have been paid. They will be secured by 1,000 new, all-steel, self-clearing standard hopper coal cars of 55 tons capacity each, costing $2,934,000, which provides an equity of more than 33 per cent over the total amount of the Notes issued.

ASSETS The Pressed Steel Car Company, which will guarantee these Notes, principal and interest, by endorsement, has $12,500,000 Preferred Stock, $12,500,000 Common Stock and no bonded debt. It reports total net assets as of December 31, 1919, of $40,264,188; current assets of $13,022,668, and current liabilities of $4,958,130.

EARNINGS Average annual net earnings of the Pressed Steel Car Company for the past six years have been reported at $2,447,364, or more than 15 times the maximum annual interest requirements on these Notes. For the year 1919 earnings were reported equivalent to more than 23 times these requirements. Not only is the Company paying dividends of 7 per cent on its Preferred Stock and 8 per cent on its Common Stock, but it has been consistently adding large amounts to its reserves and surplus for a number of years. The official net earnings by years follow:

COMMODITY PRICES DROP.

Corn Drops 5⅝ to 9 Cents Per Bushel—Wheat Closes Weak.

CHICAGO, Sept. 23.—For the first time since 1917, corn today commanded less than $1 a bushel on 'Change for new crop deliveries. Continued fine weather, pointing to a huge yield safe from frost, was largely responsible. The market closed heavy, 5⅝c to 9c net lower, with December 99¼c to 99½c and September $1.27 to $1.27½. Wheat finished unsettled at 3c decline to ¼c advance, December $2.36¼ to $2.36¾ and March $2.27 to $2.27¼. Oats lost 2c to 2¼c and provisions closed unchanged to 37c down.

As soon as the market opened corn started to plunge downward, and although rallies took place they proved brief. Offerings on a large scale were thrown into the pit apparently without end, and about the only buyers were shorts who could grab profits. The September delivery in particular showed weakness, as receipts today were large and further big supplies were said to be on the way here. Oats gave way with corn and touched the lowest price yet this season.

Export purchases of wheat totalling 1,000,000 bushels counteracted only in part an impression that urgent European requirements for breadstuffs had been filled. Meanwhile, bears in wheat made much of the severity of the break in coarse grain.

EXCEPTIONAL OPPORTUNITY
FOR INVESTMENT OF $1,000 to $20,000.

Established and fast growing corporation, compelled to immediately increase production to meet demand, offers a limited amount of its treasury stock for this purpose. The product, which is of recognized superiority, is an essential unit in every automobile engine and is so designed as to greatly increase the efficiency of the motor. The investment affords a large margin of profit with the protection of basic patents in both this and foreign countries. The universal field presents unlimited opportunity for future growth with an absolutely stable and permanent market. A short interview will convince you that a thorough investigation will be to your advantage. No brokers or promoters.

Manufacturer, Box D, 672 Times Downtown.

SALESMEN WANTED.

To the salesman who is seeking a reputable oil security for sale on a commission basis we can offer a rather unusual opportunity. This is a producing oil company with valuable properties in the Beggs field in Oklahoma. Its stocks have a strong appeal and are being readily sold even under the present market conditions. We can use one or two additional salesmen who actually have a clientele to which they will present this opportunity truthfully.

Do You Wish to Effect a Consolidation with Your Competitor or Competitors

To your mutual interest and thereby double or quadruple the net earnings of each by reducing overhead and wasteful competition? I am prepared by temperament, wide experience and character to undertake and carry through negotiations of the most delicate and confidential nature. Highest references given. Only sound business propositions considered. No information desired until references have been investigated. All communications treated in confidence. Purchase of competitive properties, when more desirable, also undertaken. C 924 Times Downtown.

Business

The Quenelda Graphite Corporation owns five Flake Graphite properties in Alabama and its mining and refining operations are the largest in the world. Its Concentrating and Refining plants are the most modern and the most efficient. Electric power is used throughout, no artificial heating is used and the mining is done with power shovels. Flake Graphite is being recognized as the best lubricant known, is essential for many important products and is indispensable to the steel and the brass industries. Six times as much as has been produced in this country has been imported. The Corporation owns over 3,000 acres, containing over 40,000,000 tons of ore, bearing over three per-cent Flake Graphite. On the basis of fifty cents per ton depletion charges allowed by the Government there is a value of more than $20,000,000 for proven ore bodies. Over $2,000,000 has been expended on these properties.

Properties

The Quenelda Graphite Corporation, a consolidation of five operating companies, owns the most valuable Graphite ore bodies in America, property amounting to more than three thousand acres of Graphite bearing ore land. The ore bodies are in the lower hills, above the surface of the valleys, and contain more than 40,000,000 tons of ore, averaging above three precent of Flake Graphite. The Government has recognized a value of fifty cents per ton as a deduction for depletion charges in the income tax returns of the Corporation, thus giving a value of $20,000,000 for proven ore bodies.

Earnings

The Corporation is now producing 30,000 pounds of Flake Graphite per day on which at prevailing prices it is realizing over $250,000.00 annually, more than three times dividend requirements, and will continue to increase this production until the present plans for 60,000 pounds daily are reached, which will yield over $600,000.00 annual net profit.

BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPERS.

Yesterday—8 per cent. for the best names.
Wednesday—8 per cent. for the best names.
The quotations are for six months' paper.

Silks That Are Selling.

According to the sales chart of a representative silk house, satin had the lead in August selling. The heavier qualities were in chief demand, with the lighter weaves following. A georgette crepe was the next on the list, though second place was practically shared between that construction and radium crepes. Nice sales were shown of jersey silks, taffetas and some novelty crepe weaves. Bengaline was well up in the list.

Dresses Have the Call.

As the season advances it is becoming increasingly evident to the wholesale garment trade that dresses have greatly improved their position in relation to suits. A buying authority stated yesterday that the tendency is so greatly toward dresses that the "days of the suit, as far as ready-to-wear garments are concerned, are numbered." He based his opinion on the larger number of women who can wear dresses to better advantage than suits. While the stores, he explained, count on additional sales of waists when suits are bought, many accessories are sold in connection with dresses.

Retail Sales of Dress Goods.

The sale of dress goods at retail is said to have fully lived up to the promises made earlier in the season. At that time the prediction was made that, owing to the high cost of ready-to-wear garments, a good deal of home dressmaking would be done. This has turned out to be the case, and sales of both silks and woolens have been especially gratifying to the stores, which have restored the departments handling dress materials to their former importance. With ready-to-wear prices dropping and the quality of the garments produced steadily improving, it is thought that the boom in retail dress goods sales may diminish, but in a gradual manner.

"Bag Holdings" at an End.

With one announcement after another of drastic price-cutting the feeling among merchandise buyers is that the time of "bag holding" is at an end. A leading buyer stated yesterday that when signs of a price break first became evident pressure was brought to bear on sellers and jobbers to hold up their reductions until the large stocks of high-priced merchandise could be partially or wholly unloaded. These requests, he explained, fell upon sympathetic ears, inasmuch as the change from a bull to a bear market came quickly and found so many with large accumulations of costly materials. Unloading merchandise at high prices, he said, was economically unsound and bound to meet just the end it has.

Better Inquiry Did Not Help.

A better inquiry for the so-called clothing styles in the market for unfinished cotton goods here yesterday did not result in any great volume of business being done, nor did it prevent some fairly sharp declines from being registered. Sateens were weaker generally in price, the flurry in cotton causing second hands to offer them freely. For 39-inch 64-104, 4.20-yard sateens buyers paid 19½ cents, which represented a decline of half a cent a yard from the selling price of the same goods on the preceding day. Fifteen cents was the price of 37½-inch 64-72 sateens, and some business was done in that construction at that figure. Twills were not over active during the day.

To Confer with Clothiers.

A committee of the National Association of Shirt Manufacturers will confer with a group of retail clothiers now in convention at Chicago today for the purpose of considering ways and means of promoting harmonious relations between the wholesalers and the retailers. By means of a joint committee it is felt that co-operative effort may result in many benefits to the two trades. Warren V. Eaton of the Rice-Stix Company of St. Louis is Chairman of the manufacturers' committee and A. E. Allison, who is Secretary of the shirt manufacturers' organization, Secretary.

To Show Spring Rugs on Oct. 1.

Spring lines of carpets and rugs will be offered to the trade on Oct. 1. Announcement to this effect was made yesterday both by the Alexander Smith & Sons Carpet Company and the wholesale department of W. & J. Sloane, which acts as selling agent for several prominent mills. In both instances prices made on the date specified will be guaranteed to March 31 next. No indication is given in the announcements, however, whether the new prices will be higher than those now current or not. The setting of the openings for Oct. 1 came as a considerable surprise to many in the trade in view of the efforts of the Wholesale Floor Covering Association to have them held off until after the November elections.

Gray Goods Prices Ease Off.

The break in cotton, coupled with reports of reductions in certain manufactured cloths, put a check on activities in the local gray goods market yesterday, and at the same time brought out increased offerings from second hands at lower prices. The business done was entirely for spot and nearby deliveries, among the print cloth sales being 39-inch 80 squares at 19 cents. For 27-inch 64-60s buyers paid 9¾ cents and they also bought 38½-inch goods of the same construction at 14¾ cents. Both prices represented declines of a quarter of a cent a yard from Wednesday's quotations. Sheetings were none too active, but some business was reported in 6.15s at 10½ cents. Voiles in the gray were offered more freely, but in the absence of active trading in them it was impossible to determine just how they stood as to price.

Raw Silk Prices Firm.

So strong has the local raw silk market become as a result of the aid extended to the Japanese silk interests by the Japanese Government, that prices have advanced $1 a pound here in the last week. The rise has checked buying, however, and about all that is being done now is to buy for strictly current needs. Cables received from Yokohama by H. L. Gwalter & Co. of this city assert that, while trading is light there, prices are much higher and well sustained at the advances. Canton is firm, with higher prices in prospect as a result of decreased production. High silver exchange is rendering export business impossible. Shanghai is also quiet, but firm. Milan is firm as well, but this is due entirely to buying activity on the part of European manufacturers. American buyers are out of that market.

$255,963 REALIZED FOR BRONX LAND

ARE SOLD AT AUCTION

Famous Two-Story Homestead on Square Block Site Is Purchased for $43,500.

Two large real estate tracts in the Bronx were sold at auction yesterday by Joseph P. Day in the Vesey Street Salesroom for a total of $255,963. The larger sale involved the Henry A. Coster estate, which had been in the possession of the selling family for over a century. The 250 lots of the estate sold for $180,538, or an average of $611. They are located on East Tremont Avenue, Eastern Boulevard, Edison, Hollywood, Barkley, Otis and Logan Avenues, Green and Sommer Places, near the Westchester Country Club.

The other offering was the Margaret Walsh estate, comprising 216 lots on and adjacent to East Tremont and Waterbury Avenues, and this brought a total of $75,425, or an average of about $347.

Rapid-Fire Bidding.

Rapid-fire bidding and good prices were the oustanding features of this the first big Fall offering of unimproved city real estate. Incidentally, it was also the first auction of realty since the extension of the new Westchester Avenue branch of the subway into this part of the Bronx, and additional interest was accordingly manifested in it.

A total of twenty lots were sold for $13,475 in the first fifteen minutes. The first lot put up was at the southwest corner of Edison Avenue and Greene Place. Bidding started at $250, but this was quickly run up to $800, the knockdown price. Adam Herman was the buyer. Three lots adjoining on Greene Place went for $650 apiece, the one adjoining the corner being taken by the corner purchaser. Five other lots on Greene Place in the same block brought $700 each. For the lot at the northwest corner of East Tremont Avenue and Greene Place $750 was paid by William Kimberg. The next seven lots on the avenue went for $675 each, and the northeast corner of Tremont and Otis Avenues brought $850.

Mrs. K. M. Ryan was the successful bidder for the lot at the southwest corner of Edison Avenue and Greene Place, paying $875 for it. She also secured the adjoining lot on Greene Place for $725, and another buyer took the two adjoining lots for a similar price. Four lots on the east side of Greene Place, adjoining the northeast corner of Tremont Avenue, brought $700 each.

Inside lots on Eastern Boulevard, between East Tremont Avenue and Edison Avenue, sold for $675; on East Tremont Avenue, between Eastern Boulevard and Otis Avenue, for the same figure. The plots at the northeast corner of East Tremont and Otis Avenues and at the northwest corner of Edison Avenue and Otis Avenue brought $825 each.

Homestead Brings $43,500.

The largest individual offering was the famous Coster homestead on a plot of 93 lots and comprising the block bounded by Edison, Barkley, Hollywood and Otis Avenues, which was purchased after spirited bidding for $43,500, by William A. Cokeley, for a client. This purchase was acknowledged to be one of the biggest bargains of the day, since the plot was sold at the rate of about $467 a lot, considerably less than lots across the street brought. Directly opposite, inside lots on Edison Avenue brought as high as $650 each, and the southwest corner of Otis and Edison Avenues sold for $825.

The one-story frame dwelling, on plot 50 by 100, at the southwest corner of Edison Avenue and Eastern Boulevard, was purchased by T. F. Whalen, the tenant, for $4,300. Mrs. E. Crofton purchased the house, on plot 50 by 100, at the southeast corner of East Tremont Avenue and Eastern Boulevard, for $5,100.

Other buyers included John Callahan, Mrs. John F. Keough, William C. Boyle, Margaret A. O'Brien, James J. Deasey, Edward J. Daly, B. Falk, Isaac Sager, Fred Truberg, J. J. Furey, Joseph Marmole, Mrs. Julius Bumb and Mrs. K. Ryan.

Mr. Day said after the sale: "I feel that the Fall auction market was auspiciously opened by this sale. The converting of all of these lots into cash demonstrates that the public is alive to the housing situation and is doing the sensible thing by acquiring sites for homes at prices which should prove to be good investments.

"The buying power attracted to this sale was far from exhausted. It would have been an easy matter to dispose of many more lots today than were contained in the combined Coster-Walsh properties."

RESIDENTIAL SALES.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—High pressure prevails generally throughout the Eastern States and low pressure covers all Western districts. A disturbance of considerable intensity is over the Dakotas and moving eastward, and another is over Nevada. High temperatures for the season continue general throughout the Eastern and Southern States, the great central valley and the region of the Great Lakes. The weather has become considerably cooler over the northern plains States, the Northern Rocky Mountain and northern plateau regions.

There have been local rains during the last twenty-four hours along the East Gulf Coast and in the Carolinas, Virginia, the Mississippi and Missouri Valleys and the Northwest. At Pensacola, Fla., the rainfall in the last forty-eight hours was 7.46 inches.

In New England the weather will be partly cloudy Friday and become unsettled Saturday with mild temperature. In the Middle Atlantic and South Atlantic States the weather will be unsettled Friday and Saturday with probably local showers with continued mild temperature.

In the East Gulf States, Tennessee and the lower Ohio Valley there will be local showers Friday and generally fair weather Saturday. In the upper Ohio Valley and region of the Great Lakes it will be unsettled Friday and Saturday with local showers and somewhat lower temperature.

FORECAST FOR TODAY AND SATURDAY.

3 A. M.	58	68	4 P. M.	76	59
6 A. M.	59	63	6 P. M.	72	59
9 A. M.	62	62	9 P. M.	67	59
12 M.	70	58	11 P. M.	66	58

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 68; for the corresponding date last year it was 64; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 64.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 60; at 8 P. M. it was 67. Maximum temperature 78 degrees at 2:30 P. M.; minimum 58 degrees at 4 A. M. Humidity, 81 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 86 per cent. at 8 P. M. The barometer at 8 A. M. yesterday registered 30:31 inches; at 8 P. M. it stood at 30:21 inches.

The Civil Service.

City.

An examination has been ordered for probation officer, Children's Court. Candidates must be at least 25 years of age on or before the closing date for the receipt of applications. There is no maximum age limit. The subjects and weight of the examination will be experience 2, oral 4, written 3, citizenship 1; candidates must have had experience in probation work, in teaching or in the care, reformation or relief of children. The present salary is $1,350 a year. An increase of salary is requested for 1921.

United States.

The commission states that there are more than 100 vacancies in high-grade accounting positions under the Interstate Commerce Commission, paying salaries ranging from $2,100 to $3,900 a year. The positions are principally in the field. When employes are absent from headquarters, an allowance for subsistence is made. Until further notice, the commission will receive applications for positions of examiner of accounts to fill these vacant positions. Applicants will be rated on their education, training and experience. Full information and application blanks may be obtained from the commission, Washington, D. C., or from its representative at the Post Office or Custom House in any city.

ACCUSES DRY FORCE, ATTACKS ANDERSON

ASSAILS NEW YORK LEADER

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Prohibition enforcement officials, the New York branch of the Anti-Saloon League and its Superintendent, William H. Anderson, shared alike a vitriolic attack made today by Bird S. Coler of New York, Commissioner of Public Welfare, in a speech before the International Congress against alcoholism.

Mr. Coler's prepared address, although censored by officials of the congress to eliminate personalities, charged "open violation" of prohibition laws and accused Mr. Anderson of attempting to incite race and religious hatred.

Prohibition Commissioner Kramer, also on the program, answered the attack on his bureau personally, and Mr. Anderson, who was absent, replied in a formal statement in which he accused Mr. Coler of injecting "Tammany politics" into an international meeting.

Mr. Coler explained as a preface to his speech that when he reached the hall where the sessions of the congress are being held he was informed by Chairman Dinwiddie that he would not be permitted to deal with personalities, but that the remainder of the speech should be delivered. Launching into his speech, Mr. Coler leveled a bitter attack on the mass of dry workers, particularly those associated with the Anti-Saloon League, saying they were "buck passers" and had not forced the candidates of either of the major parties to take a definite stand as to retention and enforcement of the prohibition laws.

Attacks Federal Enforcement.

As for Federal enforcement of prohibtion, the speaker demanded that "something be done right now." There was no reason for quibbling, he added, because "everybody knows liquor can be bought at most places and at most any time if you've got the right look in your eyes."

"If the prohibition enforcement officials don't take hold of this situation quickly," Mr. Coler continued, "there'll be a worse scandal when this Administration goes out than there was in the old whisky ring twenty-five years ago. I'm tired of going after the poor little devil. I want the enforcement corps to get somebody that counts—even among their own numbers in the very heart of the Government.

"I could give you many names right now myself, but they (those named) would know before I left this platform that they would be sought—the leaks are just that close here in the Government.

"The prohibition commissioner, if he wanted to, could take one or two men and could round up Senators, Governors, Federal officials and scores of others for violation of the liquor law. New York could be cleaned up in sixty days. But the Department of Justice and Mr. Kramer's bureau and the other Government departments have got to work together, and, as it is, everybody's 'ducked.' The Anti-Saloon League has 'ducked.' Even Cox and Harding have 'ducked,' except when heckled and that's not a satisfactory way to get assurances."

Kramer Asks More Data.

Replying to Mr. Coler's charges of violation of the prohibition laws, Mr. Kramer said that "to a considerable extent" they were true, but he insisted the New York Commissioner should provide a "bill of particulars" in order that the small force of the bureau might know where to go on the trail of the bootleggers. He told the congress he was doing his "level best" to enforce the laws and explained that his force numbered only 1,000, adding "think of that number policing 110,000,000 people, for that it what it is, policing."

After officials of the congress had declined to permit delivery of that part of his speech referring to Mr. Anderson, Mr. Coler gave it out in the form of a public statement, in which he charged Anderson with an attempt "to again set religions and races at each other's throats." He continued:

"The desire of this person to turn the prohibition movement into an anti-Catholic and Jewish program should cause his banishment from every civilized nation. Anderson uses the Anti-Saloon League of New York to launch a crusade of bigotry, which is nearer his heart than the cause which he is paid to represent.

"With saloons wide open under his own eyes, he attacks another faith and cries 'Wolf! Wolf' when there is no wolf, in order that his own failures may not be known. He has destroyed the veracity and respectability of the league in the State of New York."

Denies Attack on Church.

Mr. Anderson in his reply to Mr. Coler's charges said:

"Any statement that I have made any attack upon any church is utterly untrue. But fear of misrepresentation has deterred me from exposing and thwarting the Tammany scheme to capitalize politically against prohibition the influence of a great church, many of whose clergy and lay members have been noted leaders in the fight to destroy the liquor traffic."

Although the two speakers concluded their papers and argument at today's session, the delegates wanted to hear more of it and voted to open the two papers for discussion tomorrow, meeting an hour earlier to avoid changes in the regular program.

Wayne B. Wheeler of the legal department of the Anti-Saloon League tonight issued a reply to the statement of Dr. Rosewater, appointed by Governor Edwards of New Jersey to attend the Anti-Alcoholic Conference, that 2 5-10 per cent. beer was not intoxicating.

"As a matter of fact," said Mr. Wheeler, "2 5-10 per cent. beer will intoxicate many people. I have convicted liquor dealers for selling such liquor and proved that it was intoxicating. If it intoxicates the person who drinks it it is intoxicating, whether it visibly intoxicates all who drink it or not.

"But it is not a question whether one-half of 1 per cent. beer is actually intoxicating; it is a question of law enforcement. The courts, legislative bodies and the voters by referendum vote have all decided that these so-called light wine and beer amendments would prevent the enforcement of the law."

"Miss Kip's Campaign" to Begin.

The Kips Bay Neighborhood Association, which aims "to make Kips Bay a better place to live in" and, to that end, is active in the district bounded by Fifth Avenue, the East River and Twenty-eighth and Fifty-ninth Streets, and of which George Debevoise is President and Samuel Sloan, Treasurer, announces a campaign for $25,000 in membership fees. The effort is known as "Little Miss Kip's Campaign."

Woman's Harding Club Meets.

Ogden L. Mills, Peter Zucker of 1 West Seventieth Street and Albert J. Berwind, Republican leader, were among the speakers at a meeting of the Women's Harding and Coolidge Club of the Seventh Assembly District at Leslie Hall, Broadway and Eighty-third Street, last night. Mrs. Ray F. Zucker, President of the club, presided, and a letter to her from Senator Harding, expressing pleasure at the advent of woman suffrage and advising women to join one of the major political parties, was read.

TWO ROADS SEEK ALLIANCE.

B. R. & P. and the D., L. & W. Plan to Exchange Running Rights.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, Sept. 23.—With a view of effecting a closer working alliance between the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh Railway and the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad, whereby each road would tap the other's territory, a plan of consolidation of interests is being considered by the officials of each road.

President William T. Noonan of the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh declared today that it was too early to talk authoritatively on the extent to which the plan for a close working arrangement would be carried out, but admitted that a merger is possible.

Commenting on the situation, Mr. Noonan said this evening:

"Last week President W. H. Truesdale of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, Harold Vanderbilt of the Board of Directors, and other officials of the company with myself spent several days in going over the trackage, terminals and properties of the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh lines. In turn, in company with Delaware, Lackawanna & Western officials, I have been inspecting some of the properties of that system this week.

"All this is in line with a closer working relationship which may give that line trackage facilities into Rochester, to the great benefit of this city. In turn, through the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh, the city would have another line by way of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western to New York City, and all the territory tapped by that line would be directly accessible to traffic originating here and elsewhere on lines of the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh.

"Such a working relationship is, I believe, in line with the present-day conception of railroading. Operation of railroads under a close relationship during the war pointed the tendency. All this indicates the point which the two lines are at in their plans for closer operation."

Asked if he would head the merger should the two roads unite, as rumored, President Noonan asserted that such talk was based on an assumed likelihood that the lines would consolidate, a matter too remote at this juncture to be taken seriously.

$35 a Week for Mrs. Edstrom.

David Edstrom, sculptor, was directed yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Wagner to pay $35 a week alimony to Mrs. Cora Edstrom pending her suit for a separation on the ground of abandonment and non-support. Mrs. Edstrom asked for $150 a week, but her husband replied that he didn't earn anywhere near that sum.

COMMERCIAL LEASES.

$400,000 Lease on Broadway to Restaurant Company.

The Alhambra Restaurant Company leased from the Silwein Realty Company for a term of years at an aggregate rental of close to $400,000 the five-story building on a lot 37.6 by 116 feet at 827-9 Broadway, between Twelfth and Thirteenth Streets. The lessor will make extensive alterations and occupy the ground floor for its own business. Pease & Elliman negotiated the sale.

Rice & Hill leased for a long term the four-story building 147 West Forty-fourth Street to Louise Kahn, now in 148.

Helena S. Snyder leased the Keenan's warehouse, now located at 438 Canal Street, for twenty-one years, from May 1 next, at an annual net rental of $9,000, the six-story building at 286 West Broadway, extending through to 6 York Street. The structure, which has frontages of 24.11 feet on West Broadway and 25.4 feet on York Street, has rear lines of 113.6 feet and 83 feet.

Monon Cuts Shop Employes' Force.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Sept. 23.—Bulletins posted at the Monon Railroad shops in this city today announced a 5 per cent. reduction in the working force beginning next Tuesday. The office force and traffic employes will not be affected at this time, it was said.

A New Book Just Out!

Does Our Growth Mean Anything to You?

Probably our most loyal Customers think of us chiefly as a place where they seem to get the most satisfactory clothes and hats and haberdashery at the lowest prices.

The fact that we have just taken over and remodeled the entire upper part of the building at Broadway and 29th Street is naturally of less interest to you than the big saving you made here on your last Hart Schaffner & Marx suit.

Few men can possess an infallible knowledge, but when a million men agree on something they are quite certain to be right.

Our growth, our big expansion at Broadway and 29th Street, all goes to prove that New Yorkers agree that Wallach Stores are the right places at which to buy stylish all-wool clothes, good hats and haberdashery.

It has taken time to convince New Yorkers of that. Confidence and Good Will are not mushroom growths.

It has meant years of careful buying, of close study of New York's tastes, and a steady purpose to serve each Customer fairly, intelligently and courteously.

With our enlarged facilities at Broadway and 29th, which include a whole new floor, comprising a fine Department exclusively for Boys, a handsomely appointed room for Dress Clothes, and a spacious open floor for Topcoats and Winter Overcoats, we shall be able to carry on in a service way even better than formerly.

We would like you to visit our enlarged and remodeled store of which we are so proud. Whether you are one of our old customers, whose loyal patronage forced this expansion, or whether you are one of our many newspaper friends who know us chiefly by name and reputation, we cordially invite you.

This is not a conventional "drop-in-and-see-us-anytime" invitation. We mean now—soon. For definiteness' sake, and to emphasize the warmth of the welcome which awaits you, we offer a rousing Topcoat Value to make your visit worth while.

To celebrate in the broadest manner possible, all four of our stores are offering this same value:

Hart Schaffner & Marx Fine Topcoats $39.75

Never mind what they are worth—or for how much more they would normally sell. Take our word for it: This is a real Celebration Value. The assortment comprises beautiful English types; smart form fitting Topcoats; also Chesterfields in Oxford and in Black—and only $39.75.
